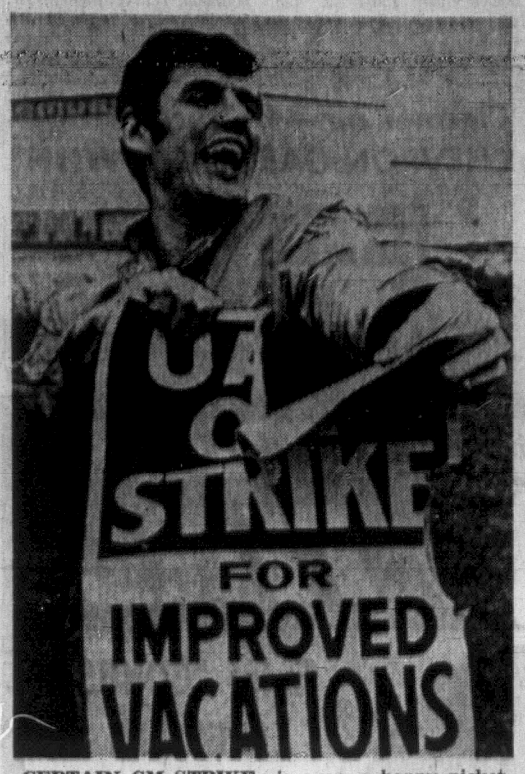
E & N Run to Continue; CPR Knuckles Rapped



CERTAIN GM STRIKE is over, a happy picket tears up his placard at the Windsor plant today but at press time, representatives of the 394,000 striking members of the United Auto Workers were still considering whether to accept a three-year contract that won approval of the bargaining committee. Decision Delights Mayors

By DON VIPOND

Mayors in communities along the Dayliner run were unanimously delighted today with the federal order assuring the daily passenger train would keep rolling—and service would have to be improved.

Meanwhile in Montreal, CP Rail learned first from the Times that its application to discontinue the Dayliner run or have it subsidized had been emphatically rejected by the Canadian Transport Commission.

T. P. James, chief of passenger services and the railway's lone witness at a public hearing on the application in Victoria in August, said he could not immediately say what changes might be made in the service.

CAR REPLACED

A 72-passenger car replaced a month ago the 48-passenger car which had been in use on the 140-mile run between Victoria and Courtenay, said James. And the schedule (9 a.m. departure from Victoria) had been pushed back half an hour to enable passengers to make connections with other transport services along the line.

"Whether or not we'll be doing anything else we'll have to consider," he said.

Municipal leaders were prominent at the August hearing in opposing the CP Rail application and they were elated today:

"This is a red letter day for Vancouver Island," said Duncan Mayor Jim Quaife, who heard the news with "overwhelming joy."

BETTER THINGS may be in store for E and N rail terminal on Store Street north of Johnson. The white terminal (centre) was criticized at a public hearing in August as "shabby." Among other things, today's ruling by the Canadian Transport Commission in Ottawa means the station will be open six days a week — the same number of days the dayliner operates. A cleanup was also ordered.

Precedent Set By Judgment

By JOHN MIKA
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The Canadian Transport Commission today told Canadian Pacific Railway it not only must continue train passenger service on Vancouver Island but also must improve it drastically and without a subsidy.

The stunning 23-page judgment has immediate ramifications for similar hearings concluded only this week in Edmonton and Lethbridge at which the CPR sought to discontinue passenger feeder trains linking Edmonton, Calgary, Lethbridge and Medicine Hat; and Canadian National Railways to cut its Edmonton-Calgary run.

"The Victoria judgment will set a new pattern for all future discontinuance hearings on railway passenger lines in Canada and will even be considered when the Prairie freight branch lines question is unfrozen in 1975," a CTC spokesman said.

"What it does for the first time is tell the railways: 'If you really haven't tried to make a profitable service, then we're not even going to listen to you until you do'."

Access to Subsidies Blocked

The CTC was at pains to underline another shattering aspect of the case — by refusing to declare CPR's Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway service on Vancouver Island "uneconomic," the judgment also denies the company access to federal subsidies up to 80 per cent of operating losses when a railway is ordered to continue an unprofitable service.

"Up until now, everyone's assumed that the CTC would either grant discontinuance or order continuance of a service but with the federal subsidy," the CTC spokesman said.

"Now there is a third course open in which neither of these things are done because merely proving a line is unprofitable is not enough. It has to be proven the line is basically uneconomic as the Railway Act states before the application for discontinuance or subsidy can be determined."

Cleanup of Operation Ordered

Today's judgment was delivered by a two-man CTC tribunal, headed by former Winnipeg lawyer D. H. Jones who is chairman of the commission's railway committee, which heard the case in Victoria last August.

It dismissed the company's application to drop the 140-mile self-propelled diesel car daily round trip between Victoria and Courtenay.

It also specifically ordered the CPR to immediately clean up rotting and dirty passenger accommodations along the route and stop putting overflow passengers into unsafe baggage compartments on the rail car.

The judgment also ordered the CPR to undertake feasibility studies aimed as "increasing revenue to the maximum possible level" by improving its operation, rescheduling the service so it connects with ferries to the mainland and undertaking a promotion campaign to attract "the greatest possible amount of tourist business."

Bus-Ferry Policy Draws Fire

It said none of the obvious traffic-generating efforts had been made, as a direct result of company policy favoring bus-ferry services between the island and the mainland.

The CTC ordered the railway to report back as soon as the mandatory safety improvements were made and said the CPR could not reapply for discontinuance or subsidy until it has waited "a reasonable period of time and has complied with the above requirements."

The specific orders requiring immediate action by the CPR are:

"1. Restore passenger stations, shelters and platforms to a clean and safe condition so they are suitable and adequate for the accommodation of passengers;

"2. Keep stations and shelters open for suitable periods of time on all days on which E and N passenger trains operate;

"3. Maintain stations, shelters and platforms in a clean and sanitary condition, and remove all weeds and undergrowth from station platforms;

"4. Provide sufficient accommodation on E and N (passenger) trains for the

Jobless Rate 9.5% in City

By DOUG MacRAE

The employment picture in B.C. this month has failed to reflect the first encouraging signs in months recorded in other parts of the country.

The seasonally-adjusted jobless rate fell for the first time this year across Canada, to 6.6 per cent in October from 6.9 per cent in September, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported from Ottawa today.

The unemployment rate in B.C., however, remained unchanged at 8.8 per cent. Worst hit areas in the province are Victoria and Vancouver, where 9.5 per cent of the labor force is out of work.

Across the country, the number of jobless rose last month to 419,000 from 398,000 in September, a smaller increase than usual but up substantially from the unemployment count of 314,000 in October, 1969.

Statistics also show an increase in the number of Canadians with jobs to 7,993,000 in the middle of October, from 7,986,000 a month earlier.

Because the increase in the number employed reversed the usual trend for October, the seasonally-adjusted jobless rate fell for the first time this year.

But that percentage, watched by government authorities as the main guide to employment patterns, was up from only 5.1 per cent in the same month one year ago.

The adjusted jobless rate is calculated as the percentage of the total labor force unemployed, with the normal seasonal ups and downs discounted to show the underlying trend.

This rate has moved up steadily from 4.5 per cent last January. Most economists would regard a rate of 3 per cent as the target.

In other parts of the country, the adjusted jobless rate rose on the Prairies and went down in Eastern Canada. The rate dropped to 7.6 per cent in the Atlantic region, shifted slightly to 8.8 from 8.9 in Quebec, and fell to 4.6 from 5.1 in Ontario.

British Columbia's increase in the number of workers without jobs jumped dramatically from 58,000 in September to 69,000 last month.

By comparison, there were only 40,000 unemployed in October, 1969.

The labor force in the Victoria trading area, which extends to the Gulf Islands, the Malahat and Jordan River, is about 72,000. Of that number, 6,800 were out of

OIL FIRMS NATIONALIZED

The nationalization was ordered by two decrees from President Houari Boumedienne, an official announcement said.

Acts Suggest PM 'Miffed'

OTTAWA (CP) — The prime minister's office refused today to explain why Pierre Trudeau did not attend the Paris funeral service of Gen. Charles de Gaulle.

Officials also would not comment on why the Canadian flag was not lowered to half-staff following the announcement of Gen. de Gaulle's death Monday night.

"The decision has been made," said a spokesman in Trudeau's office, "and the prime minister had not given any reasons."

Meanwhile, Trudeau and Senate leader Paul Martin led some 300 members of the diplomatic and French-speaking community in a memorial service in Ottawa today.

Archbishop J. Aurele Plourde of Ottawa celebrated the service at the basilica, assisted by seven priests.

He noted the desire of the former French president that there be no funeral orations and substituted a meditation on the Christian significance of death.

With the death of Gen. de Gaulle, he said, the world had lost "a distinguished man."

The spokesman in Trudeau's office would neither confirm nor deny a report in The Guardian in London that the Canadian prime minister did not attend the Paris funeral because he has not forgiven Gen. de Gaulle's "vive le Quebec libre" shout during the French leader's visit to Montreal in 1967.

"You can think whatever you want," he said.

Socred In-Fighting May Flare at Meet

By BRUCE YEMEN
Times Staff

VANCOUVER—A behind-the-scenes controversy over the merchanics of picking a new leader for the Social Credit Party may flare into the open at the party's annual convention opening here Friday.

George Driediger, president of the Social Credit League, said today he doesn't think the delegates will want to even consider the question.

Driediger said "the 100' per cent support" for Premier W. A. C. Bennett as party leader wouldn't necessarily be called into question by establishment of the means for picking his successor when that is necessary.

But, he added: "The constitution allows for a special general meeting to be called by the executive for any purpose." He said this would be an adequate way of setting up a special leadership convention when necessary.

TO EMBARRASS

There were reports today that some elements in the party may insist on raising the succession issue simply to embarrass the current executive led by Driediger, rather than indicate dissatisfaction with Bennett or doubts about his health.

A report on the issue was called for by the party's 1968 convention. It was held back at last year's convention after disagreement in the party over whether it should be raised.

Bob Jones of Cranbrook, chairman of the special committee on the succession procedures, was not available today to say whether he would attempt to introduce the report.

Driediger indicated that failure to circulate the report 60 days prior to the convention would prevent this year's meeting from deciding whether to accept it.

PROBER TOOK AN E&N RIDE

Stations: 'Unspeakable Filth'

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The Canadian Transport Commission tribunal found it hard to believe its ears last August when witnesses testified about the poor service on the E and N Railway.

So it sent John Green, long-time railway expert and senior official on the CTC staff, to take a ride on the Budd car on Aug. 7, last day of the hearing.

"He told of station platforms with rotted timber cribs, missing or rotted planking in dangerous condition or overgrown with brush, weeds and brambles.

"He reported station buildings and shelters, mostly in a state of disrepair, doors off, windows broken or boarded over, some shelters non-existent.

"Two stations were in a state of unspeakable filth.

"All stations are closed and locked on Saturdays and holidays. Trains do not run on Sundays.

"As it happened, there were 48 passengers on board leaving Victoria the day Mr. Green made his inspection.

"At Langford, a man with two children got on and as the passenger compartment as full, they were placed in the baggage compartment on the old station bench.

(Earlier, the judgment noted that the 48-passenger car had an unsecured waiting room-type bench on its baggage section to handle overflow passengers — contrary to safety requirements).

"At Shawnigan, five more passengers got on and were also put into the baggage compartment.

★ ★ ★

"Passengers forced to stand in the baggage compartment have to hang on to racks on the walls, difficult enough for a person with two good arms.

"When Mr. Green observed what was happening, he instructed the conductor to place those standing (baggage compartment) in the passenger compartment, which was done."

work last month — about 9.5 per cent.

Regional Manpower spokesman John Atcheson says the department is hopeful that a rush in retailing will improve the employment picture before the end of the Christmas reason.

But he points out that another 100-125 logging layoffs already have been announced for the Jordan River area.

In Vancouver, Manpower's Murray Perry says there is "nothing astoundingly new" about job problems in the southern regions of the province.

"The number of jobs here is increasing as fast as anywhere in the country, but the work force is increasing twice as fast as anywhere else," Perry said.

"Everybody wants to live in the south, so our biggest problem is one of migration. There's nothing that says a Yugoslav immigrant or a dissatisfied Montrealer can't move to the part of the country he wants to live in.

"I'm afraid the unhappy fact is that British Columbia is always going to have higher unemployment figures."

The situation is not so bad in northern B.C. "If I were looking for work, I'd look north," Perry said. "Things are slim here, a little better up there."

Vancouver alone has 55 per cent of the province's labor force, and "much more than our share" of unemployment, he said.

The province's labor force dropped slightly to 873,000 from 875,000 in October, but was still well above the 849,000 in October, 1969. The number of workers employed fell to 804,000 in October from 817,000 in September, compared with 809,000 a year ago.

Canada's total labor force was recorded in October as 8,412,000, up from 8,384,000 in September.

The DBS report says a larger-than-usual increase in jobs in community, business, finance and personal services outweighed the usual seasonal declines in farming jobs and heavier-than-normal drops in construction and forestry employment.

These last two categories have hit British Columbia particularly hard.

NON-CONFIDENCE

New Democratic Party MPs planned to present a motion of non-confidence in the government in the Commons today because of the high rate of unemployment.

Under House rules which permit opposition members to choose the topic of debate on specified days, the NDP has decided to zero in on the jobless issue, blaming government policies.

Government authorities, meanwhile, took some comfort from the decline in the adjusted rate, but expressed uncertainty about patterns this winter.

Some believe it is possible that unemployment won't climb much higher; others says the situation has not clarified enought to confirm that the jobless rate has passed its peak.

Finance Minister Edgar Benson is optimistic that the Canadian economy is moving toward a gradual expansion of activity. Production has been slackening this year under the pressure of anti-inflationary restraints on government spending and a squeeze on credit by the Bank of Canada.

"I think the economy now is moving to a stage whereby we will see a gradual buildup, and over a period of time an expansion in our gross national product, which has been relatively flat," Benson said.

He cited the reduction in tht Bank of Canada's interest rate to 6 per cent from 6½ per cent, effective today, as a further signal that restraints are being eased.

He has "no intention" in the near future of asking commercial banks to reduce their lending rates further. The banks cut some rates at the beginning of this month after Benson had said publicly that they should.

Small Union Votes Merger

About 500 provincial government culinary workers — cooks, kitchen helpers and dietary aides — have voted to join the B.C Government Employees' Union.

Until last February the culinary workers belonged to the 1,500-member Federation of Professional and Technical Employees, which also included psychiatric aides, clerks, firefighters at six B.C. mental hospitals.

When the federation disbanded the clerks, aides and fire-fighters joined the BCGEU and the kitchen staff formed the Culinary Workers' Union.

Ralph Williamson, president of the short-lived union, said reorganization of the BCGEU into occupational councils will ensure the culinary workers retain their identity within the larger union which has about 15,000 members.

The judgment found that a statistical list of $396,600 losses claimed by the CPR from 1966 through 1968 was $60,134 too high because it had nothing to do with operating the diesel car.

Jones' judgment said he would not consider evidence of those who opposed the railway's application "because in my opinion CP Rail has failed to satisfy the committee the passenger train service in question is uneconomic and is likely to continue to be uneconomic."

He said mere proof that no profits were made from the service is not the same as proving it was basically uneconomic because of factors beyond the company control as the legislation requires.

NO PROMOTION

Proof that a rail operation is uneconomic is a "prerequisite" before evidence for and against discontinuing or subsidizing the operation can be considered, the chairman wrote.

Reviewing the CPR's sole witness, T. G. James, passenger service system chief, at the hearing, chairman Jones said that the E and N was not allowed to carry mail or express on the Budd car to produce revenue; was scheduled so that it seriously missed connections with ferry services at Victoria, Sidney and Nanaimo and airline service at Victoria International Airport; and was not promoted in the CPR's extensive advertising for other services it operated on the island.

"Mr. James was finally able to produce some figures purporting to show that only a handful of people use the train in this manner," the judgment said.

"In the circumstances, this is not surprising and I was not at all impressed by that evidence."

SCENIC ROUTE

Chairman Jones recalled that several witnesses described the E and N route as passing through "some of the most beautiful scenery in Canada" yet the CPR spent only $150 on E and N promotion.

This amount went entirely for a cryptic timetable folder while the E and N was totally omitted in elaborate glossy tourist pamphlets promoting the bus and car route over the Malahat.

The E and N also was not mentioned in CPR pamphlets on its Nanaimo and Seattle ferry services although competing buses were mentioned.

"In my view there is in reality no advertising at all (of the E and N) in the normally accepted sense and meaning of that word," Jones said.

He also tongue-lashed the CPR for unsafe practises aboard the E and N Budd car.

UNSAFE PRACTICE

"According to evidence given at the hearing . . . whenever the train has more passengers on board than it is capable of accommodating . . . the additional passengers are placed in the baggage compartment by the conductor and invited to take seats on an old unsecured station waiting room bench, apparently placed there for the purpose.

"Whatever may be said about this pactice in terms of the obligation of CP Rail to its passengers under Section 315 of the Railway Act, it is to be condemned out of hand as being thoroughly unsafe.

"It places passengers in a position of totally unnecessary risk of personal injury in the event of either an emergency application of brakes or an accident.

"I cannot help wondering how many passengers who have travelled on these trains on crowded days, and have been forced to endure a journey in the baggage compartment, wouuld ever again wish to make their trip by train."

Jones went on to say that scheduling, advertising, equipment assignment, accommodation and other factors undoubtedly would reflect the amount of profitability to be expected in a service.

"Undeniably the external forces of competition are present, but in that all-important area that is under the control of CP Rail, the effort that is being made to render the E and N service profitable is almost non-existent."

"It remains to be demonstrated to my satisfaction that the standard of service cannot be raised with at least an improvement in revenue as one result."

"The evidence . . . has convinced me that E and N passenger trains between Victoria and Courtenay are being run without any real regard for the comfort and convenience of passengers and with insufficient attention to the commercial principles that the CPR applies to its other business with such success.

ECONOMIC ISSUE

"Until we have evidence before us that the service is being properly run so far as it is within the power of CP Rail to do so, it is impossible for us to make a determination whether the service is uneconomic and is likely to continue to be uneconomic."

The Jones judgment gave a final ironic blast to the CPR.

It quoted the recent company statement of passenger policy by senior executive officer S. M. Gossage which said CP Rail maintains passenger services efficiently "both to satisfy the essential needs of the travelling public and to minimize the loss to be borne by the federal government" to the full extent required by the CTC.

"In my opinion, Jones observed, "those responsible for the operation of the E and N passenger train service have not been living up to that undertaking."

. . . MAYORS

had tried to indicate the vital need of the railway service "and it sure does my heart good to know the Canadian Transport Commission decided in favor of the people."

Nanaimo Mayor and MLA Frank Ney said it was good news for Islanders and citizens, politicians and the news meria could share the credit.

It took a community effort to assemble the evidence showing the Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway "was not making a genuine effort to make the (Dayliner) service a profitable one," he said.

With proper promotion the Dayliner could mean to Vancouver Island what electric railways mean to Switzerland, Ney suggested.

Victoria Mayor Courtney Haddock said he was "very pleased but not surprised" at the CTC decision against the E and N.

The railway has not had sufficient support from the (CPR) board of directors it is responsible to. The parent company has let the Dayliner operation drift lown to "almost the Toonverville trolley."

Haddock suggested the service needs an injection of time, effort and money. The train should run more rapidly and something needs to be done about the constant whistles at every crossing which produce "noise pollution."

City Alderman Peter Pollen, an outspoken critic of the application at the public hearing, said today the CTC ruling means the people have won a battle but not the war.

The contract between the federal government and the rail builders in 1887 guaranteed the rail service in perpetuity on the Island.

Pollen said the essential issue is to ensure that the transport corridor up the Island represented by the railway is kept sacrosanct to meet future needs.

40,000 Attend De Gaulle Rites

By STEPHENS BROENING

COLOMBEY-LES-DEUX-EGLISES (AP) — Charles de Gaulle was laid to rest today in a country churchyard while about 40,000 persons crowded this village.

An armored vehicle, draped in the blue, white and red tricolor of France, left the home where de Gaulle died Monday, bearing the simple wooden coffin.

Crowds lined the streets leading to the white-washed Roman Catholic church. Some made the V-sign, symbol of Allied victory in the Second World War.

The morning had been filled with sunshine, but the clouds began moving in as if to fit the mood.

While soldiers saluted the coffin, pallbearers—all young men of the village—carried it into the church.

The choir, also composed of the young of the village, sang a requiem. The first pews were occupied by the mayor and the village council. Many mourners held lighted candles.

The coffin lay on a wooden base and six candles flickered around it. There were no flowers in the church. The only decoration was two sprays of autumn leaves at the altar.

De Gaulle's son, Philippe, a navy captain, his profile remarkably like that of his father, sat near Andre Malraux, wartime and post-war intimate of de Gaulle.

Second Epistle of St. Paul to Timothy was read by Rev. Francois de Gaulle, the general's nephew.

The mass was celebrated by Father de Gaulle, Rev. Claude Jaguey, the village curate, and the local bishop, Msgr. Alfred Atton.

The congregation sang: "I put my faith in the Saviour. I am sure of His word. My soul hears the Saviour. I am sure of His word."

The bishop read from the Bible of the resurrection of Lazarus, then asked for silence and mediation.

Outside the crowd listened to the service over loudspeakers.

Driediger clashed with Dr. Charles Ennals of Duncan, a member of the committee last year, on the issue. Ennals lost his bid to unseat as president of the league.

Premier Bennett, who is believed to have returned to Vancouver from his European trip late Wednesday or early today, will address the convention Friday morning. Bennett could not be reached today to describe the results of his two-week European trip, which was carried out in secrecy.

About 500 persons are expected to attend the convention.

Recreation Minister Ken Kiernan addressing the party's women's auxiliary at the Bayshore Inn convention site today, said it would be "morally wrong" for British Columbia to deny less wealthy countries such as Japan and Communist China a share in the province's resources through trade and development projects.

Kiernan said that if B.C. were to "sit as a great dog in the manager" about its resources it would be "bad world citizenship" in addition to being "not in our own best interests."

Fourth Cut In Bank Rate

OTTAWA (CP) — The Bank of Canada announced Tuesday night a reduction of its lending rate to six per cent from 6½, the fourth such reduction in the Canadian bank rate in five months.

The new interest rate, reflecting recent declines in commercial short-term lending rates, will be effective when Canadian banks re-open Thursday following the Remembrance Day bank holiday today.

At the same time, bank governor Louis Rasminsky announced a marginal tightening up of the central bank's lending facility for investment dealers whereby they may obtain cash in a pinch when commercial money markets are squeezed.

MEDALS TINKLING, veterans of World War One step smartly past reviewing dias in front of Empress Hotel during the Victoria Remembrance Day ceremonies Wednesday. Despite low-hanging clouds and an occasional raindrop a large crowd gathered for the traditional honoring of the men and women who fought Canada's wars, at the war memorial on the legislature grounds.

'LEST WE FORGET'

Canada's War Dead Remembered

OTTAWA (CP) — Gov.-Gen. Michener and Prime Minister Trudeau led the nation in honoring its war dead Wednesday.

Watched by a crowd of several thousands, the two leaders walked separately along a red carpet to the base of the National War Memorial to place wreaths in tribute to 110,000 Canadians who have died on foregin battlefields.

The crowd was unusually large by comparison with the turnouts of recent years at the annual Remembrance Day ceremony in Confederation Square.

The weather was typical armistice day fare —grey and sombre, though mild. The boom of a 21-gun salute and the mournful notes of a piper's lament added to the austere eloquence.

Representing Canadian motherhood was Mrs. Mary Meech of North Sydney, N.S., who lost two airmen sons in the Second World War.

She stood between Michener and Trudeau on the cement landing in front of the memorial as two armed forces buglers played The Last Post and a military band played Abide With Me.

PLACES WREATH

During pauses in the ceremony she chatted animatedly with the two men. She followed Michener to the base of the monument, deposited her wreath deftly and quickly, stood for a few moments in silence and returned to her place.

Three teen-age girls — Paulette Stachnick, Devon, Alta., Rejeanne Godin, Maisonette, N.B., and Linda Stewart, Saskatoon — placed a wreath on behalf of Canadian youth.

A number of veterans in wheelchairs also were on hand, while other veterans were drawn up on parade, along with armed forces units, on the square in front of the memorial.

Afterward the veterans joined service personnel in a military march-past on Parliament Hill, viewed by the Governor-General, the prime minister, and Gen. F. R. Sharp, chief of defence staff.

Japan Oil Industry Enters Paper Market

By JOHN MIKA
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The Japanese petro-chemical industry likely will become a major competitor of the North American pulp and paper industry in the paper-making field, the Senate Foreign Affairs Committee was told here.

R. W. Bonner, executive vice-president of MacMillan Bloedel Ltd., largest Canadian forest products firm, said both Canadian and U.S. natural woodfibre pulp is sent to Japan now.

He said the Japanese have begun producing a substitute fibre from petro-chemicals but it is of such high-grade quality that it is used only for expensive paper and doesn't compete with the natual fibres — for the time being.

"But with the success achieved so far in this aspect of fibre suststitution, I think we whould look for some keen competition from them, all of North America should," Bonner told the senators.

He added that the extensive Japanese merchant marine and its role in facilitating economical shipments to overseas markets would be another factor in eventual paper export promotion.

However, Bonnner said the Canadian forest industry has some opportunities of expanding Pacifice sales too, particularly in setting up logging and sawmilling operations in Malaysia and "we even might compete in Japan by selling logging and oil drilling equipment in which we have expertise."

Charles de Gaulle

IT WAS WELL THAT LE GRAND Charles passed gradually from the European political scene through the quiet anterooms of formal retirement, rural village residence and family seclusion, before reaching the still chamber of death. For France to have been suddenly widowed — to use President Pompidou's apt phrase — while General de Gaulle was in the full flight of his leadership could have precipitated a dangerous and chaotic national situation.

It was given to the man who had stirred his nation, his continent and his century, to die on the eve of 80 within the peaceful walls of his home, far removed in time and place from the events which had made him a world figure — or more correctly, perhaps, which he had used to make himself one.

Charles de Gaulle was fated to be, as Winston Churchill described him, a man of destiny. But his early life as a young army officer was relatively uneventful. It took a world war and the defeat of his country to place him in the position of leadership which history had reserved for him. And when he found the postwar political scene not to his liking, it took the challenge of national chaos a dozen years later to draw him once more into the active arena in which for a decade he welded his country, set it again on the road to power and made his name a commonplace in chancelleries and homes throughout the world.

His mature years were a fascinating blend of events in which it was difficult to determine whether he was making history or history was making him. He moved suddenly and powerfully when a situation cried for the decisiveness and the personal influence which he alone could bring to bear. He made decisions and carried them out against the advice of many and the anger of still more, yet in the end his judgment, even when overlaid with a typical freezing arrogance, was repeatedly proved right.

It is unfortunate that for Canadians the memory of this historic figure must be tarnished a little by his unprecedented personal interference in the "Quebec libre" controversy. That was a lapse of protocol, and more importantly of political judgment, which a younger de Gaulle would not likely have perpetrated. But this unquestionably was a man of stature, even of grandeur. What he lacked in warmth he made up in courage and dignity, what he lost through personal pride he made up in pride of country, what he denied to allies he more than made up in his love for France and his devotion to her interests.

A Vital Community Asset

THE GOOD NEWS THAT THE Art Gallery of Greater Victoria may shortly receive a Chinese art collection of international importance points up the need for community recognition of this institution and community support for its operations. The local Gallery would never have gained the interest of the donor of this treasure if it had not attained its present high status among Canadian galleries. But the absurdity of a gallery which attracts collections worth hundreds of thousands of dollars being under threat of operating with a staff of only one man and two women should be obvious to even the most critical observer.

The major benefaction of Mrs. King Foh Chen should win the gratitude of this community and be suitably recognized. And the action of the Indonesian government in releasing the art objects for delivery overseas stands as a great step forward in cementing relations between Canada and the rapidly developing Asian peoples who are our neighbors across the Pacific.

In the past few years the Gallery has attracted permanent gifts valued at more than $800,000 — an achievement probably unmatched by any gallery in Canada. Now it stands to have this generous support vastly increased, and the opening of the new wing later this month will prove a very timely — indeed, an essential — addition to the facilities. The Gallery has proved to be a most valuable means of adding educational and cultural assets to the Greater Victoria community at almost no cost to the community itself.

The original Spencer mansion was donated, the new annex was a 1958 centennial project, the Ker family gallery was privately contributed, and the latest south wing was financed by private donations. Displayed in the exhibit rooms and stored in the basement is a wealth of art which has cost the community nothing, yet which is attracting visitors and students from all over this continent, and inevitably will attract more as the collection grows.

The large per capita membership of the Gallery, the indefatigable efforts of the Women's Committee in raising funds, the ingenious efforts of Director Colin Graham and his board members in winning support from national and private sources — these testify to the viability of the institution. But a community must show appreciation and support for its assets if donors are to continue to be attracted. This is an institution which should not have to live on an almost month-to-month basis. Even from the most practical commercial standpoint, dollars invested by local governments in the Gallery will be returned many-fold.

Councils are now fortunately coming to the rescue with interim financing, but a new enlightened approach to the situation is now in order. Certainly, after what the Gallery is accomplishing, there should be no aldermanic grumbles that "it doesn't seem to me that they are, frankly, managing their affairs properly." What other institution in this community has done so much with so little?

Softly, Softly

THE BRITISH COLUMBIA AUtomobile Association speaks for a large number of citizens when it asks the government to legislate against noisy cars. This form of noise pollution is offensive whether caused by the way in which the vehicle is operated, with squealing tires and the roar of acceleration, or by mechanical faults and built-in noise-makers.

Few people expect traffic to be absolutely silent. Most engines rise beyond a purr in their decibel count. But there are limits. The automobile association suggests they be legally set — a procedure which reasonable persons approve. We've had our crackdown on hot-rodders screeching away from stop signs. But that accounts for only part of the racket which so often makes our downtown streets torturous for ears and nerves.

FROM LONDON — By DAVID HUMPHREYS

Jittery Response to Sir Alec's Speeches

WHATEVER you think of Sir Alec Douglas-Home's policies, you have to acknowledge his skill in playing them to the utmost controversial effect. London is becoming accustomed to the scene of politicians flying in to consult Sir Alec and Prime Minister Edward Heath over the foreign secretary's new policies. The latest in the line has been Israeli Prime Minister Golda Meir, who arrived from Ottawa for a long-standing official visit, with her government still smarting over a speech Sir Alec made just three days earlier.

Humphreys

This speech placed the new government's Middle East policy on the front burner beside the South African arms question, which continues to simmer nicely.

Feet in It

In this case it is not so much what Sir Alec said — although that is important enough to the Israelis — but what he did not say and when he didn't say it. Sir Alec is getting a reputation for putting his foot in it. He lost no time after the election in bringing forward the arms question, arousing the ire of the black Africans and their supporters in this country. Now he has done the same sort of thing with the Middle East question.

The difference is in the content. The essence of the arms issue, what he actually said about selling arms to the South Africans, was what upset so many people.

On the Middle East, he proposed two principles for a peace settlement, the over-riding aim of British policy. One was that Israeli armed forces must withdraw from territories occupied during the 1967 Six-Day War. The other was that the state of belligerency must be ended "and the right of every state to live in peace within secure and recognized boundaries free from threats or acts of force, must be recognized."

Israel Incensed

In other words, he built a policy around the United Nations Security Council resolution which called for these conditions and which Israel belatedly agreed to accept this summer as a means of getting the peace talks going. These talks have foundered on Israel's charges that Egypt has continually violated the ceasefire agreement, set August 7 for an initial period of three months. In the Israeli view Sir Alec one-sidedly put the responsibilities on them, ignoring the violations (which he did not mention) and playing down the onus on the Arabs to accept a settlement and peaceful co-existence.

Sir Alec did not say that Israel must withdraw from the occupied territories in advance of peace negotiations. Israel contends that "peace" and "withdrawal" must come in that order or simultaneously, not withdrawal then peace. He said nothing to justify some of the outrage from Tel Aviv about an "anti-Israel" speech and worse. Although the government itself was more restrained it nevertheless led the condemnation.

Heath at Blackpool

To understand that, it is necessary to go back to the speech of Prime Minister Heath at the Conservative party conference in Blackpool. He said Britain now had an opportunity to "put its relations with the Arab world on a new and more realistic basis." In the light of that cryptic comment every line of every subsequent speech is understandably being scrutinized by Tel Aviv for the signs of change.

Sir Alec did refer to Britain's interests as a trading nation "with many of our resources vulnerable." It may be that the Israelis are reading "oil" for "resources" and drawing the same conclusion as Labor MP Dr. Maurice Miller of Glasgow. He commented: "Britain needs oil more than she needs Jaffa oranges, and it looks as if this kind of thinking will dominate the cabinet."

Here again, there would be some justification for unease simply because there has been a lot of talk by the new government about revising foreign policy in line with national interests, without anything more specific than stability and peace in the Middle East.

Sir Alec has been most vulnerable to criticism of his timing. There is no apparent reason why he had to make this particular speech three days before Mrs. Meir arrived and three days after Mr. Gromyko left. Some observers see the timing as a diplomatic affront to Mrs. Meir. (Why could it not have followed her visit and a thorough discussion, apart from a stubborn determination by the government to proclaim the British national interest policies regardless of the diplomatic courtesies which is hardly Sir Alec's style?)

The charge by one Tel Aviv newspaper of an Anglo-Soviet "dirty deal" on the Middle East does not stand up. Sir Alec's concern over Soviet penetration and influence in the area is almost an obsession and he is the last person to sell Israel short at Moscow's gain.

The change in actual Middle East policy as yet outlined is slight. There is simply a new government in London that is determined to be more forceful internationally in Britain's interests than the last. Understandably, that gives rise to the jitters in other capitals uncertain of the impact of new policies.

FROM NEW YORK — By TOM WICKER

No Good Field Position for 1972

IT is fair enough for President Nixon to claim that his party won something of a victory in the 1970 Congressional elections. Vice-President Agnew's contention that Nixon won "ideological" control of the Senate is another of those extravagances to which he is given, but the Republicans did pick up seats in that body and they did lose fewer in the House than parties in power usually do at mid-term.

Wicker

Richard M. Nixon is too realistic a politician to take much comfort from that kind of victory, whatever he says publicly. Past all the self-serving rationales and explanations both parties will offer for the election results, the fact is that the biggest prize to be won was a good field position for the 1972 campaign. Nixon did not get it; instead, he lost ground, for at least the following reasons:

1. Read the returns as you will, there is simply no evidence anywhere in them that Nixon's vigorous and visible personal leadership — the most extensive any president has exercised at mid-term — greatly benefitted his party. Neither his personal appearances nor the Republican strategy and tactics that he had so large a hand in devising produced anything remotely like a big Republican surge or — in the case of the state governorships — staved off sizable Democratic gains. The best that can be said for the president is the negative and unprovable argument that, without him, the Republicans might have done worse.

2. Read the returns as you will, there is simply no evidence anywhere in them that the Southern strategy paid off. The Republicans gained a Senate seat and a governorship in Tennessee — in exchange for which they lost governorships in Arkansas and Florida, lost senatorial seats they had gone all out to win in Florida and Texas, and lost governorships Agnew and Nixon personally campaigned for in Georgia and South Carolina. For this, the vice-president threw his arms around the likes of Albert Watsen? For this, the president alienated the Senate by charging it with an anti-Southern bias?

No Inexorable Trend

3. Read the returns as you will, there is simply no evidence anywhere in them that there is an inexorable conservative trend in America that will inevitably benefit the Republican party. It is true enough that there were some notable conservative victories; there were even more liberal-to-moderate victories in both parties (for instance, in Connecticut, the new Republican Senator, Lowell Weiker, is not as hard-line on foreign policy issues as was the incumbent, Thomas Dodd) what is really important is that the returns do not suggest the kind of historic swing to the right that Republican theorists have been picturing.

4. Read the returns as you will, the only gains of any magnitude were made by Democratic gubernational candidates. This was predictable enough, as most governors of either party have for years been having trouble getting re-elected, and the Republicans held most state houses that were at stake this year. Nevertheless, just as steady Republican gubernatorial gains during the 1960s heralded the national Republican victory of 1968, the Democratic gubernatorial gains of 1970 can hardly be interpreted any other way than as a beginning recovery from the 1960s.

5. The net of all these factors is that the Republican party has not been substantially strengthened for 1972 and the president's personal leadership position within that party has not been strengthened by a sure-footed or demonstrably effective performance. The whole thing was capped by the goof that allowed Nixon to appear on television Monday night in an ill-made and high-pitched campaign film with a bad sound track, in glaring contrast to the quietly impressive appearance of Sen. Muskie for the Democrats.

Gained Little

Even so, Democrats and liberals should not be too comforted by Nixon's wounds. It is a long time until 1972, and in the meantime the country must be governed. It must be extremely uncomfortable today for a minority president, one committed to developing a conservative majority in America, to realize that his own best efforts have gained him little if anything, while he is now going to be flanked on the right by Gov. Ronald Reagan, re-elected in a landslide, Gov. George Wallace, already talking about a third-party candidacy in the same phrases he used in 1967 and 1968, and by Sen. James Buckley of New York, unquestionably the most spectacular single victor of 1970.

This gallery of ravens over his door could well tempt Nixon into further appeasement of the right, in quest of security for 1972. But appeasement is an endless, usually thankless task, in politics as in diplomacy; and moderate Republicans might therefore serve their cause well by letting Nixon know their latchstring is out if he wants to come calling.

Looking Back

From the Times of Nov. 12, 1910:

Guadalajara, Mexico — Federal troops are patrolling the section of Guadalajara today, and every soldier in the military district has been ordered under arms ready for instant duty if the outbreak becomes serious.

... Threats were made against the American consul and a portion of the mob threatened the consulate but were driven away. Most of the Americans remained indoors today and their houses are barred.

Many of the rioters were boys, but the leaders have been men.

A Gift to Your Neighbor

We all know the desperate situation of families — many known to us personally; and we also know this is Canada-wide, not just in a small community.

The families from laid-off jobs; children abandoned; and desertion by either mother or father — all this is our concern as a community. Of what value is publicity as a City of Gardens if we cannot give up the cost of an extra shrub to help our distressed neighbors?—Garnet Young, 1431 Richardson.

Re-cycle the Water

It is essential that we save water, and save the run of Goldstream salmon this year, but with our growing population, their future is dim, as long as we retain present policies of draining everything into the sea.

Such a fate need not be, for we could have plenty of water in Goldstream all the year round, if we could surmount the local reluctance to adopt a land-based system of sewage-disposal.

With a sewage lagoon as at least part of a multi-faceted disposal system a flow of purified and re-cycled water sufficient for all purposes could be directed into the Goldstream all year round.

We could serve many interests by this change, besides having a reserve for ourselves in a time of emergency, and the sooner we do it, the less expensive it will be.—Harold T. Allen, 2140 King.

Reply to Excalibur

This is in reply to a letter appearing in your paper under the dateline October 29 last and signed "Excalibur."

As a Quebecer born and bred and one who is deeply attached to his native land, I feel that I must refute the remarks written so irresponsibly.

Canada without Quebec would be a tragedy and a failure. I am not at all sure that the reverse necessarily would be true but trust that we will not have to find out. It could be a failure because it would show the inability of anglophone and francophone to rise above the petty human failings of selfishness and suspicion and exhibit some of the finer qualities of man. As an English-speaking Quebecois and a Canadian, I believe that the trouble in our land stems, to a large degree, from English Canada's inability or refusal to comprehend the legitimate aspirations of Quebec and her people. For too long they have been persuaded to believe that they were second-class citizens. This persuasion came from English Canadians. Our French-speaking brethren have a much greater claim to the title. After all they were tilling the Plains of Abraham for some 150 years before they were required to defend it with their blood!—T. S. R. Peacock, PO Box 144, Shawnigan Lake.

Mental Hospitals Russia's New Political Jails

By ABRAHAM BRUMBERG

The recent plight of a distinguished Russian biologist and a young Russian writer has highlighted one of the most reprehensible methods used by the Kremlin in dealing with political dissenters: forcible commitment to special psychiatric institutions.

The biologist, Prof. Zhores Medvedev, was "fortunate." As a result of public pressure from within and outside the USSR, Soviet authorities released him after keeping him in an asylum for nearly three weeks (on the ground that he had evinced signs of "extreme nervousness"), and after praising the doctors who had placed him there for having performed their "humanitarian duties."

Left Alone

The 27-year-old writer, Vladimir Bukovsky, first described his experiences in a Soviet asylum in an interview in the Washington Post May 17 and later in a filmed interview with the then CBS correspondent in Moscow, William Coe. Possibly because the story of Bukovsky, like that of Medvedev, had become a minor cause celebre, he, too, has been left alone.

The cases are hardly unique. Hundreds, perhaps even thousands, of Soviet citizens have gone into mental hospitals in recent years merely for having defended their constitutional rights to freedom of speech, press and assembly.

It was under Stalin that the practice of silencing perfectly sane non-conformists by confining them in mental hospitals was firmly established.

Short-Lived

According to an underground-circulated letter by S. P. Pisarev, a Communist since 1918, a decorated war veteran and himself a one-time inmate of a prison-hospital, the central committee of the Soviet Communist Party set up a special commission in 1956 to investigate the abuses perpetrated by "special psychiatric hospitals" under Stalin. As a result of its findings, "hundreds of healthy people" were restored to liberty.

The commission also recommended that the hospitals be removed from the jurisdiction of the secret police and placed under the ministry of health. As with other commendable initiatives of the initial post-Stalin era, however, this proved to be short-lived.

The recommendations were quietly shelved, the culprits mentioned in the report were left at their posts, and the commission members were removed from their jobs in central committee bureaucracy.

Indeed, "special psychiatric hospitals" acquired a new lease on life under Khrushchev (who believed that only "mentally deranged persons" would deviate from "the will of the collective") and under his successors Brezhnev and Kosygin.

Who are the offenders, what is the nature of their "abnormal" behavior and what are the criteria used for committing them to insane asylums?

To begin with, not all of them are "politicals," even in the rather flexible sense in which this term is used in the USSR. People have been detained for "psychiatric observation" merely for contacts with western tourists; so have alcoholics and religious believers.

Avoid Trials

In fact, the practice of confining sundry transgressors in mental hospitals, thus obviating the need for open trials, adherence to certain procedural niceties and unfavorable publicity, has become so widespread that even Soviet officials have found it necessary to criticize it.

Thus a legal expert, A. Koblikov, writing in the April, 1967, issue of Soviet Justice, asserted that it was "illegal" to commit to psychiatric institutions those acquitted by courts or who had completed their jail sentences.

By and large, however, the major criterion for confinement in insane asylums is "political activities" ranging from possession and circulation of underground publications to participation in open protest demonstrations.

Act Out Parts

The principals in each of these sordid dramas act out the parts assigned to them beforehand. The KGB performs the search, arrest and initial investigation. The medical "experts" co-operate in furnishing bogus "diagnoses."

And the court confirms the "findings" of the doctors and jailers and sends the victim off to a prison asylum to languish until "cured" (which in most cases consists of the patient's confession that he is indeed "guilty" of some form of mental aberration).

As for the defense attorneys, some of them are courageous and honorable men. They are prevented from doing the one thing that is clearly called for: challenging the very basis for the "trials" and thus exposing them as nothing more than exercises in political chicanery.

Instead, they must fall back on procedural or circumstantial factors — e.g., questioning the composition of a given "medical team," objecting to the wording of the diagnosis or arguing that the possession of this or that underground manuscript does not really constitute evidence of mental disorder.

Some of the medical examinations, on whose outcome the fate of the patient presumably depends, last no more than 20 minutes. Some go for months.

Whatever their duration, all the available documentation makes it obvious that they are as related to bona fide psychiatry as is water to wood.

The 1964 experiences and observations of the indomitable Gen. Grigorenko (now in an asylum for the second time) contain numerous examples of such investigations, whose only purpose is to force the prisoner to recant.

A Bully

He recounts the case of a Moscow crane driver who had circulated leaflets bearing a caricature of Khrushchev. "Both the (KGB) investigator and the doctor spoke to Yuri about one thing only — recanting. Moreover, the doctor was a worse bully than the investigator, painting a vivid picture of how Yuri would be shut away forever among 'loonies' if he did not recant."

Even more revealing is the case of Vladimar Borisov. Upon his arrest, "one of the doctors came up to him and said, 'Listen, Borisov, you're quite normal; you don't want to be sent to a lunatic asylum, do you? Better change your ideas about politics."

Took Notes

After he was transferred to a hospital, his wife was told by a woman doctor that her husband "needed treatment because he did not behave as a normal person should" (e.g., he "kept reading a lot and taking notes all the time").

When Mrs. Borisov objected that "this was not a symptom of illness but a question of Borisov's personal opinions" the doctor replied: "Maybe, but he was unlucky; he is down on our register. What may be a system of opinions in a normal person is a sign of illness in your husband."

And the indignities which the suspects suffer in the initial proceedings pale in comparison with what awaits them at the hospital. Grigorenko, for instance, 65 and suffering from World War II wounds, is in the Cherniakhovsk hospital, one of the most notorious of its kind. There is barely room in his cell to stretch and to dress, and he has as a cellmate a criminally insane man who killed his wife and is in a continuous state of delirium.

Vladimir Bukovsky, in his CBS interview, told of severe beatings and forcible injections of two pain-producing and debilitating drugs for rude remarks and other minor infractions of discipline. He also told of the "roll-up" of a patient in wet canvas which shrinks and tightens as it dries.

These bestialities (and many more related by the chronicle) make it legitimate to speculate whether one of the purposes of confining mentally sound political dissenters in insane asylums may not be precisely that of driving them insane.

'Screwball'

The tendency to view any kind of nonconformist behavior in "clinical" terms, to regard the rebel against society as a "screwball" at best or a dangerous psychotic at worst, is not restricted to any one country. But nowhere, it seems, does it assume such ugly forms as in the Soviet Union.

The Listener

I think there were three main reasons why I decided to write that book ('Can the USSR Survive Until 1984') and to try and get it published.

The first was my concern for the fate of my country. It was, alas, some years ago that I started to be concerned at the fact that my country was heading for a catastrophe in the not distant future.

I wrote about it on two occasions to the editors of Russian newspapers in Moscow, but I received the most unconvincing replies, and I then decided to find another way of gaining publicity for my views.

In the second place, since as I understood it, my book would appear mainly abroad, and would be distributed principally there, I set myself the objective of refuting those current and inaccurate ideas about my country which are widespread, mainly in the United States — that is, about the liberalization of the Soviet regime which is allegedly taking place.

And thirdly, I had the same reason as any author has who writes a book: given that these ideas had come into my head, it was natural that I should want to write about them.

What is really happening to the Soviet regime, in my opinion, is not that it is getting more liberal but getting more senile.

Liberalization would presuppose conscious reform, whereas in reality the regime is more and more losing control over the situation in the country.

The Soviet regime exercises far greater control over its country than, say, the American does over America. But for a totalitarian regime the degree of control is already insufficient.

As an example I can cite the unusual popularity of samizdat — the distribution in typewritten form of uncensored writings.

This doesn't happen because the regime takes a liberal view of such things or deliberately permits it, but simply because the regime can't do anything about this problem, mainly because there's been an extraordinary increase in the number of people with education — and in the importance of the role played by educated people in modern society — and this intelligentsia is no longer satisfied with the miserable official writings which are offered.

★ ★ ★

I have had a lot to do with factory workers and farm workers, and it seems to me that they haven't really begun to think over the nature of this system at all: it seems to them it's always been like this and it always will be.

But at the same time there's evidence of very deep dissatisfaction with particular aspects of the regime.

This can assume the most varied forms. Some are dissatisfied because they receive extremely little money by comparison with others, so they don't have enough to live on. Others are dissatisfied because they can't buy anything for the relatively high wages they earn.

★ ★ ★

The farm workers are dissatisfied with their lack of civil rights, in that they cannot leave the villages. The factory workers are dissatisfied with their complete dependence on the factory managements.

People living in small towns are dissatisfied because they don't have the right to move to bigger towns when there's no work in the small ones.

And gradually some people, at all events, begin to have the idea that all of these local, smaller problems have their origins in the imperfections of the political system under which we live.

What may lead to a revolution is the utter lack of good sense in the upper class, which is trying to avoid any change and to prevent society from having any mobility, but is always striving to preserve and make permanent the break-up of our society into tightly closed castes.

Putting their opponents in mental hospitals is the most disgusting thing this regime does.

At the same time, it seems to me a clear indication of the complete ideological capitulation of the regime in the face of its opponents if the regime can't find anything else to do with them but to declare them to be out of their minds.

But I consider that no system or rule by force can exist without people who are ready to submit to that rule. And if we don't want the rule to force to prevail, we must all fight against it, and not just say the regime is bad, that we have to suffer, and so forth.

It is a bad system, but that doesn't absolve us of blame for its being bad. I am dissatisfied with this political system, but this is the country in which I was born, and I hope that in due course everything will change. I don't want to leave this country.

It's another question whether, had I been able to make a choice before my birth, I would have preferred to be born in another country.

Politics Undermine India

By SUNANDAK BATTA-RAY

CALCUTTA — "Delhi door ast" — Delhi is far away — is an old Indian saying. It refers to the self-centred obsession of a central power that has always seemed as remote to the fisherman at Cape Comorin as to the Bengali peasant or the goatherd in Rajasthan.

Pandit Nehru's tryst with destiny, as he called it, when India became independent in 1947, promised to bridge that gulf. Britain's legacy of parliamentary democracy was expected to create a firmly binding centripetal force.

India's first law minister, Dr. B. R. Ambedkar, balanced the power equation between semi-autonomous states and Delhi with meticulous precision: 523 representatives from far-flung districts would evolve a benevolent central government reflecting every nuance in the sub-continental kaleidoscope.

The monsoons have washed away that dream. The Westminster system has turned out, in practice, to be totally irrelevant to the country's social and economic needs. Delhi — British India's capital and now the seat of Mrs. Gandhi's minority administration — does not reflect the aspirations of 500 million Indians.

The majestic pink sandstone of the palaces the British built for their viceroys and imperial officers, now the home of sovereign India's President and Parliament, is shrouded in the same distant unreality that clings still to the impressive pile of the Red Fort, a mile away, where India's Moghul emperors held court for two centuries.

But the parliamentary game flourishes with far greater subtlety than the Anglo-Saxon genius could ever have devised. The supple Indian mind takes easily to law: it manipulates the electoral process to clothe naked power with the trappings of legitimacy.

Without giving the landless laborer a sense of participation, universal adult suffrage has made him at once the object of coercion and the instrument of pressure. Dr. Ambedkar's boast that his Constitution was both unitary and federal according to requirements is wryly recalled every time horse and carriage are driven through its loopholes to oust a non-Congress regime (Kerala, 1959) or dismiss a recalcitrant Chief Minister (Uttar Pradesh, 1970).

Each British House of Commons precept and precedent is ingeniously exploited. The West Bengal Governor's 1967 manoeuvres were compared to Charles I's tussle with Parliament. Sir Ivor Jennings, a British authority on constitutional law, is cited to denounce central tactics in Uttar Pradesh.

This sterile debate barely scratches the surface of a starving life. The lust for power has created an infrastructure that reaches down from the cabinet minister into village councils. But only those who seek self-aggrandisement are interested in its perpetuation. As Mrs. Gandhi's cabinet reshuffle, cutting everybody down to size, dramatically revealed, clinging to office is their only objective.

The real casualty is economic progress. Steel plants, fertilizer projects and even field tubewells are prizes for political allegiance. A minister demanded an airport for his village constituency even though one existed already only 20 miles away. With 76 per cent of the world's largest electorate unable to read or write, votes are sought through the ancient institutions of caste and community.

Legislators do justice to this parody of people's government. Of 236 members in the Tamil Nadu (Madras) Assembly, 93 have not even finished school. A West Bengal legislator is in jail on multiple charges of organized bank robbery. Marshals have frequently to eject riotous parliamentarians.

Most ominous of all, politics have savagely undermined the administration. The steel frame of the civil service is twisted: officials depend on ministerial favor for promotion. District administrators are at the beck and call of whimsical politicians. Untutored ministers control colossal development plans. The police in several states are accused of political partisanship. And there is talk now of a "committed" judiciary.

The National Congress — which rejected Gandhi's proposal that it should dissolve itself when Independence had been won — is widely blamed for this perversion.

The basic weakness is, perhaps, the Indian psyche which, after centuries of foreign domination, regards all authority as fair game for bullying and blackmail. Gandhi's anti-British strategy — employed now in every piddling little dispute — is contributing further to anarchy.

All those inherited institutions — posts, telephones, railways, roads, trams and buses — are disintegrating. The temples of modern India, as Pandit Nehru in a moment of pleasing whimsy called the gigantic new projects that stud the landscape, are often in ruins even before completion.

A system that surrenders so easily cannot be salvaged through constitutional reform. The saving catharsis must come from within.

But for it to be workable, the entire nation must be stirred by the same call and moved by the same impulse. That the emotional basis for such joint endeavor exists was amply demonstrated during the 1962 war with China. It needs a new order to touch that chord again.

Phoenix Steel

Canadian Phoenix Steel and Pipe Ltd. has plans for a $5 million expansion of its Calgary pipe mill.

Dr. Hu Harries, chairman and president, said the expansion would allow production of 42-inch diameter pipeline up to an inch thick.

A second phase would depend on construction of a pipeline in the Arctic, he said. The plant's capacity would be increased to 56-inch line.

Coast Copper

Coast Copper Ltd. reported estimated sales of products for the ninth-month period ended Sept. 30 totalled $5 million, compared with $2.9 million for the same period last year.

Net earnings were estimated at $377,000 or 13 cents a share compared with a $7,000 loss in the same period last year.

Westfair Foods

Net income for Westfair Foods Ltd. for the three quarters of 1970 was reported erroneously from Winnipeg Monday. The figure should have $25,000, instead of $1 million, on read $2 million, an increase of sales of $170.58 million.

Noranda

Noranda Mines Ltd., reports earnings for the nine months ended Sept. 30 of $43 million or $1.82 a share, up from $39 million on $1.62 a share a year earlier.

The company said the higher earnings reflect the start of operationsc at new mines, higher metal prices and higher investment income.

Offsetting these factors were a loss of income due to the higher dollar exchange value, work stoppages at two major locations and a poor building materials market.

Noranda reported revenue of $343 million up from $321 million in the corresponding period of 1969.

McIntyre

McIntyre Porcupine Mines Ltd., of Toronto, reports slightly decreased earnings of $4 million or $1.69 a share for the nine months ended Sept. 30, compared with $4.67 million or $1.96 a share for the same period last year.

Sales totalled $11.38 million for the period, off from $12 million last year.

J. K. Godin, president, attributed the lower earnings to a drop in copper prices.

Finning

Net earnings of Finning Tractor and Equipment Co. Ltd. declined 19 per cent for the first nine months of 1970.

Net earnings were $1.86 million, or 95 cents a share, down from $2.28 million or 1.17 a share in the first nine months of 1963.

Arctic Oil Find Boon to Transport Firms

By KEN POLE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

When oil was found under Alaska's North Slope a couple of years ago, the discovery provided fresh impetus to transportation firms long established in Canada's North and familiar with the problems there.

The oil find at Prudhoe Bay was the signal for a concerted shove onto Canada's north coast and the Arctic archipelago, most of which lies north of the 68th parallel.

Oil and mineral companies decided to go looking with renewed vigor for riches, but ran into problems of getting necessary supplies to the far-away places.

Air frieght, seemingly the only way to deal with the vast distances from distribution points, was expensive. It cost more than $300 to ship a ton of material 700 miles from Hay River, N.W.T., to Inuvik, N.W.T., compared with about $50 by barge on the Mackenzie River.

In some cases, where speed was necessary, the cost could be justified. But companies had to look for cheaper ways of moving less-critical stuff.

Roads Minimal

The alternatives are by land and water; however, between mid-autumn and late spring, the waterways that vein the North are clogged by immovable ice. Roads are minimal and in summer much of the Yukon and Northwest Territories is muskeg firm enough only for tracked vehicles.

The unique conditions have prompted a number of firms to get the most out of conventional transportation modes and to develop new ones.

One firm even bought out a helicopter company. Another is studying the feasibility of hovercraft.

Four Edmonton firms — Northern Transportation Co. Ltd., Kaps Transport Ltd., Wardai Canada Ltd. and Pacific Western Airlines — have been the prime movers in the North, spending millions of dollars on development. They are being joined by smaller firms hoping for a slice of the action.

Northern Transportation, a water transport firm only, is a federal Crown corporation founded in 1934. It increased its fleet by $12 million worth of equipment last season and plans to spend more next season for improvement of barges, tugs and docks.

Capacity Enlarged

Manager Bruce Hunter said the firm is building eight 1,500-ton-carrying-capacity barges, plus one additional tug. Twenty-four barges and three tugs were bought in 1969, increasing the fleet to 134 barges and 27 tugs.

"We have a hard core of supplying the settlements with fuel oil, food, snowmobiles, cars and anything you can think of," Mr. Hunter said. "This doesn't increase very fast, so any fluctuation in our tonnage has to come from some other source."

In the '50s and '60s, most of the fluctuation was caused by the uranium mines in northern Saskatchewan. When five mines at Beaverlodge were closed in 1960 and Eldorado Mining and Refining Ltd. closed down its Port Radium operation, there was a sharp drop.

It dropped to the extent that Northern Transportation bought out its only competitor, and it continued to drop until the Prudhoe Bay discovery.

"This started the oil exploration on the upswing," Mr. Hunter said, and their over-all tonnage increased.

Kaps Transport, founded as an oilfield trucking firm, got into the tug-and-barge business in 1969 with six 400-ton barges, all of which were leased to oil firms for major shipments.

Helicopters Added

Last autumn, the Canadian Transport Commission granted Kaps a licence for contract freight services. This year, 14 barges and four tugs formed the backbone of its water fleet. As well, they have trucks, tractors and other equipment scattered throughout the Arctic.

Six helicopters have been added to the facilities through the purchase of Shirley Helicopters Ltd., another Edmonton firm.

Wardair Canada has had a stake in the North ever since its founder and president, Maxwell Ward, was a bush pilot operating from Yellowknife after the Second World War.

It now has eight aircraft doing passenger and cargo work in the North. The fleet consists of three Bristol 170 freighters, each with a payload of six tons or 44 passengers; two de Havilland Twin Otters; two Single Otters and a leased twin-engined Piper Apache.

Wardair's gross earnings increased to more than $13 million in 1969 from less than $10 million in 1968; gross revenues from northern operations were up only slightly and "operational problems" were given as the reasons.

Mood Optimistic

"We have confidence, however, in ... realizing good profits from this operation ... as our bookings of northern fleet aircraft during this coming year are at an all-time high and 1969 operation problems have been corrected," it said in its 1969 report.

Pacific Western Airlines last year carried 25,357 passengers and 5,452,658 pounds of cargo on scheduled flights to Yellowknife and Inuvik from Edmonton. An additional 1,362,646 pounds of cargo was flown from Yellowknife and Hay River to points farther north. No figures were available on charter operations but the tonnage was described as "considerable."

The firm has twin-jet Boeing 737s for passenger work and propeller-driven Hercules and Convair aircraft for cargo.

The prevalent mood of the transportation firms about northern Canada is one of optimism. They foresee more people and industry moving into the mineral-rich region and they are prepared to invest heavily in its future.

$135 Million Expansion Planned

VANCOUVER (CP) — Westcoast Transmission Co. Ltd. today announced that it will issue a series of debentures as a first step in financing a planned $135 million expansion of its natural gas pipeline system.

A company announcement said a preliminary prospectus has been filed with the various provincial security commissions, and "the total amount and terms of the debenture series will be announced when the commission approvals are obtained."

The Westcoast system now runs from the Canada-U.S. border near Vancouver to the Fort Nelson area in British Columbia's north.

Under the planned expansion, scheduled to begin early in 1971, the system will be extended 112 miles to connect with new gas fields developed near the Yukon-Northwest Territories boundary.

Cyanamid To Expand Feed Plant

MONTREAL — Cyanamid of Canada Ltd. has begun construction on an extension of existing phosphate facilities at Niagara Falls to produce in excess of 100,000 tons yearly of dicalcium phosphate, an important feed additive. This expansion will bring total investment in these facilities to $2 million. The new product will be available early in 1971.

Dicalcium phosphate is used for most commonly-raised species of animals and poultry. Limited production is available in Canada. Cynamid sees a multi-million dollar market for the product in Canada, including export to the north eastern U.S. market.

The company will use high quality limestone from its extensive quarry at Beachville, Ontario, and defluorinated phosphoric acid imported from American Cyanamid facilities in Florida to produce the dicalcium phosphate.

Dynamite Blast Kills Oil Workers

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — A dynamite explosion which gouged a crater 25 feet wide and five feet deep killed eight members of an oil company seismograph crew near here.

Investigating officers said explosives on a truck being used by the crew apparently were exploded Wednesday by sparks from a high-voltage electric line struck by a drilling tower mounted on the vehicle.

Only one of the victims had been identified several hours after the explosion, at the Pan American Petroleum Corp.'s Bird Creek testing site in northeast Tulsa County.

He was David Ellis, 26, Tulsa, who had been employed by Pan American about five months.

The blast apparently occurred shortly before 6 p.m., and shock waves were felt in a wide area. However, it was some time before the source of the explosion was discovered.

A Tulsa County sheriff's officer said the first persons on the scene were members of a power company crew looking for a broken electrical line.

The truck, being used by the seismograph crew in drilling a test hole, was destroyed. A drilling truck and a van also were ripped apart.

Several sheds, some used for storage of explosives, were near the site of the blast and fear of other explosions led authorities to blockade the area for several hours.

MINICHIELLO
. . . faces U.S. charges

$170,000 Left

LONDON (AP) — Novelist E. M. Forster, who died in June at age 91, left £68,298 ($170,745) in his will. After legacies of £7,000 to friends, the residue went in trust for Prof. Walter John Herbert Sprott, professor of psychology at Nottingham University, for life.

Long-Distance Hijacker Given 7½ Years in Jail

ROME (AP) — Air piracy is not a crime in Italy, but an Italian court has given a 7½-year sentence to the U.S. marine who hijacked a TWA jetliner from California to Rome a year ago.

Ralph Minichiello, 21, looked impassive Wednesday night as he was found guilty of kidnapping, assault, and bringing into Italy an "arm of war," the M-1 rifle with which he commandeered the Trans World Airlines craft.

The last charge resulted in three years and four months of Minichiello's sentence, which was 13 months longer than the prosecution asked for. Parliament created the charge three years ago as a weapon against the Sicilian Mafia. Defence lawyers said the law hadn't done much to the Mafia, but it added a lot to Minichiello's prison term.

Of the 7½ years, he has 4½ years left to serve. He has spent a year in jail since the hijacking, and he gets two years off because of a recent general amnesty.

EXTRADITION POSSIBLE

Still hanging over the marine's head is the slight possibility that he might be extradited to the United States. But both the defence and prosecution said they thought it unlikely Italy would hand him over.

A federal grand jury in Brooklyn, N.Y., has indicted Minichiello for air piracy, a crime that carries a maximum sentence of death, but so far Italian authorities have not received an extradition request. Prosecution lawyers said Minichiello could not be extradited until he finishes serving his Italian prison term, extradition could not be ordered for a capital crime because Italy does not have the death penalty, and Italy doesn't usually extradite persons for a crime that does not exist in Italian law.

Minichiello testified that he commandeered the airliner because he was up for courtmartial on a burglary charge and he didn't think he'd get a fair trial. He also said he wanted to see his father in Melito Irpino, a small town near Naples. The old man died after seeing him in Rome.

Swedish Prison Reforms Watched

By BERNARD WEINRAUB

STOCKHOLM (NYT) — At the Nacka Prison near Stockholm, inmates travel each morning to civilian jobs and return to their quarters at night. In the university town of Uppsala, convicts live beside students, who offer them tutoring help for academic degrees. Around Sweden, nearly 4,800 convicts receive two-day and three-day furloughs through the year to help ease the difficulties of adjustment after release.

These recent reforms and others have been the focus of intense discussion over the last few months between Swedish officials and visiting American, European and Asian experts interested in one of the most socially advanced penal systems in the world.

SOCIAL FRAMEWORK

"Our aim is to use non-institutional treatment as much as possible," said Erik Nynan, deputy director of the Swedish Correction Administration. "In many ways you have the best chances for a man's rehabilitation if you do it within society's framework — if you deal with his adjustment in society as soon as he enters prison."

Possibly the most far-reaching advance in Swedish prisons is the furlough system under which numerous prisoners receive two-day leaves after their initial six-months.

"We hope to give a man the opportunity to establish a good relationship with his wife, his children and his friends before he's released," Nynan, a former court of appeals judge, said in an interview in his department's offices here. "It's been extremely successful. We issued a total of 13,088 furloughs last year and only 1,890 were abused, most of these by men who returned a day or two late."

Prison officials concede that Sweden has relatively minor crime and social problems — compared with, say, the United States — and can afford experiments and treatment plans in the 73 institutions around the country, more than half of them fenceless and on camps or on farms.

Last year there were 4,865 prison inmates, most of whom received furloughs, and 23,018 people on probation.

ALCOHOLICS

"Most of the prisoners are kept less than three months — there are a lot of alcoholic drivers," Nynan explained. "Less than 10 per cent are kept more than a year and even in the most serious crimes — murder, for example — a man is given a life sentence but is not kept in prison more than seven or eight years."

He said that foreign prison officials are usually surprised at the experiments, such as the absence of restrictions on mail.

SALARIES PAID

"We make no effort to censor or stop letters from prisoners to their families or even the newspapers," Nynan noted. "Why should we?"

One experiment is Tillberga Prison, 110 miles west of Stockholm, where inmates working in the carpentry shop are paid going wages. At another prison three inmates with good records were given permission to move with their wives into nearby houses, working at the prison during the day and returning home at night.

A series of "half-way hotels," under discussion by corrections and Ministry of Justice officials, would give released prisoners a place to stay while looking for apartments and jobs.

The officials are also discussing the possibility of vacations for certain prisoners.

"Why shouldn't they have vacations?" Nynan asked, "every wage-earner has the right to a vacation and the men in the prison system manufacture products worth $16 million a year."

ONE ACTRESS PER NAME ALLOWED

LONDON (UPI) — Actress Lindy Russell had to change her name this week only because someone else had it first. Equity, the British Actors' Guild, ruled it could not allow two Lindy Russells in its ranks. So Lindy, 21, became Juliet Russell.

"My mother thinks it's hilarious," she said.

China Market Eyed by Canadian Business

By JOHN MIKA
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Japan's success formula should be copied to exploit limited but lucrative trading opportunities for Western Canada in China and The Orient, the Senate Foreign Affairs Committee was told this week.

This involves government initiative in winning businessmen's collaboration for sending a stream of trade missions to China, Japan, Australia and Southeast Asia to hunt and bag select contracts, Robert Bonner repeatedly told the committee during a two-hour hearing.

The administrative executive vice-president of Mac Millan Bloedel Ltd. and former attorney-general and trade and commerce minister of B.C. won several plaudits from the senators and strong support from Sen. William McNamara who had extensive experience in China as Canadian Wheat Board commissioner until last month.

Bonner told the committee that the chief obstacle to Canadian business in Asia is the cultural gap which either deters or frustrates potential deals.

He said the same problem, in reverse, faced Japan when it tried to make a post-war comeback by obtaining materials and markets in the western world.

GAP STUDIED

He said from the outset the Japanese "made the western cultural gap the object of deliberate study" by sending out well-briefed missions in such numbers that "almost every week in every industrial city of the west there is some fact-finding Japanese mission."

The technique was instrumental in booming the Japanese economy to the second-highest in the non-Communist world.

"My experence with them suggests that by their questions they were obviously men with long and careful briefing about the areas they visited," Bonner said. "There was none of the type who says 'Well, I'm just off the plane, what do we do here next?"

LIMITED STRENGTH

Bonner said because Canada's population and industrial strength is limited, it should not attempt a "shotgun approach but make every shot count" in despatching such missions to make on-the-spot assessments of carefully screened trade opportunities.

Such trade missions "to scout the ground in China should be a national priority," Bonner told the committee. He said so little is known about internal conditions in China and the potential for trade that "the prospects of business there are more to be imagined than predicted at the moment."

"Short of learning the new rules (through trade missions) I suggest that much of the hope of trade with China falls into the area of speculation."

BUSINESSES KEY

He said government trade officials are not enough although vital in opening doors. Businessmen have to be encouraged to go abroad and "become familiar with the unfamiliar" because they are the ones who sign the contracts.

Sen. McNamara said he agreed with the emphasis on trade missions but felt more confident than Bonner that actual trade opportunities exist in China.

"Based on my dealings with those people, I think they genuinely like Canadians," the senator said.

"Certainly, as far as Western Canada is concerned, I've always thought this was the threshold for expanding markets."

FEARS JEJECTED

Sen. McNamara discounted expressed fears that the Chinese might flood Canada with textiles and be unable to buy products for lack of hard currency.

"In the immediate future, it's almost a one-way street that we've got into China. This country has a real opportunity to get in there and exploit a market ahead of Australia and the United States.

Bonner said because of the logistics involved, Canada should concentrate on promoting trade opporutnities of 50 to 100 large companies in the Pacific Rim to start.

Overcome Problem Of Culture Gap, Executive Advises

He said these companies should explore establishment of joint ventures in Australia, Malaysia and even Japan as well as seek sales contracts for specialty equipment in addition to raw materials.

Bonner said the federal government should consider giving incentives or support to put Canadian companies on an equal footing "where there is serious competition" from foreign companies for export markets.

But he stressed that Canada's main trade opportunities in the Pacific still lie with Japan because of its continuing meteoric development — "Already greater per capita GNP than that attributed to our maritime provinces which is expected to equal Canada's per capita GNP by the mid-seventies and by the end of 1980 begin challenging that of the U.S. itself."

He said Japan is so short of labor that it has to constantly increase productivity through technology, thereby giving Canada a great opportunity to upgrade present shipments of raw materials by seeking deals for sending them to Japan in semi-processed or even fully-processed states in future.

Even pacts similar to the Canada-U.S. auto pact might be arranged with Japan for manufacturing products.

Bonner said he thought Canada could use more Japanese capital investment here and disagreed with current "emotional" arguments that Canada should "buy back branch plants" instead of consolidating efforts to specialize in a few internationally significant industries.

Refund Agreed Upon

CAIRO (Reuter) — Britain has agreed in principle to refund to Libya $6.8 million which the North African Arab state paid for the building of an air defence system, the Cairo newspaper Al Akhbar said. The deal was cancelled last year after Libya's King Idros was ousted by revolutionaries.

Greek Ships Top List For Accidents

OTTAWA (CP)—Greece has the worst accident record of any large ship-owning nation, the Commons transport committee was told Tuesday.

Captain R. R. Macgillivray, head of the marine regulations branch of the department, said ships flying the Panama flag are second, followed by Libya and Norway.

He made the statements to back up his contention that ships flying flags of convenience do so not so much to avoid safety regulations as for tax purposes and to avoid hiring union crews.

He said Libya has more ships flying its flag than any country in the world but only ranks third in accidents based on tonnage.

Capt. Macgillivray said that without proposed amendments to the Canada Shipping Act, now before the committee, Canada could not bar unsafe ships from entering Canadian waters.

Under the amendments, Canada would be able to require oil tankers entering Canadian waters to have a high standard of navigation equipment and enforce other regulations designed to avoid such spills as that by the tanker Arrow in Chedabucto Bay off Nova Scotia early this year.

The amendments would force ships entering Canadian waters to post bonds of up to $14 million for cleanup of any spills.

A separate fund also would be established through a levy of 15 cents a ton on oil cargo.

Picture of Moonquake Sought by Apollo 14

By THOMAS O'TOOLE

WASHINGTON (WP) — An Apollo 14 astronaut will attempt to photograph from lunar orbit evidence of the moon quakes that have been rocking the Fra Mauro region of the moon.

The attempt will come next Feb. 6, while astronauts Alan B. Shepard Jr. and Edgar D. Mitchell are on the moon's surface about 100 miles north of the moonquake region and astronaut Stuart A. Roosa is orbiting the moon alone 70 miles above.

"The moon quakes seem to be coming from the southern edge of the Fra Mauro crater," Roosa said Monday at the Kennedy Space Centre, where the Apollo 14 rocket was rolled to its launch pad. "I will aim for some pictures of this area. It is a specific target on the mission."

What Roosa will do is take a sequence of eight photographs of two ridges that lie just below the Fra Mauro crater, where as many as 25 moon quakes have been detected in the past nine months.

These quakes were picked up by the seismometer left on the moon a year ago by the Apollo 12 astronauts, who landed in the moon's Ocean of Storms about 150 miles northwest of the quake region.

Roosa will not be looking for moon quakes in progress, but instead will photograph the Fra Mauro region to see if scientists can spot fresh fractures in the moon's crust, movements or elongation of faults and evidence that existing faults may have been filled in by material from below the surface.

The pictures Roosa brings back will be compared with photographs taken of the same region by the unmanned lunar orbiter spacecraft, which snapped dozens of clear pictures of Fra Mauro with objects visible that were less than 30 feet across.

Roosa will use a Hasselblad still camera for the assignment, with a 250-millimetre telephoto lens attached. The Hasselblad should be able to pick out features as small as 50 feet across, enough for scientific comparison with the orbiter photographs.

Donations Refused

TORONTO (CP) — The Liberal party has had to cut the budget for its policy conference in Ottawa this month because all corporate donations toward the cost were rejected, Senator Richard Stanbury, president of the Liberal Federation of Canada, said. He said corporations usually donate about $70,000 to $100,000 for the convention "and there always is the suspicion that decisions are affected."

VICTORIA, B.C., THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 12, 1970 —PAGE 17

Visitors Swarm Chinese

A crowd estimated at 3,000 swarmed aboard the Chinese grain freighter Hongqi Wednesday.

The open house given by the crew climaxed a series of events marking the arrival in Victoria of the first Chinese freighter since Canada established diplomatic relations with China last month.

The freighter, with 9,700 tons of grain, is scheduled to leave for Vancouver Friday where she will take on more wheat before returning to China. The vessel arrived at Ogden Point last Sunday.

★

A steady stream of people visited the ship Wednesday afternoon. They were shown around and received buttons emblazoned with Mao's head.

Mayor Courtney Haddock, who was present, said he would ask the B.C. Government to request the government of China to establish its B.C. consulate in Victoria.

LIKE THE ARMS of an octopus, the bow lines of Chinese freighter Hongqi entwine bollard at Ogden Point. Hundreds of people took advantage of an "open house" Wednesday to visit the ship. The freighter, first to dock in Victoria since Canada and China established diplomatic relations, is being loaded with Prairie wheat.

Screwdriver or Knife Sought by Police In Cabbie's Murder

By STEVE HUME

Gerry Mulholland was a dedicated athlete and he never missed a soccer practice.

It was that dedication to fitness and precision that enabled him to remain, at the age of 37 — venerable years for an athlete — a star goalkeeper with Gorge Molsons.

He led his team to an undefeated record this year in the Victoria and District Soccer League's third division. And at an age when most men are packing it in because of creaky legs, opposing teams had scored only four goals on Mulholland.

Tuesday night, for some unknown reason, Mulholland skipped his scheduled 7:30 practice and took the taxi he drove part time to make a pickup at a downtown hotel.

Victoria City Police said he had apparently died of a small stab wound in the back of the head. An autopsy was ordered and results were to be released later today.

Meanwhile police were searching the area for a murder weapon and a police dog from Nanaimo was being used in the investigation.

Last Seen Alive at Churchill

They said he was last seen alive while waiting for a fare at the front entrance of the Churchill Hotel on Government Street at about 7 p.m.

Police appealed to the public for assistance in their search for a killer.

They asked that anyone who saw a person or persons:

- Get into the light-colored, late-model Owl Taxi at the Churchill Hotel;
- Riding in the cab towards or in the vicinity of Beacon Hill Park;
- Near the car on Battery Street; report the information to Victoria City Police.

Mulholland, who lived at 917 Bewdley in the Work Point area of Esquimalt, was a Canadian Armed Forces seaman stationed at CFB Esquimalt.

He drove taxi for Doug Marson, of 308 Catherine, owner of Owl Taxi Ltd., on a part-time basis when he came off duty with the navy.

Marson said Mulholland would call him each afternoon from the CFB Esquimalt barracks when he finished work to ask if there were any driving jobs available in the evening.

Mulholland was the head of a family of seven children.

"He was a real clean-living guy — didn't smoke. He'd have a couple of beer now and again, but he'd never drink too much," said Lloyd Strickland, manager of Mulholland's soccer team.

Mulholland's last game, played Sunday at Carnarvon Park, was a personal triumph — a 6-0 shutout against Stein Construction that gave his team possession of first place.

"He really was the backbone of the team. He'd talk it up from back in the nets and he spent a lot of time working with the younger players on the way up."

"We've already won one cup this season."

Mulholland was selected as a rep player with the Victoria armed forces team that represented British Columbia at a national soccer tournament for the Canadian Forces championship at Kingston, Ont.

Doctor Killed In Nigeria

A former Victoria doctor was among four people who died Oct. 24 when their Volkswagen bus went off a bridge and into a river 50 miles northeast of Lagos, Nigeria.

The Associated Press reported the bodies of Dr. Kenneth Dick, 40, and three companions were recovered from beneath the Oni River Bridge Tuesday, 17 days after the accident.

The group was driving from Lagos to the town of Iyale, 250 miles to the northeast, where Dick was working in a hospital supported by the Plymouth Brethren, a fundamentalist missionary group.

Other members of the party included Joan Ryeroft, about 24, a medical secretary from Toronto, who had been working at the hospital for several months, Ronald Gross, 27, of Greenville, S.C., who arrived in Nigeria Oct. 19, and a Nigerian man identified only as Balogun, a friend of Dick.

MISSIONARY AT 19

Dick, who was married with seven children, had lived in Nigeria with his family since 1961. His wife Norma, who grew up in Ladysmith, is a nursing graduate of the Royal Jubilee Hospital.

Dick was born in Alberta, moved to Crofton when he was 16, attended school at Ladysmith, and Victoria Normal School for teacher training. At 19, however, he decided to become a missionary, and studied medicine at the University of B.C.

He interned at the Jubilee in 1958 and practised in Victoria from 1959 to 1961.

Horton later returned to Victoria because of ill health. Dick has lived in Nigeria ever since except for a nine-month period which he spent practising specialty surgery at Hamilton, Ont.

He intended to stay indefinitely in Nigeria.

Rotary Turns Meals-on-Wheels

Douglas Rotary Club has come to the rescue of the Greater Victoria meals-on-wheels program, Saanich Ald. William Noel said today.

A cheque was received this week for $958 "enabling the program to operate in the black for 1970," he said.

LAY IN BUSHES NEARLY FOUR HOURS

Freak Accident Victim 'Poor'

A 17-year-old youth who was believed seriously injured in a freak car accident and lay in the bushes for almost four hours Monday night before being discovered is in poor condition at St. Joseph's Hospital.

Wayne Joseph Renshaw, of Squamish, was believed struck by a car that went out of control in the 500 block of Goldstream in Langford, and was thrown under a nearby hedge.

When Colwood RCMP and the Langford ambulance arrived they immediately took the car's driver Mrs. Gertraud Roller and her two children Henry, 10, and Marlo, 2, to St. Joseph's.

Renshaw, lying unconscious under the bush which was described as eight feet wide and 10 feet high, was overlooked. He was only two or three feet from the accident scene.

Renshaw was found by Mrs. Erna Kind, of 570 Goldstream.

The car which went out of control struck a power pole in front of her house at 6:30 p.m.

Mrs. Kind and her husband Rudolf were sitting in their living room later listening to taped religious speeches with two visitors when they were distracted by moans about 9 p.m.

She said her husband "thought it was a foghorn because it seemed so regular."

An hour later, showing the guests out the front door, Mrs. Kind said they heard the moaning again and thought it was a drunk in the bush.

When the two visitors shone their car lights on the bushes Renshaw became visible and the four rescued him and called an ambulance.

Colwood RCMP, who attended at the original traffic accident, said this morning they had no new leads in their investigation of the incident in which Renshaw was injured.

Esquimalt Centre Handed Setback

The provincial government has refused to give Esquimalt more than 10 years to repay a $700,000 loan on its proposed recreation centre.

The department of municipal affairs approved in principle Esquimalt's request to go to the people in December with a loan authorization bylaw for the centre but stipulated that it would have to be repaid within a 10-year period.

Mayor Arthur Young said today council was hoping for a repayment period of about 20 years and the government decision means the project will be postponed six or 12 months.

Young said with a 20-year repayment period it would have been a tight schedule and anything less would mean other projects would suffer.

He said, however, he wasn't completely disheartened by the decision because of the "stable and good financial situation in Esquimalt."

He felt the decision was "a polite way" of saying now was not the time to ask for those particular loan terms.

"This is the way I am reading it," he said.

Sewage Reduced

The sewage treatment plant at the Wilkinson Road jail, which drained into Colquitz Creek, has been taken out of service, it was learned today.

The jail now is connected with a sanitary sewer line extending to the vocational school and running to municipal sewers flowing to Macaulay Point, Esquimalt, marine outfall.

The jail treatment plant was a responsibility of the provincial government which paid for the connection to the vocational school line.

A Saanich engineering official said discharge from the plant to the creek was not large but there will be a beneficial effect by decreasing nutrients.

It is expected that two other treatment plants, at Northridge and Chesterlea subdivisions, will be taken out of service next year when municipal sewers are extended, further decreasing sewage discharge into Colquitz.

WHITE WHALE NAMED CHIMO

Mrs. John Harrison of Cobble Hill won 250,000 pennies Wednesday when her entry, Chimo, was drawn as the name of the white killer whale at Oak Bay Marina's Sealand.

Sealand president Bob Wright said 279 contestants had submitted the same name.

POLICE FOLLOW LEADS ON ARMED HOLDUP

Saanich police still have plenty of leads to follow in their investigation of the paunchy bandit who fled with $5,000 from a Saanich Peninsula Credit Union office at 4512 West Saanich a week ago.

He escaped from the scene in a 1967 Barracuda but a composite drawing of the fugitive has given police some new leads.

The man is believed to be armed and dangerous.

HALLOWEEN 'FUN' DOUSED IN COURT

Six Halloween pranksters from Saanich today had their enthusiasm dampened in Victoria Provincial Court when they pleaded guilty to public mischief by turning on 14 fire hydrants Oct. 31.

Ronald W. Ell, 20, of 4885 Cherry Tree Bend, Patrick C. McConnell, 18, of 4510 Markham, James W. Martin, 17, of 4901 Cherry Tree Bend, Eric R. Quissy, 20, of 742 Mann, James F. Rankin, 19, of 458 Viaduct, and Neil G. J. Thompson, 17, of 4987 Old West Road, were each sentenced to one day in jail and fined $50.

Judge William Ostler said they were free to go but the one day would appear on their criminal record because of the nature of the offence.

Ostler said the accused had committed "idiotic and dangerous acts."

A Saanich police officer testified that the six had travelled by car using three large wrenches to turn the water on.

U and Vic Get Together

Thirteen people have been recruited to a committee which will study the relationship between the University of Victoria and Greater Victoria.

The committee is to hold hearings in January and February and issue a report around the beginning of March.

Its task will be to answer three general questions: What should Uvic be trying to do for society in general? What can the Greater Victoria community do for Uvic? What should the university and the community be doing together?

The study is called Project University, and it's an idea of Alma Mater Society president Robert McDougall.

Committee members from the community include Esquimalt-Saanich MP David Anderson, Oak Bay MLA Scott Wallace, Mayor Courtney Haddock, Charles Barber of the Victoria Youth Council, Clare Copeland, CFAX president Larry Ryan, Victoria Labor Council secretary-treasurer; and W. R. Hunter, principal of Reynolds junior secondary.

And from the University: Trevor Matthews, economics lecturer and assistant to the president, sociologist Dr. Rennie Warburton, board of governors vice-chairman Lloyd McKenzie, Lynn MacKenzie, Gary Zak and John Owen (all students).

Arthur Mayse . . .

THERE WAS A TIME when Greater Victoria School Board took a dour view of trespassers on its turf. The parent with plaintive bleat, the advocate of permissiveness and the seeker after reform could damn well keep their noses out of the educative process.

This approach had its faults. It was both arrogant and narrow. It made no truce with change. But with the final report of an exercise billed as Project Learning to hand, I am wondering whether those boardsmen of old didn't have more basic savvy than the present crop.

What this board did, a year or so ago, was invite a six-committee segment of the public to try its hand at planning the education of the young. According to a board spokesman, the result points the way to a new kind of school for the Seventies.

I hope not. Were I a teacher by profession, I'd hope with even more fervor that the board will be mighty selective in dealing with the recommendations turned in.

Some of these are sensible enough. The drop-out who finds himself thwarted by lack of education should certainly be given a second chance, though not necessarily in the school from which he withdrew.

I don't quarrel unduly with the principal of self-government and internal policing for teachers — a move that should include the right to sock away their pension fund where it will draw a reasonable rate of interest.

The suggestion that school sports should have maximum participation rather than the production of crack athletes as their aim is a good one. Adopted, it could mean fewer kids on the sidelines and more getting in there as participants.

I'm not so sure, though, about much that this stirring of many spoons in education's soup-kettle has produced. Some of the recommendations are unrealistic. Others would reduce the teacher to the role of ineffectual whipping-boy in a reconstructed Tower of Babel.

I have sufficient faith in the young to realize that the world isn't necessarily going to fall apart when the guiding hands that steer its present courses are withdrawn. It may even be a much better dwelling-place.

But I don't really believe that students should be free to choose their teachers, or that school attendance should be optional above elementary level.

These may be delightful concepts, and at age 14, I would have welcomed them.

As it was, an unfeeling school system bent on lacerating my ego and squelching my creative powers gave me no such option. If it had, I'd never have chosen tough. Teacher X, a hard rock who ground at me until a feeble little glimmer of mathematical knowledge penetrated my skull.

I didn't like that teacher much, but thanks to him, I'm not altogether clueless when forced to work out some rudimentary problem that involves figures.

Even in the computerized 70's on which we are now launched, a primitive sense of mathematics is worth having. It helps when some cheating metal monster adds extra dollars to a bill.

Consider too the frightful position of the teacher required to win a yearly popularity contest before he could teach. The child would be his master. His position would be untenable. If he weren't so trapped by circumstance that escape was impossible, better for him to seek a job in which he could at least keep his self-respect.

I believe that education should be open to change in a changing world. I do not believe in the pap course, the down-grading of teacher authority, or freedom of student choice to the point where all that is difficult and distasteful may be sidestepped.

It's nice if the school experience can be pleasant, but what matters much more is that it be applied effectively. If it isn't — and I fail to see how it could be under many of the conditions this report puts forward — the child goes ill prepared into a life that offers precious few concessions.

Mine is a horribly old-fashioned viewpoint. It consorts poorly with the idealized picture of the Gung Ho school where discipline is replaced by "a climate of warmth, co-operation and mutual responsibility" and in which everybody does as he wants.

There are classrooms in which warmth, co-operation and shared responsibility prevail today. But that climate was not achieved through the total permissiveness that reduces education to a farce.

Plowe Wields Torrid Stick In Cat Surge

By ERNIE FEDROUK

TED PLOWE
. . . holds hot hand

With Plowe scoring three goals, the Cougars reeled off their eighth straight home-ice victory Tuesday night at Memorial Arena by defeating Chilliwack Bruins 6-3 before 1,554 fans.

The 20-year-old winger, making up in spades for a slow start, now has scored 10 goals in Victoria's past five games to raise his season's total to 14.

Plowe's scoring streak actually extends to seven straight games if you want to toss in a pair of exhibiton games at Port Alberni and Chemainus.

STRETCH LEAD

Cougars' latest victory moved them three points ahead of Vancouver Centennials in the race for the Coastal Divison lead. The Cats wind up an eight-game home stand Saturday by facing Kamloops Rockets.

Plowe provided most of the lustre to Tuesday's game. The Cougars, who bombed the Bruins 13-0 in their first meeting of the season, turned in a mediocre performance.

That, combined with obvious improvement by Chilliwack, enabled the Bruins to walk out of the Arena with more respectability than the last time.

REGULARS ABSENT

The Cougars went without regulars Randy Bock, Greg Robinson and Jim Lautenslager. In their places, coach Ron Maxwell filled with a line from the junior "B" Cubs.

The junior "B" line of Mark Patterson, Dennis McLean and Ron Poole didn't look out of place, but, by the same token, failed to contribute anything to Cougars' victory.

Victoria's other two lines did all the work. Maxwell was particularly pleased with the strong performance of the Miles-Bruce Cowick-Thomas unit.

Cougar netminder Ed Forsland played despite feeling effects of a cold. He didn't play his best but, against Chilliwack, it didn't matter.

The Bruins, bolstered by the addition of newcomers Norm Poole and Rob Hesketh, looked vastly improved over their first visit to Victoria. They played their positions, cashed in on their limited scoring chances, and seemed flustered only when Cougars fore-checked strongly.

Penticton Pulls Away In Interior

By The Canadian Press

Single-goal margins in both instances gave Penticton Broncos B.C Junior Hockey League victories in games played Tuesday and Remembrance Day.

Penticton, in a game played at Oliver, stormed from behind in the third period Tuesday night for a 6-5 win over Kelowna Buckaroos, who had carried a two-goal lead through most of the game.

And Wednesday night at Kamloops, the Broncos edged the Rockets 2-1 on goals by Fred Parent and Dale Turner — the latter a scoring fluke which occurred when Kamloops goalie Sam Clegg deflected a shot into his own net in trying to keep it out.

Penticton scorers at Oliver were Bob Nicholson with two, Donaldson, Dan Ashman, Rick Taggart and Fred Parent. For Kelowna, it was Gerry Feist, with two, Craig Einfeld, Dan McCarthy and Greg Fox.

Invaders Build Up Eight-Point Lead

Oak Bay Invaders grabbed an eight-point lead in the two-game, total-point Invitational Bowl by downing host Vancouver Delta 21-13 Wednesday in the opening game of the B.C. bantam football final.

Second game of the series is scheduled for 11 a.m. Sunday in Macdonald Park.

Doug Branter opened scoring for Invaders with first-quarter touchdown that was converttd by Christie Sinclare.

Sinclare went on to convert his own second-quarter TD on a quarterback sneak and then add another major in the third quarter which was converted by Marty Glynyk.

Invaders collected the berth and the Norm Fieldgate League championship at the weekend by downing Saanich Chargers 21-19 in the final at Braefoot Park.

NED HARKNESS

DETROIT WRITER PREDICTS CHANGE . . . / . . . ABEL SUPPORTS HARKNESS

Rookie Wing Coach on Way Out?

DETROIT (AP) — It took an awful lot of soul searching before Ned Harkness decided to quit coaching college hockey after 27 years to become coach of Detroit Red Wings.

But already, with the National Hockey League season just five weeks old, the 48-year-old "rookie" has been tabbed by one local newspaper as being on the way out.

Despite the sudden criticism, Sid Abel, the team's general manager, told one reporter Wednesday: "Ned is the coach and will be the coach. Our problem has been that the team hasn't really jelled yet, but it has been showing signs that it can win."

Detroit, going into tonight's game in St. Louis, has a 4-8-2 record for fifth-place in the seven-team NHL East Division.

Harkness has been under fire by a local sportwriter since Sunday's 3-3 tie with Pittsburgh. Bill Brennan, hockey writer for the Detroit News, had several stories of criticism, including one in which he said: "If the Detroit Red Wings are to salvage anything of this National Hockey League season then a coaching change must be made."

Sunday night, before the criticism broke in the paper, Harkness sat calmly behind his office desk and spoke of his new job with the Wings.

"I like it very much," he said. "Mr. Bruce Norris I believe is the finest owner in the NHL. If I didn't believe that I wouldn't be here."

Brennan's criticism indicated that Norris could easily fire Harkness since he fired coach Bill Gadsby last season, without warning, moments before a game.

Harkness said it was very difficult for him to leave Ithaca, N.Y., where he lived while coaching Cornell University for six years. Before that he coached the Rensellaer Polytechnic Institute hockey team for 21 seasons and his over-all record coaching college hockey is an amazing 339-123-9.

What differences are there coaching in the NHL after college?

"The biggest difference is the length of the schedule," said Harkness, who also coached lacrosse teams at RPI and Cornell.

"The NHL schedule is three times as long. You don't get extended practice here because you're playing all the time. In college we could work for three or four days on our problems."

Seals Start to Stir; Canucks Drop Leafs

By The Canadian Press

Franke Selke Jr., general manager of California Golden Seals, foresaw a golden future for his team one night early this season after the Seals had blanked Buffalo Sabres 6-0.

The club was Oakland Seals at the time and the event took place during the National Hockey League's pre-season exhibition schedule.

But the immediate future was dismal for the financially-plagued West-Coast club and a rather bleak picture was painted amid rumors of a possible move to more lucrative centres.

A change in name didn't help. Even brilliant new home uniforms had little effect on the Seals plunge to the NHL's West Division cellar with only two ties to show in their first nine games.

Suddenly, the tides have changed and the new-look Seals are currently the hottest NHL property, winning their next four starts—a club record.

STILL IN CELLAR

While their resurgence has yet to get them out of last place, the Seals are within two points of sixth-place Pittsburgh Penguins and within four of Los Angeles Kings and Minnesota North Stars, tied in fourth.

The North Stars tripped Los Angeles 3-1, Pittsburgh battled New York Rangers to a 3-3 tie, Chicago Black Hawks drubbed Philadelphia Flyers 7-1 and Vancouver Canucks dropped Toronto Maple Leafs 4-2 in other scheduled games.

The only game tonight has Detroit Red Wings visiting St. Louis Blues.

At Oakland, the Canadiens, outshot 16 to 5 in the first period, applied pressure of their own late in the game in an effort to salvage some respect.

FIRST POWER-PLAY GOAL

Minnesota capitalized on a power-play for the first time this year and the occasion seemed to spur them to victory on the strength of first-period goals by Jean-Paul Parise and Jude Drouin at Bloomington, Minn.

The North Stars, who had failed on 41 previous tries this year to take advantage of the manpower edge, finally had their efforts rewarded with Drouin pulling the trigger 31 seconds after the Kings' Ross Lonsberry went off for hooking.

The Penguins were hard-pressed for their tie with third-period goals by Jean Pronovost and Wally Boyer enabling them to overcome a 3-1 Ranger lead in New York. Goals by Dave Balon and Ted Irvine 62 seconds apart in the second period had given the New Yorkers their two-goal cushion.

The Hull brothers, Bobby and Dennis, scored two each as the Black Hawks blistered the Flyers to pad their West Division lead to four points over Philadelphia and St. Louis.

It was the same old story in Toronto where the Leafs dropped their third game of the season to the new franchise from Vanvoucer. Third period goals by Rosaire Paiement, Barry Wilkins and Ray Cullen's second of the game snapped a 1-1 tie.

The Canucks had scored 5-3 and 3-2 wins over Toronto at Vancouver and, with a 4-1 exhibition victory earlier, appear to have the Leafs' number at this stage of the schedule.

JOHN FERGUSON

Ferguson Rejoining Canadiens?

MONTREAL (CP) — John Ferguson said Wednesday night he will meet today with Sam Pollock, general manager of Montreal Canadiens, with an "open mind" toward his possible return to hockey.

"I have an open mind and if the conditions are right, I wouldn't be opposed to playing hockey again," said Ferguson, who retired from active National Hockey League competition last month to enter the clothing business.

Asked if the chances he would make a comeback were any better than the 50-50 proposition he termed it two days ago, Ferguson said:

"No, but I'll listen to Sam and see what he has to say. Conditions . . . well, let's just leave it at that."

If the conditions are favorable, Ferguson said he would head into an intense conditioning course immediately and rejoin the Canadiens "in perhaps three weeks."

Ferguson met with his partners, Nelson Stoll and George Gottlieb for 90 minutes Wednesday night on his return from Laurel, Md., where he attended the Washington D.C. International horse race.

"We went over the pros and cons," said Ferguson. "The only thing that's changed from a month ago is that I have an open mind. It was closed then. I was definitely retiring."

PLANS TO DEMAND salary of $100,000 for 1971 National League baseball season announced by pitcher Ferguson Jenkins (above) have drawn reply from Chicago Cubs. General-manager John Holland said today that "individual records are very fine to have, but winning a pennant is more important." Jenkins has won 20 or more games for the Cubs in four straight seasons.

SHROUD OF MYSTERY

SUBPOENA WAVE HITS NFL CLUBS

By Associated Press

A shroud of mystery hangs today over a wave of federal grand jury subpoenas which have been served on more than half of the National Football League's 26 teams.

NFL officials in New York say they have not been informed of any pending federal legal action. But at least 16 NFL clubs were served with summonses by a federal grand jury in Cleveland to appear with their records, beginning Nov. 17. And at least nine other clubs said they had not been subpoenaed as of today.

Carl Steinhouse, head of the justice department's anti-trust division in Cleveland, refused to comment on the matter and referred all inquiries to justice department headquarters in Washington.

A spokesman for the department in Washington said:

"We know of no case in the works. However, it could be an individual grand jury action."

There were reports that the anti-trust violations by the NFL and that the investigation might have been touched off by complaints by Walter Beach, a former defensive back with Cleveland Browns.

Summoned to appear before the Grand Jury were Denver Broncos, New Orleans Saints, San Francisco '49ers, Detroit Lions, Dallas Cowboys, Cleveland Browns, Minnesota Vikings, Chicago Bears, Baltimore Colts, Pittsburgh Steelers, Cincinnati Bengals, Buffalo Bills, St. Louis Cardinals, Atlanta Falcons and Los Angeles Rams.

At least nine clubs — New York Giants and New York Jets, Philadelphia Eagles, Oakland Raiders, San Diego Chargers, Miami Dolphins, Kansas City Chiefs, Green Bay Packers and Houston Oilers — said no subpoenas had been delivered to them.

Some clubs had specific individuals subpoenaed and others did not.

Jim Finks, general manager of the Vikings, said a U.S. marshal delivered a subpoena instructing the Minnesota club to be represented before the federal grand jury Dec. 7. Finks said he had been ordered to bring "various documents along the lines of contracts, waivers and options."

Titans Trip Hornets To Take First Place

Victoria Titans defeated visiting Mount View Hornets 8-5 Tuesday to vault into a tie for first place in the Inter-high School Rugby League with Claremont.

Reynolds downed visiting Esquimalt 9-3 the same day and on Monday, Claremont romped to a 24-3 triumph over host Oak Bay.

Titans took a 5-0 lead at the half but Rob Mosses scored a try converted by Norm Baker early in the second frame to deadlock the match. Titans scored the winning try three minutes later.

Randy Benn paced Claremont with two trys while single trys were scored by Duane Rycroft, Chuck Shergold, Ron McDonald and Ken Fox. Richard Bing added three converts for Claremont while Colin Stokkeland scored try for Oak Bay.

AROUND OUR SHORES / By PAT DUFOUR

Cal 29 Crashes Racing Scene

For the first time in the Victoria area a Cal 29 took to the racing circuit Sunday when yachts of the Royal Victoria Yacht Club paced it out in a 10-mile race in waters off Sidney.

The 29-foot sloop designed by well-known American marine architect Bill Lapworth, Clare Copeland's Sea Fax, earned herself a creditable second, losing out to Peter Coombs' Doxy II.

Sea Fax, still without her own spinaker, used the one belonging to Jeremy Hewett's 32-foot sloop Picnic.

Finishing after Sea Fax were Walt Sterner's Encore, Gordie English' Saltshaker, Fred Gardiner's Shih Yen, George Dufour's Galenaia II, Cliff Woodcock's Cambria, Stan Jones' Tandem II, Louis Lindholm's Oona, Frank Bush's Concubine, "Sandy" Sanderson's Filey Brig, Roy Denny's T'Solo, Judy Peetz's Bleuet and Bert Buchanan's Lairig Ghru.

Don Lawson's Cubara and John Graeme's Juno led the fleet all the way around the course but were disqualified for failing to round the mark on the second time around.

Fifteen Davidson dinghies were in competition when Royal Vic. "frostbiters" competed at Cadboro Bay Saturday. "Rocky" Rochfort was the winner. In second and third positions were Ted Bowers and George Dufour.

Marion Brown and Jim Williams tied for first spot in the 17-boat El Toro fleet. Timothy Roots finished up in third place.

Henry Pejril won the Sabot competition, Doug Taylor Lee came first in Fireballs and Bill Van Cuylenborg placed first in the planing dinghy section.

Flukey sou'westerlies that died to almost nothing at times prevented five boats from finishing within the time limit when 20 yachts of the Canoe Bay Sailing Club raced a five-mile course off Sidney on Saturday.

The race was won by Merv Britten's Bird of Dawning with Will Jensen's Yogi ending up in second spot.

Stamps Must Pester Ron To Win Final

CALGARY (CP) — To defeat Saskatchewan Roughriders in the Western Football Conference playoffs, Calgary Stampeders "have to contain their rushing attack" and pester quarterback Ron Lancaster.

That is the opinion of middle linebacker Wayne Harris, a 10-year Calgary veteran and a Canadian Football League all-star since 1964.

His theory will be put to the test Saturday afternoon when the teams clash in Regina in the first game of the best-of-three western final. The game, at 2 p.m. CST (noon PST) will be televised over the CBC national network. The second game is scheduled for Calgary next Wednesday.

The Stampeders advanced to the final with a 16-9 win last week over second-place Edmonton Eskimos.

MUST AVOID ERRORS

"We can't make any mistakes against that club and expect to win," said Harris, named Canada's outstanding lineman in 1965 and 1966.

"We'll have to stop their running game as much as possible and try not to let Lancaster get too much time to throw the ball."

Lancaster, who this year became a four-time winner of the WFC's most valuable player award, "can pick a zone apart and is excellent at reading a blitz," says Harris.

The Roughriders, seeking their eighth consecutive win, led the CFL in rushing with 2,672 yards while playing several games without all-star fullback George Reed. Calgary was third with 2,238 yards, 25 behind British Columbia Lions.

Saskatchewan took first place in the West for the third straight year with 14 wins and two defeats. The Roughriders defeated the Stampeders 21-17 and 21-14 in Calgary, but lost 30-0 at home in the first game of the season between the clubs.

New Wrinkles Promised Als By Cat Coach

HAMILTON (CP) — Coach Joe Restic said Wednesday Hamilton Tiger-Cats scurry-type offence will have a few new wrinkles added when the Ticats meet Montreal Alouettes Sunday in the first game of the Eastern Football Conference final.

He said the club's offensive alignment will include "things they won't recognize" and that the over-all attack unit has "really been moving" behind crisp blocking.

Restic feels the Als biggest asset will be the running of Moses Denson, who he considers "one of the best in the Canadian Football League."

However, the Ticats should solve the Montreal passing game that worked so well in the semi-final against Toronto last weekend, he said.

Arcaro Resting After Operation

MAMI (AP) — Former jockey Edlie Arcaro was reported in serious condition but "resting comfortably" early today following heart surgery.

The Vics best Claremont 15-1, 15-12, then downed University of Victoria 15-5, 15-9.

Belmont and Victoria YWCA each won three matches. Belmont defeated Royal Jubilee Hospital 15-5, 15-6 and split with the Y, 3-15, 15-9. YWCA scored a 15-11, 15-4 sweep over Mt. Douglas in action at Vic High.

Croatia Gets Part of Lead

Reds were composed entirely of players under 25 years of age while Whites were all over 25.

Dave Garham (2), Reg Hoole and Ken Wilke scored trys for Reds, who led 14-0 at half-time.

Victoria Riders Top Bike Events

Victoria Motorcycle Club competitors snapped up all the honors Wednesday during the club's annual charity meet for the Good Samaritan Fund at Western Speedway.

Bill Miller, the VMC trials champion, won the first race for machines having an engine capacity of 125 c.c. or under. Rick Russel placed second ahead of Bill Egland.

Thirty riders, including six from Vancouver competed in the event.

Speedy Cabbie Shares In Laurel Victory Run

LAUREL, Md. (AP) — The key ride in the United States' victory in the 19th running of the Washington, D.C., International horse race was the one jockey Jorge Velasquez took in a taxi.

"Jorge has confidence in the horse and the horse feels it," Elliott Burch, trainer of winner Fort Marcy had said before the $150,000 race at Laurel Tuesday.

But, except for a cabbie, Velasquez would not have a chance to display that winning confidence.

"He was flying, I'm going to give him a good tip," Velasquez said of the cabbie who got him to Laurel race course one minute before a steward's deadline that would have prevented him from riding and cost him $10,000, his percentage of the first money of $100,000.

Fort Marcy, a six-year-old gelding owned by Paul Mellon, won the 1½-mile International over a soft turf course in the rain by a length over Miss Dan II, a three-year-old filly from France.

The winner, giving the United States its ninth International victory and first since he won in 1967, took the lead on the final turn and withstood Miss Dan II by a length in the slow time in 2:42 4-5.

Bacuco of Italy was third, another five lengths back and a nose in front of the other U.S. representative, Howard B. Keck's Fiddle Isle.

Canada's Franfeluche, owned by Jean-Louis Levesque of Montreal and ridden by Ron Turcotte of Grand Falls, N.B., finished seventh.

If the race was slow, the Velasquez cab ride from Baltimore's Friendship International Airport to Laurel wasn't—15 miles in less than 15 minutes.

Velasquez and Turcotte sat at New York's Laguardia Airport for an hour and 15 minutes before weather permitted their plane to take off.

Once they landed in Baltimore, the unknown cabbie took over and got the two jockeys to Laurel about 3:10 p.m. EST, 32 minutes before the race and just one minute before the stewards' deadline for their arrival.

Turcotte said he waited until Wednesday to come to Laurel because he had to take his two children to a hospital to have their tonsils out. Velasquez said he waited because he didn't anticipate any difficulties.

TOPS $1,000,000

Fort Marcy's second International victory brought his earnings to $1,043,230 and put him eighth on the all-time earnings list.

Sent off as the even-money favorite by the crowd of 28,764, Fort Marcy returned $4.20, $3 and $2.60. Miss Dan II paid $6.80 and $4.80 and outsider Bucuco was $7.40 to show.

Completing the order of finish after Fiddle Isle, were Lorenzaccio of England, Cenador of Venezuela, Franfeluche, Cortez II of West Germany, Sol de Noche of Uruguay and Beaugency of France.

Regina's Offense Routs Easterners

REGINA (CP) — Regina Rams combined tough blocking and hard rushing to defeat Burlington, Ont., Braves 39-8 Wednesday in the sudden-death Canadian junior football championship final and stretch to five years the string of western wins.

"Offensive blocking was the whole key to the game," said Rams coach Gordon Currie of the Western Canada junior football champion. Good line play opened holes through which Rick Ackerman and Don Schmidt rushed for big gains against the Braves.

Fullback Ackerman carried 33 times for 191 yards and two touchdowns and Schmidt rushed 20 times for 117 yards and two touchdowns as the Rams relied heavily on the ground attack to overpower the Eastern Canada representatives before a crowd of 10,500.

The Rams started the string of western wins in 1966 when they beat Montreal Notre Dame de Grace to win the Leader-Post Trophy, awarded annually to the top junior team in Canada. Edmonton Wildcats took the cup in 1967 and Saskatoon Hilltops won in 1968 and 1969.

Burlington lost to Edmonton three years ago. Coached by former Canadian Football League quarterback Bernie Custis, they ran up a 15-game winning streak this year and averaged nearly 44 points a game offensively, while giving up an average 4.2 to opponents.

BOWLER OF WEEK

Blazing finish has propelled Ernie Moon back into victory circle of Times Bowler-of-the-Week competition. After starting with scores of 255 and 257, Ernie mauled maples for final game of 418 for 930 series that give him men's fivepin award in fifth week of eighth annual contest. Moon, who had missed list of winners in past two seasons, was bowling in Monday Classic League at Gibson's Bowladrome.

Sweep of Honors By VTC Runners

Alex Stuart won the men's race with a time of 10.12 minutes over the two-mile course.

Clubmates Rob Ross (10:17) and Al Weicker (10:35) finished second and third.

Wendy Thompson won the distaff race over the same course with a 11:38 minute clocking, followed by Debbie Reid (13:10) and Bunny Bilne (13:42).

Mutuel Tickets

Unclaimed mutuel tickets from the thoroughbred race meeting at Sandown Park may be mailed to the B.C. Jockey Club, Exhibition Park, Vancouver 6, B.C. for payment, it was announced Wednesday by Jockey Club officials.

Support Better Than Expected But 'Perhaps' Is Word for '71

By BILL WALKER

The thoroughbred racing season came to a close at Sandown Park on Remembrance Day — and perhaps significantly, it may well be a day to remember.

For it is by no means certain that a full thoroughbred meeting will be held here again next fall. By the same token, it is not certain that there won't be one either.

A B.C. Jockey Club spokesman said "nothing has been decided about next year. We will have to analyze the situation, and make our decision then.

"Besides," he added, "it looks like there will be a combined quarter-horse and thoroughbred meeting here the last week in July and the first week in August, and that may have a bearing on our decision."

"As it is," said Merv Peters, director of racing and presiding steward, "the support we received was better than we had expected, and for that we are grateful. However, in light of the entire operation, we will have to study the results before we make a definite commitment."

QUARTER-HORSE PLANS

It is known that the Vancouver Island Quarter-Horse Racing Association has made application to the B.C Jockey Club to stage a combined 12-day meeting here in the summer, but the deal has not yet been finalized.

If it does come about, there would be thoroughbred and quarter-horse races. And this may affect the staging of a full thoroughbred meeting here later in the season.

This year, the 15-day Sandown meeting started on Oct. 17, the latest it has ever begun, and wound up Wednesday with the biggest crowd, 3,671.

The mutuel handle was $148,058 bringing the total for the meeting to $1,428,921 or a daily average of $95,261. This compares with an average of $116,000 in 1967, the last year that a fall meeting was held here. That year, the meeting began in mid-September and ended on Thanksgiving Day.

CHARLIE CHERI WINS

Feature of the final day Wednesday was the victory by Mrs. Jessie Lochead's five-year-old bay horse Charlie Cheri in the Vancouver Island championship at one mile.

Ridden by veteran Charlie Ulrich, Charlie Cheri won by a short head over Saint Mungo in a thrilling stretch drive. Charlie Cheri, the favorite, paid $4.80, $3.80 and $2.40.

It was the second handicap win of the meeting for Charlie Cheri. Earlier he had won the Times Handicap at six and one-half furlongs after beging beaten a nose by Saint Mungo in the Percy Fox Memorial.

LEADING RIDER

Arnold ended up as the leading rider of the meeting with 23, and 94 for the year. His second on Wednesday significantly came in the final race on the final horse in the final program, V. Celebrate ($10.50), who combined with Alfo for a quinella of $23.10.

Pleeze a Crowd, a four-year-old bay gelding, also saw his efforts crowned with success. He was the busiest of all horses at Sandown, running no less than nine times.

Wednesday he won his second of the meeting, paying $7.90.

Winner of his last start at Exhibition Park, Cowardly Lion went to the post seven times here, won five, his fifth on Wednesday, placed second once and was once out of the money. In his final win he paid $5.80 and combined with Horrify for an exacto of $52.80.

Otherwise the future is up in the air, and will remain that way until the directors of the B.C. Jockey Club render their decision after their analysis of the overall operation.

Wednesday's results on Page 21.

VIKING VIEWS

By MARK HUME

Among the more frightening aspects on the sports scene this week is a rumble via the grapevine that Victoria Rugby Union referees have compiled a black list of "dirty" players.

The list is still supposed to be a well-kept secret, but every team in the league has been warned to curb its own mafiosi. Only trouble is that the outlawed players aren't considered as "dirty" by anyone but the referees who named them to the list, and most have never been warned by the officials of their crimes.

Head coach of the Vikings, Dave Docherty, just shook his head when asked to comment on the two Viking stars scheduled for banishment if they sneeze at the wrong time in future games.

"I can't understand why anyone would think such a list necessary," he said, "We haven't had a dirty game this year. It just doesn't make sense."

★ ★ ★

It would be unfair to name the Vikings listed as "dirty", without naming the Norsemen players on the list, the Saxon players on the list and, believe it or not, the names of players representing every club in the Victoria Rugby Union leauges, both first and second division.

People who know the rugby scene reject outright the inclusion of names of the two Vikings on the list, and say that even if there was justification for a black list, there would still not be any reason for those players to be included on it.

Surprisingly, though, the two university representatives — Howard Gerwing, and Ray Calton — present at the Rugby Union meeting, when head referee Jim Peyton unveiled the black list, failed to speak out on behalf of their players.

In defence of his silence at the meeting, Gerwing said he kept quiet for two reasons.

"I wanted to see who would support Peyton, and I was really quite angry and I wanted frontation."

The confrontation was avoided, and Peyton found that he got little support for the list, said Gerwing.

"I think that Mr. Peyton realizes that the list would not be a good thing, and I don't think he'll bring it up again."

The referees may not mention a black list again, but that doesn't mean that they won't have one.

Just let this be said: If there is to be a list of players teetering on the brink of game expulsion, there should also be a black list of referees who, afriad or careless of invoking law 26 — which deals with rough and dirty play — consistently permit games to get out of hand before trying to bring things under control.

Three Slated To Play Off For Trophy

Three players finished with net 68s Wednesday to wind up in a threeway deadlock for first place in the annual Remembrance Day tournament at Uplands Golf Club and will return to the same course next Sunday for a playoff.

Slated to compete in the 18-hole playoff to decide who will take possession of the tournament trophy are J. Koster (72-4—68) from Sooke's Broome Hill course, Glen Meadows swinger G. McGurk (86-18—68) and G. Harrison (83-15—68) of Uplands.

One stroke off the pace in fourth place was Viv Hicks (79-10—69) of Uplands.

Cedar Hill's Greg Barnes fired a two-over-par 72 to take low gross honors with Frank Scroggs (75) of Uplands, in the second spot, one shot ahead of D. Maftechuk, Colwood, and Dave Zabel, Uplands.

Special prizes for nine-hole scores were awarded to Art Streight, Fred Switzer, Maftechuk and Zabel.

Joe Louis Likes Foster's Chances

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — Joe Louis, former world heavyweight champion, predicted Wednesday that Bob Foster, world light heavyweight titleholder, will defeat heavyweight champion Joe Frazier in their fight at Detroit Nov. 18.

Louis made the forecast in a round-robin telephone call with the two fighters and with heavyweights Boone Kirkman and George Foreman.

The Kirkman-Foreman fight will be in Madison Square Garden at New York next Wednesday at a time prior to the Foster-Frazier engagement.

Louis also expressed the opinion that Foreman would beat Kirkman.

Gorge Captures Cup

Reliable Dan Henry scored two goals and Bob Bissop added the other for Gorge, which led 2-0 at the half.

Moen Doubtful Starter As Vikings Eye Crown

Victoria's Vikings may be missing their leading scorer when play opens Friday in the first national collegiate soccer championship tournament at York University in Toronto.

Barry Moen will accompany the Vikings when they leave Thursday, but is listed as a "doubtful starter" for Friday's first-round match against McMaster.

Laurentian, Memorial and Loyola are other schools seeking the Canadian crown.

Moen, who sparked Vikings to the Western title by scoring 11 goals in five matches, suffered a suspected skull fracture and concussion when injured in Vikings' 1-0 District League victory over Kickers last Sunday.

Vikings, Western Canada Intercollegiate Athletic Association champions for the past three years, were assured of a trip east when the B.C. Amateur Sports Council provided Uvic with a $2,500 grant.

Following is the draw:

FRIDAY

11:30 a.m. — Victoria vs. McMaster.
2 p.m. — Laurentian vs Memorial.

SATURDAY

2 p.m. — Game 1 loser vs Game 2 loser.

SUNDAY

DEMPSEY'S SHOE A SLEDGEHAMMER?

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — The chairman of the competition committee of the National Football League said Wednesday he will again protest the use of the special shoe which New Orleans' Tom Dempsey used to kick a record 63-yard field goal in defeating Detroit Sunday.

Tex Schramm, president and general manager of Dallas Cowboys, said: "I believe he should use the same surface to meet the ball that other kickers use."

Dempsey wears a specially-designed shoe costing $200 because he has only a nub of a right foot.

"A year ago the league took action that kicking shoes must be of stock manufacture for retail sale," Schramm said. "But then someone had the rule changed to approve Dempsey's shoe."

Schramm said "his (Dempsey's) kicking surface is like the head of a golf club with a sledgehammer surface."

Cricket Great, Lock Retiring

PERTH, Australia (AP) — Tony Lock, former England spin bowler, has announced his retirement from cricket after 25 years.

The veteran of 49 tests for England said today: "Cricket has become part of my life and it won't be easy living without it. The trouble is nobody—not even my wife—believes me. But it is final and official."

At 41, Lock is one of the greatest lefthand spinners cricket has seen. He took 174 wickets for England in tests and has passed the 300-wicket mark.

Boog Ends Birds' Freeze

NEW YORK (AP) — Big Boog Powell, the slugging first baseman who led Baltimore to its third world championship in five years, was named the American League's Most Valuable Player for the 1970 baseball season Tuesday.

Powell, runner-up to Minnesota's Harmon Killebrew in the 1969 MVP balloting by the Baseball Writers Association of America, won handily this time over the Twins' Tony Oliva to give the Orioles their first individual award of the year.

Powell, 29, provided a major share of the punch in the Orioles' Eastern Division runaway, batting .297, with 35 homers and 114 runs batted in.

"I didn't think I'd be this excited," Powell said when told of the award at his South Miami, Fla., winter home. "I'm certainly happy. It's by far the biggest thing that's happened to me. As they say, this is where it's at."

IN MUSEUM BASEMENT

Love Finds Aphrodite

By ALFRED FRIENDLY

LONDON (WP) — The announcement by American archeologist Iris Love that she discovered the head of Praxiteles' famous statue of Aphrodite mouldering in the basment of the British Museum was treated Monday with appropriate lip-pursing reserve by the experts of that institution.

Professor Love, 33 and pretty enough to have served herself in the goddess' entourage, revealed her news in New York last week. For several seasons she has been digging at Cnidus, in southwestern Turkey, the site of a temple of the goddess of love and of the renowned Fourth Century B.C. statue. The statue was much written about by ancient authors and was copied at least 50 times by both later Greek and Roman sculptors. Many of their renditions still survive in European museums.

Miss Love said she found the much-battered remnant in the museum last spring when she was looking over the booty from Cnidus brought to London in 350 crates in 1858 by the British archeologist Sir Charles Newton.

★ ★ ★

Last year Miss Love claimed to have found a huge block near the temple site itself. With partial words that read "nude" and "Aph."

She conjectured that the inscription was erected to honor the famous sculptor and to direct tourists to his masterpiece. At the time, the figure was recognized as an artistic triumph but appeared scandalous to the good citizens because of its unrelieved nudity.

The head in the British Museum's cellars is minus nose, mouth and back of the skull. But on seeing it, Miss Love says she screamed, "It's here, it's here." She said she knew it was the original by its remarkable "ganoisis," the high polish the Greek sculptors have to their originals to make marble look like skin, but which copyists did not duplicate on their renditions. She claims also to have checked the proportions against many of the ancient copies and to have found the relative dimensions exact.

The difficulty of making a positive identification one way or the other, museum experts observe is the difficulty of proving a negative. You can't say it isn't the original. But neither can you prove it isn't a copy.

★ ★ ★

One expert at the University of London Institute of Archeology points to the fact that Sir Charles Newton's find of the head was at the Temple of Demeter, a good mile away from the temple of Aphrodite. He though the odds were on the side that the head was a copy and not the original. Other archeologists have guessed it might be the head of a statue to Persephone, Demeter's daughter.

"I don't think Professor Love is deliberately fooling the public," one specialist said, "but she may be fooling herself."

British Museum officials are miffed — although, as befits their venerable institution, politely so — at the suggestion that the head has lain disregarded all these years. In fact, it has been catalogued and much studied over the years. There has been no doubt that it, as well as tons of other marble fragments in the museum basement diligently shipped to London by British archeologists and explorers during two centuries, is a splendid piece.

Archeologists, whose calling one of the most eminent of them once described as "not a profession but a vendetta," are also annoyed at Miss Love's habit of announcing her discoveries to press conferences rather than, as the scholarly protocol favors, in a specialist journal.

BATTERED STONE HEAD which is believed to be that of the nude Aphrodite of Cnidus by Praxiteles, once held to be the most beautiful statue in the world, is examined by Reynold Higgins, deputy head of Greek and Roman antiques at the British Museum in London. The head was found by American archeologist Iris C. Love in the museum's basement. (AP Wirephoto.)

Island Telephone Expansion Set

Expansion of telephone services on Vancouer Island in its 1971 program will cost $17.4 million, B.C. Telephone Co. said Tuesday.

A total $105.7 million will be spent throughout the province, plus $7 million in BCT's subsidiary Okanagan Telephone Co.

Additional switching, distribution and transmission facilities, with supporting customer equipment, will be provided in the total outlay, of which $13.5 million will be spent on underground cable installations.

VICTORIA PROJECT

The Victoria district will benefit by $875,000 in underground work, compared with $1.2 million in Richmond area, and more than $680,000 in New Westminster.

Most of the spending will be for increased capacity and better quality in local and long distance switching-distribution systems.

The greater part of the budget is allocated to the company's coastal division, including Vancouver and the lower mainland, where more than half of the million-plus telephones of B.C. are situated. Expansion in this area will cost $47 million.

OTHER AREAS

In the other areas, not counting the island, new programs will cost $41.3 million, broken down: northern division $13.3 million; interior division (East Kootenay to Bella Coola) $14.5 million; equipment such as new telephones $13.5 million.

Part of a 10-year program which will require more than $1 billion in allocations, the 1971 program follows heavy expenditure this year amounting to $93 million by Dec. 31.

They Want Adventure to 'Escape Suburbia'

LONDON (UPI) — Erick Shipton was crossing a dangerous pass high in an unexplored range of the Himalayas when he saw something in the snow that is still baffling scientists 19 years later.

On the other side of the pass, at a height of 18,000 feet, there was a long line of fresh tracks on a glacier. Someone — or was it something? — with large, human-like feet, the five toes clearly visible, has passed that way no more than two hours before.

★ ★ ★

"Yeti!" He said — the native word for the real or mythical beast popularly known as the abominable snowman.

Until the moment Shipton was reminded of the 1951 incident in an interview in the twilight calm of the library of the Royal Geographical Society, the famous explorer had been absorbed in another theme. This was that the average man and woman, depressed by "encroaching suburbia," was now beginning to seek adventure rather than rest and relaxation on holidays.

"They go to the North Pole, to the Galapagos Islands, why I've taken a group to Mt. Everest itself — just ordinary tourists — and in a month or so I'm escorting another party to Annapurna, a great mountain in the central part of Nepal," Shipton said.

In a sense these are expeditions even though they don't cover any new ground. The enthusiasm that greets any new offer of an adventurous holiday is an example of the change in the way people are thinking these days. In the 1920s and 1930s they would ask, why do you want to climb that mountain? Why do you want to go to the North Pole?

"Now no one asks that. No one questions why Alex Rose, an English greengrocer, would want to sail around the world. Many, many people now have the same urge to escape."

Shipton has always had it which is why, at 63, he is restless and rootless, his marriage broken up, still journeying to the far and untrammeled places, as he relates in his new and fascinating autobiography, This Untravelled World (Scribner's).

Taking tourists to the base camp on Everest from which he set out to become the first European ever to look into the west valley gave him a twinge, but his charges had been so awed by the world's highest peak towering unbelievably above them that he took pleasure in their enjoyment.

"So it's 19 years since the Yeti tracks," he mused. "Well it isn't hard to refresh my memory because Dr. John Napier (director of the unit of primate biology at Queen Elizabeth College) was over the other day and cross-examined me about the photpgraphs I took. He was tough but fair and open-minded."

★ ★ ★

(Napier, who is doing a book on the subject, refused to say what he had concluded from the talk but said he was impressed with Shipton as a man.)

After they saw the footprints converging from the glacier to the route they were taking that November day in 1951, Shipton and another member of the Mt. Everest expedition, then mapping the route followed by the successful British conquest of the mountain two years later, carefully examined the spoor. They knew the normal tracks one might encounter in the Himalayas.

But this was not made by a bear nor a Langur monkey. Whoever or whatever made those tracks had feet 12 inches long and five inches wide. There was a big, rounded toe, projecting a bit to one side; the next toe was well separated from this and the other three small toes were grouped closely together.

They followed the tracks for a mile or so. On the edge of several small crevasses they could see clearly where the toes had been dug in to keep the trackmaker from slipping back as it jumped across. Shipton took a series of photographs.

"There's no doubt these pictures perplexed the experts," he said. "I was shaken myself, I'd been a skeptic like anyone else. But now I became convinced, particularly the unmistakeable evidence of the toes, of the existence of a large, apelike creature either unknown to science or at leaset not included in the known Fauna of Central Asia.

Shipton said the tracks he saw could be those of a barefoot man, "if one can postulate a barefoot man walking in snow at 18,000 feet."

★ ★ ★

Why have there been so few noteworthy reports of the Yeti?

"It's probably nocturnal and preys on the tailless Tibetan rat, wild goats and sheep," he said. "You can travel for a long time in the jungles of India and never see a tiger — which doesn't mean they don't exist. The lack of sightings in that vast, almost inaccessible and inhospitable area doesn't surprise me."

Shipton does not agree with those who say it is "prostituting" places sacred to explorers to take tourists there. "The Japanese are going to build a hotel at Everest," he said. "And why not? It's a big world and a helluva lot of it is still completely unspoiled if not completely unknown."

Ship Firm Faces Strike

VANCOUVER (CP)—A vote in favor of strike action was taken Wednesday by crew members employed by Northland Navigation Co. Ltd., which runs a coastal freight and passenger service in British Columbia waters.

However, officials of the Seafarers' International Union and the Canadian Broterhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers said there are no immediate plans for a strike and that further contract talks are scheduled for today.

The contracts of the two unions expired last Dec. 31. They had originally sought an increase of $175 monthly over two years on a present base rate for seamen of $497.

Approximately 80 crew members are involved.

You see, Arnold's portable FM/AM radio has a pop-up TV in it.

We have succeeded in pulling a particularly interesting upstaging caper: A portable radio with a pop-up, honest-to goodness television.

Goes anywhere. On battery or house current. And it delivers a great black and white picture, as well as great FM/AM music.

This innovation popped-up at our TV factory. Where we make TV's ranging from 1½ inches to 20 inches in screen size. The 1½-inch one is the world's smallest TV. Sort of like a wrist-watch.

You've got the idea now. We become very involved in making TV's.

And we make them in all kinds of combinations. Some with FM/AM radios. Some with clocks. Even portable TV's with batteries inside so you can take them anywhere.

And as features go . . . we don't skimp. Which explains our slide lever controls for precision adjusting. Speed-o-Vision for instant sound and picture —so the team doesn't score while your TV is warming up. And a few other goodies like dark-tinted screens and direct vision tubes for better viewing.

So go to any Panasonic dealer and ask to see our TV's.

Welfare System Faces Drastic Change If Three Senators Get Their Way

TORONTO (CP) — Last year, Senator Herbert Sparrow changed from a neatly-pressed business suit into baggy pants and shuffled aimlessly through Vancouver's skid road district for a look at life on the other side of the tracks.

Senator Sparrow, a farmer-businessman from Saskatchewan with a chain of takeout restaurants, is a member of the Senate poverty committee. He says the experience "was an eye opener."

Senator Chesley Carter of Newfoundland and Muriel Fergusson of New Brunswick are also members of the poverty committee. The three come from widely differing backgrounds but they hold a common belief—the welfare system must be changed, drastically.

They talked of their experiences while serving on the committee in interviews published today by The Globe and Mail.

The Saskatchewan senator started out with 55 cents in his pocket. Along the way he bought a bottle of bay rum—a shaving lotion with volatile alcoholic content that is a favorite of the West Coast city's down-and-outers.

DIDN'T LIKE TASTE

He said in an interview he didn't like the taste, but drank some anyway. It cost him 50 cents. With the remaining nickel, Senator Sparrow bought two cigarettes, and sat smoking and talking with some of the people who know all about poverty.

"They were withdrawn. They feel unwanted, rejected. The biggest single problem is alcoholism, but some can be salvaged. I found the experience a real eye-opener."

Despite the deep feeling of despair the experience left him with, Senator Sparrow said the worst conditions he saw anywhere were in two jails in Prince Edward Island.

Conditions were so bad that he described the jails as "an indication of a sick, sick society."

The 40-year-old senator from North Battleford, Sask., said the biggest hurdle in beating poverty is the attitude towards the problem held by most Canadians.

If hard facts appeal to Canadians, the people must be told that it is cheaper in the long run to pay money to get a man off welfare than keep him on it the rest of his life.

Senator Carter is 68 and an educationist by profession. He sees the schools as a major tool in the fight against poverty—as well as a millstone around the necks of the poor.

"The educational system contributes to poverty and this applies right across the country," he said. "It fails to answer why some people fail in life."

Schools must stress communication because the lack of it is a symptom of poverty, said the Newfoundland senator.

"Social workers can't communicate with the people they're trying to help and the poor can't communicate with them.

"The children are handicapped because the parents aren't interested in education. The school curriculum meets middle class requirements. The school books don't talk about the poor child and what he is worth—it's materialistic standard all along.

"Even the teachers won't teach in slum areas because they feel there is a loss of prestige and because the children are poorly disciplined."

She went twice to visit people in the slums of Halifax and to hear in-person complaints about government-sponsored housing.

Mrs. Fergusson said she was told by friends before she joined the committee that there was no real poverty in Canada, and "I was appalled when we started our cross-country tour and people yelled at us."

New Liquor Watchman 'Tough'

TORONTO (CP) — Word has spread among Ontario restaurant operators that the province's new chief liquor policeman is tough.

A former Sunday school teacher who believes that alcohol caused the fall of Rome and Alexander the Great, James Mackey, new boss of the liquor licence board, has said liquor laws will be "strictly enforced."

A look at his first 68 days in office shows that the former police chief of Metropolitan Toronto, who admits to "one drink a year," means it.

Since he took over the post, eight licences have been suspended, about 20 warnings issued, four beermaids in a Hamilton pub fired and Oktoberfest posters in Kitchener banned because they showed a smiling girl carrying mugs of beer.

In four separate disciplinary sessions over 22 days, he temporarily lifted the licences of two Kenora pubs, three Windsor clubs, a Canadian Legion branch in Mitchell and two Toronto pubs for either permitting drunkenness or failing to serve meals with drinks in dining lounges.

The total is more than half the number issued by Judge Tyrie Robb in the whole of 1968.

Under provincial liquor regulations, the board can seize any document and check into any backgrounds or conduct when expedient for investigation.

Once charged, an operator has no opportunity to cross-examine the inspector making the charge, and if he loses his licence has no right to appeal.

Mao, Lin to Be Given New Set of Titles

MAO
. . . new title, same man

HONG KONG (WP) — China will abolish the post of chief of state and give new titles to party chairman Mao and his designated successor Lin Piao, according to a draft of the new Chinese state constitution published here.

Under the new constitution, it will be government policy that "the most fundamental right and duty" of China's people is to support Mao and Lin.

In naming Mao and Lin, as well as in much of the language used throughout the draft, it followed the pattern set by the Communist party constitution which was issued last year.

The proposed draft was made public by Taiwan's official central news agency which apparently obtained it from intelligence channels.

Reports that a draft constitution was circulating within the Chinese administrative structure have been increasingly frequent in recent weeks, but no text of the document has surfaced outside China until now.

Analysts here could not confirm the document's authenticity, but they believe there is no internal evidence in the text to indicate it is a fabrication.

If the draft is adopted when China finally succeeds in convening a National People's Congress, there will be no new chief of state to succeed Liu Shao-chi who was purged as the arch villain during the cultural revolution.

The posts of chief of state and deputy chief of state will be abolished and the government's highest official will be the premier who heads China's state council. Chou En-lai is presently premier, but he is not named in the constitution.

The new draft spells out that the choice of the premier will depend on the recommendation of the Communist party central committee. In this and other articles stressing party superiority over the government apparatus, the new constitution is simply putting into writing long-established practices.

By eliminating the chief of state, China solved a problem that had kept analysts here arguing during recent months. After the glorification of Mao that accompanied the cultural revolution and still continues, it seemed unlikely that Mao would want to see another man given the prominence that would automatically attach to the head of state.

Therefore, many analysts were betting that Mao himself would assume the post. The argument against this was that Mao, who is almost 77, would not want to take on all ceremonial duties of the office.

Mao's additional titles under the draft constitution will make him head of the proletarian dictatorship and the supreme commander of the armed forces. Lin will become deputy commander of the armed forces. The two new army titles were first used by commentators on the National Day ceremonies last October 1.

Taiwan's news agency reported that the draft constitution was approved on September 6 at the plenary meeting of the Communist party central committee. Before it can be officially issued, it must get the rubber-stamp approval of the National People's Congress, in theory the highest state organ, but actually an unwieldly assembly controlled by party leadership.

China's current constitution was promulgated in 1954 and its first article describes the nation as "a people's democratic state." that term from one of Mao's articles is to be abandoned in favor of "a proletarian dictatorship" in which "Mao Tse-tung thought is the guiding principle for all work of the people of the whole country."

The reference to Mao's thought, like the reference to Mao himself, is not part of the present constitution.

The introductory 15 articles of the constitution on "general principles" include the phrases which have become the catchwords of official Chinese rhetoric. The three-part ruling combination of the army, cadres and workers is officially endorsed. The state is charged with promoting production and promoting "preparations for war" while firmly "grasping revolution."

★ ★ ★

China's new constitution does not name either of her major enemies — the United States and the Soviet Union. But, it refers to them by their standard Peking euphemisms and says that the army must "guard against subversion and aggression from imperialism, social-imperialism and their running dogs."

The proposed constitution has only 30 articles compared to 106 in the present document. However, in several cases, language from two or more existing articles has been slightly abridged and combined into one section.

The most striking truncation is the elimination of all the articles that dealt with the role of the chief of state.

The section on China's legal system is also dramatically shorter in the new draft. All reference to the "people's procuratorates," a kind of inspectorate modelled on the Soviet system, has been dropped.

More interesting to analysts here was the omission of the repeated statements in the existing constitution that the courts are governed by the law. Instead, the new draft says the courts report to the government congresses at each level.

One statement that was not changed from the present constitution to the new draft was the statement that is now a popular slogan with American radical groups: "All power belongs to the people."

Free Legal Clinic Practical Experiment

EDMONTON (CP) — Law students at the University of Alberta are getting a chance to see how the law affects people.

The vehicle is an office in the low-income Boyle Street district on the edge of Edmonton's downtown area where law students are offering basic legal advice to those who cannot afford a lawyer or do not qualify for provincial legal aid.

"The students have a chance to see how the law affects people, then discuss it with one another," an organizer said.

Citizens come to the students with problems including tax matters, criminal law, domestic relations, immigration and landlord-tenant disputes.

An organizer said one of the problems is money — the students would like some guaranteed source of support so they would known how much money they have to operate.

Currently funds for incidentals come out of their own pockets. Various sources help out — one pays the rent and another the telephone.

"But when something unexpected comes up, we have to scramble," an organizer said.

Although the project does not receive financial aid from the faculty, it has almost unanimous moral support.

This year 100 students applied for the plan's 35 vacancies. The number of students involved is kept to a reasonable number so "everyone isn't running around not knowing what the other is doing."

During the summer the students get four months of intensive work and during the school term each helps out for two hours once every two weeks.

Libya Puts Britain Over Barrel

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Libya is threatening to withdraw the huge currency exchange holdings it has deposited in Britain if arms talks between the two countries in London break down, diplomatic sources reported today.

The International Monetary Fund says Libya has more than $1,500 million in foreign exchange holdings, most of which is believed held in Britain.

Libyan leaders believe its withdrawal might have a serious effect on the strength of the pound sterling.

Libya wants the 200 Chieftain tanks Britain promised to supply to the government of King Idris before he was overthrown in September, 1969. Britain has accepted a $21.6 million down payment but wants Libya to guarantee that it will use the tanks only for self-defence.

Libya has told Britain frankly that it would participate on Egypt's side if hostilities are resumed in the Middle East.

Deputy Premier Abdel Salam Jaloud, who heads the Libyan delegation to the arms talks, returned to Tripoli last week for further consultations.

VOTE ON CHINA in the United Nations in 1969, shown in chart above, was 48 nations in favor of the Communist country's admission to the world organization, 56 opposed and 21 including Canada and Italy, abstaining. (AP Newsmap).

BID FOR U.N. MEMBERSHIP

China Isolationism Ending

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — All the evidence indicates that Communist China is trying to come out of its isolationist shell and establish normal relations with other nations in the world. But after years marked by mutual lack of trust, the task is not going to be easy for the Red giant, and this year —once again—she is expected to be rejected for membership in the United Nations.

In last year's vote, 48 members of the United Nations favored letting down the barriers for Red China — four more than the previous year. Fifty-six opposed, two fewer than in 1968; and there were 21 abstentions, a drop of two from the year before.

Two of the nations that abstained from the balloting last year were Italy and Belgium, both of which had been staunch U.S. allies in opposing admission for Red China. Italy has now recognized Peking.

Belgium is believed to be a bit closer to agreement with Red China on recognition now that Canada has announced it will exchange ambassadors with the mainland government and withdraw diplomatic recognition from the Taipei government of Nationalist China.

One of the big stumbling blocks in the way of a diplomatic exchange between Canada and Red China in the past was believed to be Canada's attitude toward Communist Chinese membership in the United Nations. Now that diplomatic recognition is a reality, it's not yet known just how Canada will vote this year on the China question.

In addition to the votes of Belgium and Canada, other question marks this year are the votes of Bolivia, Peru and Chile, all of which have demonstrated marked swings to the left during the past year. In last year's balloting, Bolivia and Peru were opposed to Red Chinese admission, and Chile abstained.

In the first vote ever taken on the issue, in 1950, admission for Communist China was rejected by a vote of 33 to 6. The closest was in 1965, when the vote was a 47-47 tie.

As it did last year, the United States is prepared to sponsor a resolution which would declare the issue important enough to require a two-thirds majority for approval. That resolution, which could prove critical eventually in barring Communist China from admission to the world body, was approved last year by a vote of 71-38 with four abstentions.

NEW LOWER PHOSPHATE
GETS THE BIG OK!

OK

says Mrs. F. Dunfield of Vancouver, B.C.

We gave Mrs. Dunfield an advanced pack of new lower phosphate "all", reformulated with substitute materials. Here's what she had to say about it:

"I first started using "all" when we lived in the interior of B.C. The water was hard there and "all" gave me very satisfactory results. Also the concentrated action of "all" made it easier on my automatic washer. I have used "all" regularly since. The new low-phosphate "all" seems to wash just as well and is O.K. by me."

This is just the beginning. Lever research will continue to try to find ways to use substitute materials to lower phosphate levels while maintaining "all's" high quality performance.

Mercury Pollution Issue Looms Large in America

By The Associated Press

When the Canadian government banned the sale of fish caught in Lake St. Clair earlier this year and the Michigan state government followed the example a few days later, it was only the beginning of national attention paid to what seemed a brand-new menace that just appeared suddenly.

The menace was mercury pollution, and it did not appear suddenly. Studies hurriedly made since the initial mercury pollution scare have show that of the 50 states at least 33 face the prospect of stopping the flow of the liquid metal into their environments.

A full-blown case of mercury poisoning can have gruesome effects. In the only documented case of mercury poisoning in this country, a New Mexico family ate pork from pigs which had eaten grain which had been treated accidentialy with a mercury compound. Two children in the family lost their vision and lay in comas for months.

ATTACKS ORGANS

Mercury attacks certain internal organs and the brain and can cause paralysis and even insanity in addition to blindness. Recent Swedish studies indicate it can cause abortions and deformed infants as well.

The concentrations of mercury in Lake St. Clair were discovered by a Swedish chemist who was doing graduate work at the University of Western Ontario. He notified the Canadian government of his findings and it was discovered that the Dow Chemical Co. was dumping 200 pounds of mercury into Lake St. Clair each day.

It is estimated that all of Canadian industry was dumping about 250,000 pounds of mercury into the Great Lakes each year, or roughly 700 pounds per day. Considering that total, 200 pounds daily by one firm in one lake — a large lake but one one of the Great Lakes — is no small amount.

Not all mercury pollution is so blatant. Mercury, liquid at room temperature evaporates readily and has a way of sneaking into the atmosphere.

Mercury pollution has been found in such unindustrialized states as Vermont and New Hampshire, and no one is quite sure how it got there. Two theories, though, are that if precipitated out of the atmosphere as a sort of fallout, and that it is a residue of compounds painted on fallen timber 30 years ago to prevent it from rotting before it could be collected.

Federally acceptable limits are one-half part per million in food and one-half part per billion in drinking water, so it does not take a grat amount of the pollutant to render a stream a hazard. Mercury concentratons of as much as seven parts per million have been found in some fish and game birds — far too high for human consumption, according to the government limit.

States that have found it necessary to impose restrictions of varying intensity against the selling of fish or eating of fish or game birds include the following: Alabama, Georgia, Louisiana, Michigan, Mississippi, Montana, New York, New Hampshire, Pennsylvania, Tennessee, Texas, Vermont, Virginia, West Virinia and Wisconsin.

Mediation Report Today

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Mediation Commission is expected to receive a report either this afternoon or Friday on contract talks which broke down Tuesday between the Northern Interior Lumbermen's Association and the International Woodworkers of America.

The report is to be delivered by provincial mediator Clive McKee.

Meantime, Bob Pitman, president of the Northern Interior IWA local, said plant representatives will be summoned to a weekend strategy meeting in Prince George.

Approximately 1,500 woodworkers have voted in favor of strike action to back demands which include a pay increase of 84 cents an hour in two years on a base rate of $2.88.

OIL-EATER NEW HOPE

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — Scientists at Florida State University say they have developed potent strains of a bacteria that gobbles up spilled oil—then quietly dies off.

"We knew that certain types of bacteria have been breaking down oil for millions of years," Prof. Carl Oppenheimer said in an interview Monday.

The product of two years of research in several strains of bacteria that destroy "bunker C fuel oil, one type of California crude and one type of Louisiana crude," Oppenheimer said.

Twelve at a time and all's well

The twelve pups, 7 male and 5 female, are a first litter for Binna and her mate Captain, purebred St. Bernards owned by Donald M. Graham.

Binna's personal population explosion has fulfilled the dire predictions of economists — her food supply will not keep up with demand without careful rationing.

The solution according to her owner is to remove two different pups at each feeding.

Graham describes his wife as the best midwife west of the prairies and said that only one of the puppies was in any danger during the ten-hour delivery. The puppy appeared to be dead but "started yelping after we worked on him for five minutes", said Graham, "Now he's as lively and healthy as the rest."

Driver education starts with cyclists

CHICAGO (UPI) — Prompted by the idea that youngsters should start learning traffic safety when they get their first set of wheels, Illinois has instituted the first junior version of drivers' education in the U.S. this fall — for bike riders.

Schools throughout Illinois devote classroom time not only to basic safety rules of bicycling but bike maintenance, the meaning of right of way and other traffic laws.

Basis of the program is an 80-page illustrated booklet published by the secretary of state distributed by the drivers' education division of the department of public instruction. Demand was so great that the original printing order was exhausted before the program was scheduled to begin officially.

The booklet tells grade and junior high students everything from the fact that the first bike, 150 years ago, was called a draisine after its German inventor, Baron Karl von Drais, how to dismantle, clean and reassamble crank hanger bearings.

Schools take their cue from the book. For example, in Quincy, Ill., Some teachers brought bikes into their classrooms to show pupils how to clean and grease wheel bearings and hand brakes.

The point that the program stresses is that bicycle are a normal part of traffic, not something separate, and that they are subject to many of the same laws as cars, trucks, buses and motorcycles.

'Abortion reform hasn't met goal'

MONTREAL (CP) — If the Trudeau government's two-year-old "reform" of abortion laws was intended to relieve the misery of women with unwanted pregnancies, it certainly has not met that goal, Dr. Henry Morgentaler said this week.

Dr. Morgentaler, president of the Humanist Association of Canada, told a Unitarian forum that safe, legal abortions are still almost as unattainable as they ever were, expecially for poor people.

He said the effect of the legal reform was to turn the decision on whether to grant an abortion over to medical boards set up by individual hospitals.

The boards are almost always made up of older, conservative doctors who do not believe in abortion and who do not think the woman herself should have final say on whether her pregnancy should be terminated or not.

Needless to say, Dr. Morgentaler said, these doctors are men.

Dr. Morgentaler is currently before the courts on a charge of conspiracy to commit an abortion.

DO YOU REALIZE that over 6 generations of Canadians — children and adults — have used DR. FOWLER'S EXTRACT OF WILD STRAWBERRY for relief of diarrhea? My own grandmother was a booster of Dr. Fowler's... and for a very good reason. Fowler's is a gentle, restorative formula, based on roots and herbs. It relieves nausea and cramps... and gently restores intestinal balance. Dr. Fowler's is not constipating, although it does act quickly. It has come to the aid of many a distressed mother after her children have over-indulged in food or play. For soothing relief from embarrassing, uncomfortable diarrhea, keep Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry on hand.

The hippie rag-bag is on its way to Europe

By FLORENCE de SANTIS

At one time, fashion currents usually flowed in one direction, from Europe to North America. But nowadays, there are likely to be two currents. A trend from Europe is likely to cross a trend from America in mid-Atlantic.

That's what seems to be happening now. Although the end of the rag-tag fashion of the Sixties could be seen coming a couple of years ago, there's no doubt that this year's Paris and Rome collections gave the big push to the return of elegance. Couturiers, obviously uncomfortable with the mini, the hippie, the whole mish-mash of Sixties fashions, have reasserted fashion as an art.

However, the current is flowing a little slowly in this direction, and in mid-Atlantic, so to speak, what do you think it has met going the other way? The hippie rag-bag, finally on its way to Europe.

Not that all Europeans appreciate the arrival of North American laxity. A recent visitor to Rome reports to me with indignation that "even respectable young men are entering the finest hotels in open shirts, no ties."

On the streets can be seen knots of young people in long hair and a carefully ragged look. The same thing can now be seen in other European cities.

Not that the European young do the American look very well. A European can no more look truly hippie than most Americans can look really elegant. But they're trying, simply because the idea has just now penetrated Europe that the hippie look is another of those many American ideas (like Coca Cola) which have for so long enchanted the European.

Unforaunately, except for the real American hippies who have lately been cluttering up the main squares of European cities, the hippie fashion trend is just dying in the U.S. The young Europeans are as late in taking up the trend as the Americans are in getting back to European elegance.

But they do have their ways with what they fondly hope is a sloppy American look. They have long locks, but they are as carefully groomed as ever. Instead of blank faces, their makeup is a ting of delicate perfection. It's this inability to go the whole way which bars them from ever really looking American.

But what a thrill, to invade the best hotels without wearing a tie! After all, that's easier than for a Roman miss to wear a mini skirt. In Rome a mini isn't a fashion, it's a provocation.

The devoted hiker should try knickers in sturdy corduroy, with the proper Scandinavian knee socks, ankle boots, cable-knit sweater.

Huge new glasses are great for skiers, in a one-piece wrap-around design that simply rises over the nose, covers from hair to nearly the mouth.

The skirt and top are right for after-ski, in newly casual ways, in quilted prints, in all-pleated plaid wools, with the angora sweater returning.

The gaucho is the newest pants for southern resorts, in light knit or crepe for evening, usually white with braid or gold embroider.

Look for the return of evening hats in the form of Oriental caps, such as little helmets from India, embroidered in colors and set with tiny mirrors.

Meanwhile, back to Ireland, 1916

Rosy's "unsuitable" riding habit for the film Ryan's Daughter, seems appropriate for the young shawl-and-maxi-set.

Some of the current protesters against the return of longer skirts keep insisting that the midi is "aging." If so, several other generations of midi wearers didn't know about it.

In 1916, for instance, the midi was the mini of its day. Up until the advent of the First World War, hemlines had never been higher than a couple of inches from the floor, just about enough to show the toe and vamp of the shoes. The influence of the war, which saw women working at jobs men had done before, brought in a new length which actually revealed the ankles!

It's this era which forms the background for "Ryan's Daughter," on which director David Lean is now putting the finishing touches. The film stars Sarah Miles as Rosie Ryan, and designer Jocelyn Rickards has done a wardrobe for her which is full of 1916 fashion trends that are now being used again.

Ryan's Daughter is set in Ireland, of course, so the shawl is a standard part of many of the film's costumes. Miss Miles wears one in heavily fringed black chenille that could be seen right now, as could her riding shirt with its "stock" neckline that ends in a flowing tie. In another sequence, Miss Miles wears a midi coat, a longuette skirt with pleated flounce and a long muffler, a familiar this season.

Many midi costumes today feature a two-piece look, and in 1916 this, too, was part of what was then a very new look. Sarah Miles wears a grey tweed longuette skirt and a white sweater top. A tunic-length cardigan sweater makes the wrap.

(A Fashion League Feature)

Ryan's daughter Rosy wears this daring midi in the film set in the Ireland of 1916, when ankles unveiled were a scandalous thing. These costumes, so like the aging midi, were considered the "youth" fashions of the day.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Prefers His Own

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am a recently divorced man, in my early fifties. I am considered good looking, still trim and vigorous, dress well and have done very well financially, so, lonesome, I'm not.

Before the ink was dry on my divorce papers I started getting calls from friends, "Boy, have I got a girl for you!"

Don't misunderstand, Abby, I enjoy the company of the opposite sex, but I like to select my own. When I'm invited to dinner, I'm asked to pick up some lady who will be my "date" for the evening, then I have to take her home. Or else I am paired up with somebody's middle-aged sister-in-law, who could haunt a house.

Question: When I'm invited out, would it be proper for me to say, "I am bringing my own lady"?

If it's my company they want, they should welcome me and a lady of my choice. If all they want me for is to escort someone of their choice, they can forget it. Correct me if I'm wrong. — Nobody's Fool in L.A.

DEAR NOBODY'S: When invited to dinner, always insist upon bringing your own lady, and you'll soon find out if you're wanted for yourself or not.

DEAR ABBY: I had to laugh at the man who wrote in about his wife always counting calories. I wish his wife and mine could get together and reach a happy medium.

I am married to a woman who must have put on 80 pounds since I married her seven years ago. Needless to say, I am ashamed to be seen with her. The rest of us eat sensibly, but my wife shovels in the bread, potatoes and sweets like there is no tomorrow. I've talked to her and so have her friends and members of my family and hers, too, but it does no good.

At age 26 I am ready to take my love-making elsewhere because my wife is so repulsive.

Why do I stay? Because I love my kids and I suppose I still love the girl under all that blubber— Fatty's Husband.

DEAR HUSBAND: Her first move should be in the direction of a doctor. She eats because she's unhappy, and one of the reasons she's unhappy is because she's fat. If you love her, don't quit talking to her!

DEAR ABBY: To ease the heart of the lady who kept finding fresh flowers on her husband's grave from an 'unknown donor" and was hurt because she had thought him so faithful, please tell her this:

We had a dear old relative whose vision wasn't too good. After her husband died she went almost every day to place fresh flowers on his grave, and since it kept her busy, nobody interfered. One day, I went with her and discovered she had been putting the flowers on the wrong grave.

I didn't have the heart to tell her, thinking it couldn't possibly make any difference to anyone. So for the rest of her life, that dear little old lady never knew she was going to the wrong spot. It never occurred to any one of us that such an error could cause heartache to anyone until I read that letter in your column. So, this lady's husband was probably the wonderful, faithful person she remembers, but somewhere there could be a feeble myopic mourner who is visiting the wrong grave. Hope this helps. — Betty in L.A.

Girl talk changes as coffee klatch becomes war council

NEW YORK (UPI) — The status isn't quo any more and girl talk certainly is not what it used to be.

Even the familiar coffee klatch has changed its aura. Once it meant that women got together for informal conversation over coffee to talk of their chiodren, formulas, housekeepkng, new clothes and plain old gossip.

Now the klatch is no longer just for coffee. It's a rallying point, a planning board, a war council and underground railroad all rolled into one.

Dr. Spock has given in to Kate Millett and Betty Friedan, and all the frothy heroines of fiction to Simone De Beauvoir's treatise on the second sex.

What has caused the change? Women's Liberation of course, the feminine "revolution" of the late 1960s and '70.

Exchange of recipes is old hat to this new breed. They exchange slogans like "starve a rat today." Housemaid's knee has given in to housewife's syndrome. The marriage manual has been traded in for the liberation manifesto and sexual intrigue replaced with sexual politics.

The liberationists not only have created a new platform for promoting women's rights, but also have developed a whole new vocabulary to go with it.

All of which is going to affect the dictionary business. New meanings of familiar terms or new terms all will have their effect on the language, according to lexicographers for Merriam-Webster.

Just how much effect depends on how long, the Lib movement maintains its drive and whether new groups will continue it, said David Replogle, president of the firm which publishes the dictionary.

Already a part of today's talk, and candidates for possible inclusion in dictionaries to come, are words or phrases like these:

Rap group, meeting of women to exchange ideas and experience.

Sensitized, acceptance of the male-oriented society.

Role crisis, an inability to find a meaningful identity, whether as a wife, in a career or both.

Male chauvinism, excessive or blind belief in male superiority.

Sexegration, a separation of groups by sexes.

Feminist, one who advocates the removal of restrictions that lead to discrimination; a raging gut feminist is the really ardent one.

Girlcott, opposite of boycott, that is, ostracism by ignoring.

Herstory, a women's view of history.

Femme lib, short for feminine liberation.

Sexual politics, men against women, the battle of the sexes, attitudes and discrimination based on sex, and the title of Kate Millett's book.

No wonder the women react when even Noah Webster, in his 1806 definition of wife wrote " a married woman, a low mean woman."

Or when one of my associates informed me it should be "women's lip."

ONE GOOD REASON for visiting the Christmas bazaar at the Church of St. George the Martyr is the Arts and handicrafts stall. Posing among the pots and paintings, Barbara Burns displays a ceramic bowl, one of the items for sale on November 21. The bazaar will open at 1 a.m. in St. George's hall, Cadboro Bay and will feature gifts, toys, home baking, candies, books, superfluities and jewelery. Lunch will be served from 11:30 and tea will be available from 2 to 4:30 p.m.

Picnic coolers death traps

WASHINGTON (UPI) — For some reason children like to crawl into things. They children in the places into also like to shut up other which they have crawled.

But crawling into things, or being shut up in them, can be a dangerous game.

But who would have thought that the smaller picnic coolers, which are standard household equipment for many a family also could be a menace to kids at play?

But they are, and the national bureau of standards (NBS) is trying to make the picnic cooler safe for children.

In a recent investigation the bureau studied 16 cases in which children were killed by entrapment in portable coolers.

"Picnic coolers present a problem," the NBS reported, "because they are designed to be relatively air-tight and have good insulation characteristics so that they might hold food and drink at low termperatures."

"These seem characteristics may mean death for a trapped child, however, because once locked in, his air supply is cut off and his cries for help are muffled."

"He can do little but wait for death."

A majority of the 16 cases studied involved coolers with self-locking lids. Once slammed, the lids could not be opened from inside. The study showed that children ranging in age from 1½ to six years had died in coolers.

Coolers only 10 inches wide, 20 inches long, and 12 inches deep (about 1½ cubic feet had proved big enough to entomb a child.

The NBS is investigationg ways of making coolers safe by design changes that will keep children out of them or assure their escape.

It has been decided to get rid of self-locking mechanisms.

Swedes revise school system

By BERNARD WEINRAUB

STOCKHOLM — Children in Sweden's rapidly changing school system start sex education courses at the age of seven. Boys and girls are jointly taught sewing and woodwork. Textbooks depict mothers and fathers interchangeably working and caring for children.

"In our new curriculum this year we have sought to show that men and women have the same possibilities,' 'said Stig Fred, an adviser to the National Board of Education who deals with sex and biological programs.

"We should not try to influence a child's picture of life with books that show men and women in traditional roles."

"Swedish schools have always aimed to prepare children as fully as possible for life," Fred, a spare, earnest former biology teacher, said in his office. "The essential point to our sex program is that we all have responsibility for each other, that parents must respect one another and every baby born must be welcome."

"We are able to deal with sex education here because of the smallness of the country — there are fewer people in Sweden than in New York — and because our school system is centrally directed," he continued. "This cohesive system, with children taking the same program all over Sweden, makes programs such as sex education easier to implement."

Starting next year, each 16-year-old will enter a new "gymnasial" school that will combine all the programs formerly offered.

"We want to do away with the past situation, where the upper class generally went to schools that led to the university while the lower class entered vocational-training schools," said Anne-Marie Lindgren, a school specialist at the Ministry of Education and Cultural Affairs.

"That is not democracy," she added emphatically. "In a democracy, as in school, people of all types must work together and one can't be regarded as better than a neighbor simply because of intelligence. Children should not be separated. They should learn to live together and respect one another."

The opening of the new two-to-four-year schools — which will offer everything from training for construction work to linguistics, history and general academic subjects — makes a big influx into the universities possible.

Education officials predict that by 1975 about 95 per cent of students will get some form of higher education. Nearly 80 per cent of the 16-to-18-year-olds do so now.

Sex education remains a key element of the system. Officials report that in the last few years birth, puberty and sexual relations have been discussed, with an increasing use of films, demonstration sets of contraceptives and instructive models.

Death for Drug Pushers Social Credit Topic

VANCOUVER (CP) — The death penalty for drug pushers will be one of the more contentious topics facing some 500 delegates to the 1970 British Columbia Social Credit League convention beginning here Friday.

Equally serious issues among the 110 resolutions are those of rising welfare costs and financing of pollution control facilities.

George Driediger, league president, says discussion at the two-day convention will "cover the map." The drug issue—with B.C. claiming to have the largest number of drug users of any province—is of major concern.

"I think you will see many delegates say they want the governments—the provincial and the federal — to take stronger stands on drugs," Mr. Driediger said.

Referring to social welfare, he said:

"The general public is fed up with the welfare bill, fed up with the people who are refusing to work even though they are able bodies and capable of working.

"You will hear some strong statements on this problem."

At the same time, he says, there will be complaints from some municipalities that the provincial government is making municipal governments meet too high a proportion of welfare costs.

Earlier this fall, the provincial government increased the per capita municipal share of welfare costs to $1.58 from $1.15 —and municipal governments replied that this was a 40-per-cent increase which they could not meet.

PRESENTED BRIEF

Last week, a delegation from the Union of B.C. Municipalities presented a brief to the government calling for lower municipal costs, or greater provincial financial support in the welfare field.

Under the Canada Assistance Plan, the federal government is to pay 50 per cent of welfare costs, the provincial government 30 per cent and the municipalities 20.

The matter of pollution control includes a request for specific financial support of local governments in building sewage treatment plants.

Other resolutions call for an increase in payments for such "para-medical" services as chiroptractic care under the provincial medical care program. The government recently cut in half its payments in that area.

The league has made no mention of framing a constitutional procedure for naming a successor as party leader to 70-year-old Premier W. A. C. Bennett, who had headed Social Credit in B.C. since it took office in August of 1954. The league has no formal procedure for choosing a leader.

Social Credit now is as strong a position as it had ever been, with 38 of the 55 legislative seats. The New Democrats hold 12 and the Liberals, five.

Premier Bennett will make the keynote address to the convention Friday and Alberta Premier Harry Strom will address delegates Saturday.

No Decision On Basic Allowance

TORONTO (CP) — Senator David Croll said today the Senate poverty committee has made no final decision to recommend a basic allowance for every needy Canadian or a guaranteed annual income based on a negative income tax.

"That isn't what the committee will recommend," he said in an interview. "I don't know what the committee will recommend."

The senator, chairman of the poverty committee, was commenting on published reports that these recommendations would be included in a final report to be ready next spring.

Senator Croll (L—Ontario) had the same comment when asked about reports the committee would recommend a widespread reorganization of social services with these services being administered by the provinces and paid for by Ottawa.

He had no furher comment to make on his angry reaction earlier this week to what he regarded as pressure from the government leader in the Senate, Senator Paul Martin, to tone down the committee report.

Reds Knew NATO Plan

LONDON (Reuter) — A London newspaper says that NATO plans for Western defence were scrapped following the removal of secret documents from an American jumbo jet hijacked to Cairo in September.

The London Evening Standard says in a front-page story that the NATO annual military exercises had to be replanned following the Soviet Union's biggest acquisition of Western defence secrets.

The Standard says the documents disappeared from a Pan American Boeing 747 after it was hijacked by Arab guerrillas on a flight from Amsterdam to New York in September. The plane was subsequently blown up at Cairo Airport by the guerrillas.

The newspaper says NATO officials at first thought the plans had been destroyed with the plane. But the paper claims the Cairo government returned them to NATO headquarters.

The Standard says there is good reason to believe that the documents had been photographed by Soviet intelligence officers in Cairo.

1,100 Die

NEW DELHI (Reuter) — A total of 1,100 persons have died from floods in India this year, official figures show. The largest number of deaths in a single state was 432 in Gujaret, which suffered devastating floods in September. Next was Uttar Pradesh with 344.

Young Members Reshape Unions

By BOB MITCHELL
Times Staff

VANCOUVER — Youthful rebellion is reaching into the labor movement to such an extent that workers now are more willing to go on strike, says the newly-elected president of the B.C. Federation of Labor.

George Johnstone, who was elected at the federation's annual convention, said workers' rejection of tentative agreements which their negotiating committees have already recommended for acceptance is one sign of unrest.

"In dress, in music, in sex, the younger people are questioning old values," Johnstone said in an interview.

"I think this is good because they're forcing older people to reconsider things that have always been taken for granted."

He said it's a fallacy that workers are afraid to withdraw their labor because their pay cheques are committed to things like credit and mortgage payments.

PART OF BATTLE

"I've noticed those who aren't on strike or can't strike still want to be part of the battle. It used to be people were afraid to go on strike."

Johnstone takes over presidency of the federation from Al Staley of Victoria who had the post since 1964. Johnstone, during the same period, was second vice-president.

He has represented meatcutters provincially for 26 years, first in the Meat and Retail Workers' Union, then in the Meatcutters' Union which was formed in 1949.

He has also served as vice-president of the Vancouver Labor Council, and was appointed to the provincial government's labor-management committee set up four years ago. (The committee later resigned when the government introduced compulsory arbitration laws.)

Johnstone said one of the most important tasks facing the federation is organizing workers in service industries, particularly in the department stores.

"One of the problems in organizing the department store workers is the large turnover and the widespread use of part-time help."

He admitted there is very little communication between labor organizations and the government in B.C., but doesn't think labor is to blame.

"As long as legislation such as Bill 33 and the Mediation Commission exist, this isn't going to solve the problem.

"We're constantly fighting legislation the government enacts and they invariably enact legislation on behalf of the employers."

Alberni Youth Dies As Car Plunges

PORT ALBERNI (CP) — A 16-year-old Alberni Valley youth was killed and three other persons injured Wednesday in a single-car accident on the Alberni-Tofino highway.

Driver of the car, Frank Antonyk, 28, of Pitt Meadows, Dorothy Wilson, 17, sister of the dead youth, and Daniel Fred, 16, of Port Alberni were in satisfactory condition in hospital today.

Police said the car plunged down a 60-foot embankment.

Thurber Carnival Rounded Delight

By JAMES D. FORDYCE

The humor of that great American writer-artist, James Thurber is always warm, frequently subtle, and totally without rancor, even when he is needling the fair sex.

In spite of the fact that in the main it is sophisticated stuff, it also has a childlike quality, particularly in his drawings of his favorite dogs, and other animals.

A Thurber Carnival, which is being presented tonight and Friday at McPherson Playhouse, is a delightful package of some of his wittiest and most endearing sketches and monologues, dramatized and cunningly arranged to flow briskly and happily through two acts and 90 minutes of playing time.

SPARKLING

A chuckle from beginning to end, punctuated freely with hilarious episodes and just now and then, with more quietly humorous or thoughtful moments.

Such as Reg Terry's vivid The Night the Bed Fell on Father, Sheila Litt's senstively done Last Flower and Rod Symington's poignant Ode to a Dog.

The performers are a group of eight Victoria actors who are clearly both gifted and experienced.

They are supported splendidly by well-known pianist Robin Wood, who himself assumes a totaly unexpected role — playng a bright jazzy score in which, every now and then, one detects his own interpolations and improvisations.

SKILFUL

The director, Allan Purdy, has found a style for this show that is a skilful and satisfying simplification of the original production which I saw on Broadway a dozen or more years ago.

One is charmed immediately upon curtain rise, to see how attractively the carnival idea has been utilized in gaily colored platforms of different levels and panels bearing blown-up Thurber cartoons crowned with calousel canopies.

We are then swept into a fast-paced word dance that is said to have lent inspiration to Rowan and Martin. From then on scene follows scene, linked by music and the deft setting and changing of simple props by cast members of eye-appealing, pertly costumed property girl, Diane Massam.

HIGH CREDIT

Costumes for the women are extremely colorful and frequently altered from the basic garment by lightning additions that reflect high credit on costume designer Biddy Gaddes.

To their basic dinner dress the men add hats, scarves and other accessories according to need.

It is difficult and unfair to single out any one actor among the eight for they form a closely knit revue team, projecting their voices strongly and clearly, moving smoothly and with a sense of rhythm and creating a whole gallery of Thurber portraits.

If any performances emerge in memory they will probably turnout to be Symington's Walter Mitty, the mousey man with the heroic dreams — Terry's ability to characterize vocaly and Carolyn Stephenson's Goldie Hawn-type naive charm.

But Jerre Partridge, Nan Long, Miss Litt, John Goult and Purdy himself did their full share to create a delightfully entertaining evening well worth anyone's visit to the McPherson.

All proceeds go to the bursary fund of the Victoria Conservatory of Music whose women's committee have sponsored the show.

JOSEPH HOWSE and SAM KOFFSKI
. . . they're seeking a sponsor

Duncan Pilots Eye Big Race

By DONNA CLEMENTS

DUNCAN — Two Duncan private pilots plan to compete for part of the $175,000 cash prizes in the Centennial Air Race from London to Victoria next summer.

Sam Koffski, 41, plasterer, and Joe Howse, 40, millwright at Crofton Pulp Mill, said their entry will depend on whether they can get a sponsor for the week-long race, attain their instrument rating and acquire a special gas tank for their 12-year-old Cessna 182. They have been flying 10 years.

Competitors' stopovers after they leave London July 1 will be Prestwick, Scotland; Reykjavik, Iceland; the tip of Greenland; Gander, Newfoundland; Quebec City; Ottawa; Winnipeg; Regina; Calgary; and Victoria.

Participating planes will be grouped into four classes.

Grand prize will be $50,000 for the top proficiency with $20,000 and $10,000 for second and third prizes.

Cash prizes for top people in each class will be $10,000 first and $5,000 second.

There will also be a $5,000 award for the best proficiency on each leg of the trip.

Koffski and Howse are considering the world trip as just an extension of their many other excursions that have brought their total flying hours to over 1,000.

"YGO" (Cessna 182) is the third plane the men have owned since they formed a partnership. Malcolm Campbell, a third partner in the present plane, and Koffski and Howse also have a homebuilt airplane that Howse built two years ago.

Over 10,000 miles have been logged on "YGO" which includes trips to the Bahamas, Inuvic, Mexico City, Reno, Texas and many other long and short jaunts to the U.S. and across Canada.

Koffski said a special gas tank is needed so they can carry a total of 100 gallons to enable them to fly the longest leg of the trip.

Appeal Off To Slow Start

DUNCAN — Cowichan Valley United Appeal has received $4,576 to date from mail and canvassers.

Publicity chairman of the initial United Appeal campaign in this area, Mrs. Doreen McIntyre, said only one-quarter of the funds raised in a door-to-door blitz of 7,000 homes between Shawnigan Lake and Crofton Monday evening have been turned in.

The goal for the campaign, which will service 11 agencies, is to raise $35,000 during December by an industrial, business and residential canvas.

City council went on record as supporting United Appeal Monday and decided that no canvasses will be allowed 30 days prior or 30 days following the United Appeal annual campaign.

If the United Appeal target is not achieved, council will donate an amount not exceeding last years' grants to the participating organizations provided the sum does not exceed $500.

"Any continuing grant made by the city council should be made only to those organizations who are not eligible for membership in the United Appeal," council ruled.

Settling Lagoon Finished Soon

A project to control water pollution and assure a healthful environment for fish in adjacent ocean waters now is nearing completion at the Chemainus Sawmill Division of MacMillan Bloedel.

The project is a two-pocket settling lagoon contained by a 480-foot long permeable dyke into which water used in the sawmill will be discharged.

Tom Hanna, MB's manager of lumber production on the east coast of Vancouver Island, said construction should be completed by Nov. 30.

The pollution abatement system has been approved by both the federal fisheries department and the B.C. pollution control branch, and the latter will monitor the effectiveness of the lagoon.

The waste water is first screened to remove larger wood particles, explained Hanna. The water then will be piped into the lagoon where, within a 24-hour period, fine fibres and bark sludge will settle to the bottom.

The treated and cleaned water then will be returned to the ocean water in adjacent Horseshoe Bay via an overflow.

More than 25,000 cubic yards of gravel fill were used to create the dyke which contains the 1.26-acre pollution control lagoon.

The sludge which settles in the lagoon will be removed periodically by a clam-shell dredge, hauled away by truck and disposed of at a site approved by authorities or used as land fill. The nature of the material is such that when it is deposited on land and becomes packed it provides a good bed for plants and grass.

Bonn, Warsaw Treaty Seen Nearing Following Meeting of Officials

By DAN MORGAN

WARSAW (WP) — West Germany and Poland were reported to have narrowed their differences on a treaty to normalize relations after an 80-minute meeting between Polish Prime Minister Josef Cyrankiewicz and Bonn's foreign minister Walter Scheel.

Western sources in Warsaw deduced from the meeting that the Polish government was ready to press for a compromise on outstanding points. Scheel's talks with the prime minister followed a Friday meeting of the Communist Party Politburo at which further steps toward the German negotiators were discussed at length.

Among the optimistic signs was an implicit invitation to West German Chancellor Willy Brandt to visit Poland, extended by Cyrankiewicz for the time after the treaty is successfully concluded.

To this, West German sources added other evidence that the Polish side was adopting a flexible stance.

The Bonn sources said that the Poles had softened their demands for a treaty formulation by which West Gemany would accord "final recognition" to the Western Polish border made by the Oder and Neisse rivers.

Until now the Poles have demanded that the treaty include Bonn's acknowledgement of the "final character" of the border, which was set at Potsdam "pending a final determination." The borders drawn at that time ceded to Poland 40,000 square miles of former German territory.

The Bonn hope now is that the treaty will use a formulation that omits the words "final" and "recognition."

West German sources also said that the Poles appeared to be ready to accept the Bonn argument that it cannot make binding commitments on behalf of some future all-German government.

The West Germans are anxious for the Poles to take note of this in some way, preferably by receiving a letter or some other document that makes clear that the treaty cannot substitute for a final settlement of the border question by a peace agreement between Germany and its former enemies.

Progress was also reported in the effort to solve "humanitarian" problems which are outside the treaty framework. These consist mainly of requests by a number of Polish citizens for emigration to West Germany to join their families.

Before leaving for a one-day trip to Brussels by way of Bonn Monday, Scheel said that he had had a "very good conversation" with Prime Minister Cyrankiewicz and was optimistic that the treaty negotiations could be concluded this week.

PEKING GOES ALL OUT

Big Welcome for Khan

By NORMAN WEBSTER
Special to the Times

PEKING — Pakistani President Yahaya Khan has arrived at one of Peking's large-scale head of state welcomes. More than 100,000 chanted and cheered as he drove through the centre of the city with Premier Chou En-lai.

General Khan is making a four-day visit that emphasizes one of the key elements in Pakistani foreign policy — friendship with China. He will likely see Chairman Mao Tse-tung during his stay.

The visit is the first to China by a Pakistani head of state since then president Ayb Khan toured in March, 1965.

Wooed by Others

It comes after trips this year by Yahya Khan to both the Soviet Union and the United States. Pakistan is wooed by three great powers and beholden to none of them.

Talks will range widely but could concentrate on possible further Chinese aid to Pakistan. Yahya Khan's trips, and the U.S. decision to resume selling certain armaments to Pakistan, should give the discussion extra zest.

China's armed forces chief of staff, Huang Yung-Sheng, accompanied Premier Chou to the airport and will likely take part in the talks.

Loans

China has provided Pakistan with military equipment as well as more than $100 million (U.S.) in interest-free loans since 1965.

Pakistan has applied the loans mainly towards establishment of a heavy machinery complex and an ordnance factory.

Sino-Pakistani friendship has a firm base in the two countries' mutual hostility to Indian. Unlike the U.S. and the Soviet Union, China makes no attempt to keep a foot in the camps of both parties in the Indian subcontinent.

In return Pakistan supports Peking's cause abroad, especially its position with regard to Taiwan and its claim to the China seat in the United Nations.

Peking's heart was full too when Pakistan last year rebuffed a Soviet proposal for a collective security system, in Asia, a system excluding China.

The New China News Agency, in an article praising Sino-Pakistani friendship and co-operation, made much of this rebuff.

Relations between the two countries were put on a solid footing in 1963 with signing of a border agreement under which China relinquished 750 square miles of territory.

They were made firmer, still in 1965 when China came loudly and effectively to Pakistan's aid during the brief war with India.

Walk-In Centre A Success

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — The University of California has launched a mental treatment centre for anyone, from troubled housewives to drug addicts bent on suicide, who walks in with a problem.

Therapists counsel the first half dozen or so who come in every day, and, although the project is only a month old, they already have to turn some away.

"It's going to be a tremendous success, we think," says the director, Thomas N. Rusk.

To give them a feeling of belonging, patients are called members and given a membership card. They're asked to write out their treatment goal, then both patient and centre sign an agreement to work toward it.

The centre is sponsored by the school of medicine of the University of California at San Diego under a $500,000 starting budget. The staff includes trained psychologists and psychiatrists, nurses and student trainees.

The charge ranges from nothing for persons with no income to fees equivalent to those charged by private psychiatrists.

Rusk says 80 per cent of Americans could benefit from such treatment at some time in their lives, and "about 20 per cent urgently need it at some point." One aim of the centre, he said, is to fill a need for persons who can't afford private psychiatry.

CASE WON AGAINST BREWERY

SAMLESBURY, England (UPI) — Villagers fighting against construction of a brewery because it ruined Samlesbury's visual charm have won their case—up to a point.

Town fathers said $168,000 has been donated by the brewery's owners toward planting 10,000 trees, shrubs and bushes to shield the building from the eyes of passers-by.

RARE DISEASE 'SUDDEN' KILLER

By STUART AUERBACH

WASHINGTON (WP) — A rare disease, mentioned in the world's medical literature only 16 times since 1927, killed two American soliders in Vietnam so quickly that doctors had no chance to treat them, army medical corps officers have reported.

"It's frightening," said Lt.-Col. Andre J. Ognibene, a doctor now stationed at Walter Reed Army Medical Centre here after spending a year in Vietnam.

In a report in the current issue of the American Journal of Pathology, Dr. Ognibene and Lt.-Col. Evan Thomas warn American doctors "that active infection may occur in servicemen after returning from Vietnam to the United States."

They described the disease as "a fatal infection" caused by a bacteria, Chromobacterium violaneum.

"That's a bug that is capable of killing people and is quite rare," said Ognibene.

The bacteria is "widely distributed in Vietnam." The two soldiers who died were in opposite ends of the country, while a third soldier, who only suffered a skin sore, was in a mid-coastal area. In addition, the doctors found signs of the bacteria in the main water supply of Pleikep, a village in Vietnam's central highlands.

Ognibene and Thomas reported that the bacteria can lie latent in a patient's body for as long as 15 months. Then its attack is sudden.

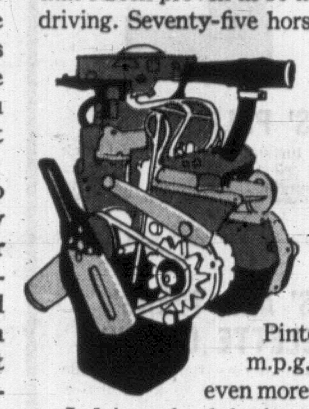
The Ford Pinto story that follows is fact. Even though the price sounds like fiction.

The Ford Pinto story has all the makings of a best seller. Here's how it goes: Take an exciting little economy car that gives you a lot. Then offer it for a very little price. And like any good book, once you get into Pinto you won't want to put it down.

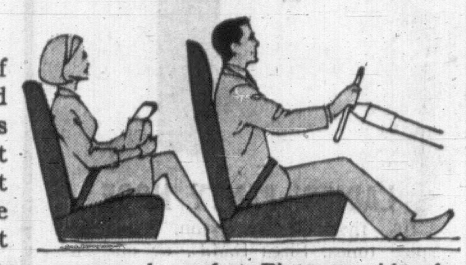
When you get into Pinto you'll find a 4-speed fully synchronized floor mounted manual transmission is standard equipment. And a 3-speed SelectShift automatic is available with the optional 2000 cc overhead cam engine. SelectShift lets you drive in automatic or shift for yourself.

The steering system is rack and pinion for positive steering and superior handling. It's the same kind that guided Ford Motor Company's GT racing cars to three successive victories in the famous Le Mans race.

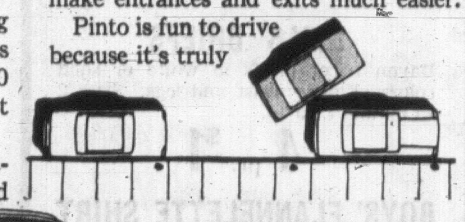
The power plant is a 1600 cc engine that's been proven in 50 million miles of driving. Seventy-five horses are packed into this rugged, light weight, cast iron engine for excellent acceleration. In simulated city / suburban driving conditions Pinto averaged 30 m.p.g. You may get even more.



Judging a book by its cover is acceptable in Pinto's case. Its streamlined beauty and wide stance makes it handle as beautifully as it looks. Inside the story is even better. Pinto is a little car. But Pinto is a lot more roomy than you'd expect an import size car to be. More room in front for shoulders. More room in back for knees and heads, more room for luggage too. In fact, people are amazed at how much room and comfort Pinto provides for four adults. And Pinto's extra wide doors make entrances and exits much easier.



Pinto is fun to drive because it's truly the little carefree car. It handles easily in traffic. Parks easily. And you can take care of it easily.



The best way to find out all about Pinto is to take a test drive. Get a first edition. There's one waiting for you now at your Ford Dealer's.

Irish Guard Slowly Cut

BELFAST (AP) — The number of British troops trying to keep the peace in Northern Ireland is being slowly reduced.

Authorities announced that the force will be reduced 1,000 men—to 6,000—this month. That was the size of the force before July, when the British government flew in reinforcements to deal with an upsurge of Catholic-Protestant rioting. Authorities feel there is less likelihood of trouble in the next few months.

Police announced they had found 60 pounds of explosive gelignite in a car abandoned near the border of the Irish Republic. They are looking for the driver.

Bank-Wary Man Loses $210,000

MONTREAL (CP) — George Lee, a Chinese restaurant owner in suburban Beloeil, is $210,000 poorer today because he doesn't like banks.

Mr. Lee, who carries his money in a briefcase, was robbed as he left his restaurant Wednesday evening. His valise contained $210,000 in bills from $10 to $100.

He told police later he was taking the money home for the purposes of a "business transaction" but did not elaborate. He said he did not like banks.

Students On Board

OTTAWA (CP) — For the first time in its 59-year history, the Association of Universities and Colleges of Canada has elected students to its board, it was announced today.

The students are Colleen McGuinness, president of the Brandon University students union, Wayne Yared, president of the graduate student society at the University of Windsor, and Norman Wickstrom, president of the Simon Fraser student society.

Davidson Dunton, president of Carleton University, is the association's new president. He succeeds Roger Gaudry, rector of the University of Montreal.

The association is a voluntary organization of institutions of higher education and is supported by their membership fees.

Students Beer-Brewers

TORONTO (CP) — Students at York University are brewing their own beer these days—with the approval of the university.

James Cameron, a university lecturer, has started a course on the art of brewing, one of many ungraded ones at the university.

Mr. Cameron said in an interview Wednesday the students are doing their brewing at home because he believes it may be illegal to do so in the university.

He said his class also will visit local breweries to see professionals at work, examine provincial liquor laws and hear lectures from social workers on the problem drinker.

Elevators to Fight

WINNIPEG (CP) — E. K. Turner, president of Saskatchewan pool elevators, said Wednesday his organization will fight any attempts by "agri-business" and the private grain trade in Winnipeg to influence federal government farm policy for Western Canada.

Turner told the annual meeting of Manitoba pool elevators that farmers have set up a structure to speak to government through the Canadian Federation of Agriculture and through the farm union.

Mrs. Huddlestun was elected at the annual convention Tuesday when Mary Stimson of Dapp was re-elected second vice-president.

Wheat Winner

TORONTO (CP) — J. C. McCullough of Carman, Man., Wednesday won the world flax championship for Manitoba, the first victory since 1963 for the province in the competition.

'Others Will Follow'

CALGARY (CP) — Chester Ronning, Canadian charge d'affaires to Peking when the embassy closed in 1951, says Canada's recent recognition of mainland China probably will pave the way for other Western countries to do the same. He said at a news conference: "Perhaps Canada's action will cause the Americans to improve their attitude and perhaps end the blockade which has isolated China."

How Many Bears?

CALGARY (CP) — More sophisticated means of taking a bear census must be developed to determine how many can be eliminated by hunting or other means without endangering the population, Dr. Ian McTaggart Cowan, or the University of British Columbia, said Saturday.

Although considerable efforts are being directed at studying bear habits and populations, bear counting is still only at the level of crude approximations.

"Such counts are vital to managers who must determine what amount of bear can be safely eliminated . . . without endangering the continued existence of a population," he said.

Statement Rapped

REGINA (CP) — Some damage may have been done to rural-urban relations because of statements made recently on wheat sales by the president of the Saskatchewan Chamber of Commerce, says E. K. Turner.

Turner, Saskatchewan Wheat Pool president, said in a prepared statement released today that chamber president, Allyn Burroughs of Estevan said Canada is the world's worst merchandiser of wheat.

"There are some other inaccuracies in his statement," Turner said.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Temperatures were mild and skies were cloudy in nearly all sections of B.C. early this morning. Showers occurred locally along the coast and in the Columbia Kootenay district. Cranbrook reported snow with a reading of 32 degrees. Arctic air covering northern sections of the province gave Dease Lake a temperature of 6 above at 1 a.m.

A ridge of high pressure building off the coast gave periods of sunshine for coastal districts today and generally sunny weather for the south coast on Friday. However, a few showers persisted along the coastal mountains today. The clearing trend will spread to the interior tonight and Friday as the ridge builds inland. The next Pacific storm developing southwest of the weather ship will spread rain and gusty winds over the north coast Friday afternoon.

Massive 'Bail-Out' From Government

By JOHN LeBLANC

LONDON (CP) — "Rolls In Cloud Cuckoo Land."

This headline today epitomizes the plight of Rolls-Royce, the proudest name in British engineering technology, which has just had to get an enormous bail-out from the government for miscalculating hugely on an airplane-engine contract for the United States.

The fallen idol of British industry, as it now is being called, is getting a new £42 million ($105 million) advance from the government to bring the total of this help to £89 million on a so-far disastrous contract to supply engines for the American Lockheed Tristar jet, a 350-seat medium-haul aircraft.

Rolls-Royce's chairman and chief executive, Sir Denning Pearson, has as part of the deal been demoted and replaced at the top by retired Lord Cole, former chairman of Unilever.

Sir David Huddie, who master-minded the American contract, has been squeezed out of the firm but remains on the sidelines as a "consultant."

BANKS HELPED OUT

And Rolls shares, which hit 55 shillings when the Lockheed deal was announced in 1968, wound up at eight shillings Wednesday after news of the bail-out and of prospect of only nominal dividends for five years.

Among the sidelights was the spectacle of Sir Leslie O'Brien, governor of the Bank of England, going around (as one financial writer put it) bowler hat in hand to scare up £18 million from the banks as a prerequisite to the government advancing the other £42 million.

It all results from a contract for Rolls to supply engines for about 180 Lockheed aircraft. The engine is called the RB 211-22. Rolls agreed to supply them at a fixed price of £1 million for each set of three for an aircraft.

The originally estimated cost of launching the engine was £65 million. This now has more than doubled to £135 million.

The result of the miscalculation seems to be that Rolls will be selling the engine at a loss on at least the first 150 planes.

The company blames "unforeseeable" rises in the costs of labor and materials. One indication that the government is not quite convinced of this is the departure of Chairman Pearson, 62, from his $100,000-a-year top post.

Security Keeps PM Home

LONDON (CP) — The Guardian says that considerations of security, resulting from the presence of radical Quebec students in Paris, ranked among the reasons why Prime Minister Trudeau decided against attending today's memorial service in the French capital for Charles de Gaulle.

"The Canadian prime minister will be represented by his foreign minister, Mitchell Sharp, which is correct enough if you assume that Trudeau is unable to leave Canada at this time of internal stress," the London newspaper says.

But The Guardian suggests that, as was the case with de Gaulle, the Canadian leader "neither forgives nor forgets."

"And he cannot expunge those four words spoken on Canadian soil three years ago, 'vive le Quebec libre.' "

The slogan, shouted by the general during his visit to Montreal for Expo 67, was "anathema" to Trudeau, The Guardian continues in its personality column, Miscellany.

"The logic for Trudeau, then, is that it would be hyprocrisy to mourn at Notre Dame," says the paper.

"But argument No. 2, presented by the RCMP, was the clincher.

"The Mounties warned the prime minister that the Sorbonne was alive with Quebec students, many of whom are Maoists or FLQ, or both.

"Pierre Elliott stays home."

Two-Church Town Had Only One

COLOMBEY - LES - DEUX-EGLISES (AP) — The name of the village where Charles de Gaulle made his home means "Colombey of the two churches," but it has only one. An undistinguished building architecturally, it isn't one of the two that gave the village in eastern France its name.

The earliest record of the village is in 1108, in a letter from Lord Guy III of Vignory to his brother-in-law, the Bishop of Langres. He spoke of "Colombey where there are two churches" to distinguish it from other Colombeys in eastern France, Colombey meaning "a place where pigeons are raised."

Guy or his father had founded a priory at Colombey about 1100, linked to the famous abbey at Cluny. They also had a private priory Deux-Eglises.

Neither building survived the French Revolution.

In 1841, a man named Charles Cuny built a brewery on the lot known as "the new fountain." An architect, Henry Descaves, bought the property in 1881, tore down the brewery and built his home.

Gen. de Gaulle bought the property in 1963.

Health Board Plans to End Region Delay

Two provincial cabinet ministers will be invited to an early meeting with Greater Victoria's health board in hopes of ending the delay in regionalizing public health services.

The metro health board at its meeting Tuesday decided to invite both Health Minister Ralph Loffmark and Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell to join its December meeting or to meet the board sooner if convenient.

Incorporating the health board's functions into the operation of the Capital regional district has been under discussion for two or three years and is currently awaiting a government stuly of the cost-sharing formula, said chairman Mrs. Rubymay Parrott.

But because municipal budgets, including health board allotments, will be under consideration soon, board members agreed it is time to have another effort at completing the jurisdictional change.

Crash Victims Still Critical

Tow young people remain in critical condition in St Joseph's Hospital today four days after they were injured in a three-car crash on the Patricia Bay Highway near Elk Lake.

Susan Costain, 18, of 6961 Central Saanich Road, and Richard Collett, 21, of 5174 Patricia Bay, were injured in the crash early Sunlay morning that look the life of James Maude, 22, of 2nd Street, Sidney.

Mine Dump Plan Hearing Set In Port Hardy

A government hearing into mine-waste dumping plans at Port Hardy, originally scheduled in the northern Island community Sept. 16, will be held Dec. 2.

The inquiry will hear protests against a proposal by Utah Construction and Mining Ltd. to dump tailings from its $74-million base metal operation into Rupert Inlet.

The Sept. 16 hearing was postponed because of the illness of William Venables, the province's director of pollution control.

The ground rules for the hearing are unchanged. Four briefs will be heard, not including one prepared by the Society for Pollution and Environmental Control (SPEC) branch at Duncan, which is opposing the dumping plan.

The appellants to be heard are E. R. Morton of Cowichan Station, Elaine Price of Duncan, Roger Prentice of North Vancouver and the Pacific Salmon Society of Vancouver.

Kurt Horn, president of SPEC's militant Duncan-Malahat branch, said Tuesday representatives of the society will try to have their brief presented at the hearing.

In a letter to the original 52 objectors to the dumping proposal, Venables said others in addition to the four appellants "who may wish to attend may do so to the extent thay they can be accommodated in the Lions Club Hall.

"As before, the procedure for the hearing will be determined and announced by the director at the commencement of the hearing."

A. J. Chmelauskas, chief engineer of the pollution control branch, rejected SPEC's charge that the branch was paying only lip service to the Pollution Control Act by holding the hearing at an inaccessible spot and limiting the number of objections.

●

"The hearing is being held at Port Hardy because that is the area concerned, and that is where the people live who are concerned," Chmelauskas said today.

"Anyone who wishes may attend. All briefs must be considered."

Horn said it "takes a better man than me" to believe that the government is willing to force Utah to change its waste disposal plans at this stage in development of the mining complex.

"I don't see how they (the government) can even call it a public hearing when they are making it as difficult as they can for the public to attend.

"It is not only an inlet they are destroying. They are ruining Quatsino Sound, 30 spawning creeks and rivers — and eventually Georgia Strait."

Trustees Question Educational TV

Trustees were presented with an advisory report prepared jointly by board officials and the Greater Victoria Teachers Association on the development of educational television in the school district.

Recommendations included immediate steps towards agreement with Victoria Cablevision Ltd. for the use of two channels, monitors in all schools over a two-year period at the rate of one for every six classrooms.

It also suggested an in-service program to train both teachers and students on running equipment.

District superintendent A. J. Longmore asked report chairman H. R. Dawson why the district should commit itself to cablevision now with the development of cassette programming growing.

Longmore also wanted to know if the committee knew how much broadcast time would be utilized on the two channels particularly with monitors in 60 schools in the district as the report proposes.

Dawson said he was aware of the development in cassettes but still thought cablevision was significant.

"Are you going to make any provision for output?" Longmore asked.

Colin Glover, acting director of curricular services, pointed out that the University of Victoria had a television studio and the report recommended immediate negotiation with university officials to utilize the facilities.

"Do you know that half-inch tape is difficult to broadcast?" Longmore added.

END RESULT?

Dawson said the committee felt it was the best because in Alberta some programs have had to switch from two-inch to one-inch tapes and by the time the Victoria program is under way half-inch should be widely used.

"What is the end result going to be?" trustee Peter Bunn wondered.

"Will it help employment or improve the quality of life? Or is it just another thing to put in the school?"

"I think this will bring experiences to youngsters that they would get no other way," Dawson replied.

Ex-Victorian On Nuclear Physics Team

Richard Gough, 28, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Gough of 1161 Rockland, is a member of an international team of scientists which has reported a breakthrough in nuclear physics research.

The team, working at the Berkeley campus of the University of California and in England, has discovered a new method of nuclear decay —a mechanism by which atoms of one element lose some of their particles and become different elements.

The discovery will enrich knowledge of the structure and behavior of the nucleus, said Dr. Joseph Cerny, associate professor of chemistry at Berkeley and leader of the team. He and his English and Canadian colleagues reported on the discovery in the latest issue of Physics Letters, a scientific journal.

Dr. Gough, who was top student when he graduated from Mount Douglas high school, led his class in three years at the University of Victoria and won the Governor-General's Medal in 1965.

TO MAKE IT NICER FOR THE NEXT GUY

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — The thief who took Mrs. Karen Lawson's car had some complaints.

The car, stolen Oct. 31 while Mrs. Lawson was shopping, was recovered five days later by police. She received a letter Monday:

It read:

"I shall return to you your car. It is unharmed. I'll also send your driver's licence to you. May I suggest you fix:

"1—Your ignition, so it won't be taken again. 2—Your radio, so if it is taken, the thief will enjoy the radio. 3—Your windshield wipers . . . they squeak. 4—Your sparkplugs . . . the car stalls."

The letter was not signed.

The "race" is on for beautiful floors. And Armstrong Place 'n Press is the easiest do-it-yourself floor tile ever.

1. Peel off the paper. 2. Place tile in position. 3. Press down.

The adhesive is already on the back. It sticks by itself.

No more putting off. Brighten up those drab, dingy rooms in record time. A 9 x 12 foot room takes about 1½ hours. And Place 'n Press goes over old tile or linoleum. Or directly on most basement concrete. Anywhere as long as the floor is flat. And because there's no messy glue, you can leave your job partly done for days without worrying about the mess.

Remember the name is what you do!

FAITHFULL FOUND UNCONSCIOUS ON BED

BIRMINGHAM, England (Reuter) — Actress Marianne Faithfull was taken to hospital today after being found unconscious from a suspected overdose of drugs.

The 23-year-old Miss Faithfull was divorced 12 days ago on the grounds of adultery with Rolling Stones' singer Mick Jagger.

In July last year, the actress came close to death as a result of a drugs overdose in Sydney, Australia.

She was taken to hospital where a spokesman said later "she is unconscious but not in any immediate danger."

Flooded With Praise

NEW YORK (AP) — Danny Kaye, looking as old and tired as Noah, calls out in a young, never-tired Danny Kaye voice: "Is it safe to go to '21' to eat or do they know we're a hit yet?"

Kaye had just finished the Wednesday matinee performance of Two by Two, which opened on Broadway the night before to mixed and good notices for the show and rave notices for Kaye, who plays Noah.

The Associated Press review said: "Kaye is merely magnificent" and it's "a show to treasure and love."

The News said: "There is a magnificent portrayal of Noah by Danny Kaye which goes deep into one's heart."

The Times said: "It need take no unduly critical mind to note the flaws in the musical itself. When Kaye has some of Mr. Rogers's best numbers to sing, the show glows."

The Post said: "The show is just a bit disappointing. Mr. Kaye is altogether brilliant."

Kaye says: "And the best thing of all is to get the kind of notice we got at the end of the show today. Harry Goz, who plays Shem, said in all his times in Fiddler on the Roof he had never seen on a Wednesday matinee, a standing ovation.

"Richard Rodgers has really written some great, great songs. When the songs begin to be played and become a little more familiar then you begin to realize how good they really are."

Bishop, Blonde Don't Mix Well

LONDON (AP) — A comedy show about a bishop and a blonde was banned from British television today.

The episode in The Mating Game, a weekly series about unlikely couples meeting through a computer dating system, was to go on Britain's commercial network Friday. Advance publicity sparked protests to the Independent Television Authority, the watchdog over the commercial network.

Gerald Flood played a bachelor bishop who is matched with an actress played by Jan Walters. The meeting ends with the actress stripping in her apartment.

Country Star Enters Hospital

Clark, 37, the pudgy guitar-picking star of CBS-TV's Hee Haw, was admitted to hospital with chest pains Tuesday night.

His physician, Dr. William Ewers, did not rule out the possibility that Clark may have suffered a heart attack, but said preliminary examinations indicated the entertainer was suffering from exhaustion.

'Pillar of Society Plotted' Murder

MINEOLA, N.Y. (UPI) — Police credited a parent teacher association Tuesday for gossip which led to the arrest of a "well-respected" Brooklyn school principal and a shapely young teacher on charges of conspiracy in the murder of the principal's wife.

Howard Holder, 43, of North Valley Stream, N.Y., principal of Brooklyn public school 157, and Lynnor Gershenson, 26, of Brooklyn, were arraigned Tuesday and held on $50,000 bail each pending trial.

The educator and the divorcee, who allegedly had been having an affair, were charged with conspiracy in the killing of Holder's 41-year-old wife, Joan. Mrs. Holder was chloroformed in her bed sometime during the night of Aug. 26-27.

No one has been charged with the actual murder, which is under investigation. Police said evidence on the murder will be submitted to a grand jury.

Detective Capt. George Archer, commander of Nassau County's precinct squads, said Holder and Mrs. Gershenson met several times last March with underworld figures, offering $10,000 to $20,000 to have Mrs. Holder killed by "Chloroform, poison pills or force." There is no evidence that any money was paid.

During the early days of the investigation, everybody detectives talkedm to, described Holder as a pillar of the community.

When the schools reopened in September, however, investigators who visited Holder's school — P.S. 157 in the Williamsburg section of Brooklyn — were told by members of the parent-teacher association that it had been common knowledge for months that the principal was having an affair with Mrs. Gershenson.

Today's light drinkers have minds of their own. They like moderation and informality—and the kind of light, mixable rye that goes with them. Tastes aren't what they used to be. But, unfortunately, most whiskies still are.

But not Triple Crown. Taste it. You'll be surprised. It tastes like you've always wanted a rye to taste.

Triple Crown is made for you by the Black Velvet Canadian Whisky Company —a division of Gilbey Canada Limited.

Derailment Injures Man

Only one passenger required hospital treatment when the CNR Super-Continental train, westbond from Montreal to Winnipeg and Vancouver, was derailed early Wednesday nine miles east of Capreol, Ont. near Sudbury. The derailment, believed caused by a broken rail, damaged some 500 feet of track, which is expected to be repaired by today. The 130 passengers were picked up by bus and placed on another section of the Super-Continental originating in Toronto. Treated for chest pains was Donat Brasseur, 55, of Winnipeg.

Yippie Chief Defies Order To Leave

LONDON (AP) — American Yippie leader Jerry Rubin defied a British government order to leave the country today and said he and his followers would remain in Northern Ireland to help "the revolutionary, socialist movement."

In a statement issued in London by Brian Flanagan, an American spokesman, Rubin said: "The American Yippies (Youth International Party) are in Belfast and we intend to stay here. We tell (British Home Secretary) Reggie Maudling, the British butcher, to go to hell.

"He has ordered us out of the so-called United Kingdom by Thursday because of our political activities and we will not obey this fascistic, seven-day restriction.

"We are creating ties with our sisters and brothers in the revolutionary, socialistic movement in Ireland."

Rubin invited Maudling to a news conference which the Yippies said they would stage Friday in Belfast, capital of Northern Ireland which is part of the United Kingdom.

He also invited Maudling's "local henchman, shoot-to-kill Freeland" to attend. Gen. Sir Ian Freeland commands British troops assigned to keep peace between Roman Catholic and Protestant communities in Northern Ireland.

Rubin appeared on a live David Frost television show last Saturday, during which Yippies invaded the stage, shouting obscenities, squirting water pistols at Frost and scattering flower petals.

Luna Probe Halfway

MOSCOW (AP) — The unmanned Soviet spacecraft Luna 17 today passed the halfway point to the moon today. It is scheduled to carry out "lunar exploration" after landing on the lunar surface Saturday or Sunday, the Russians say.

Reports from Soviet tracking stations said the craft was observed through powerful telescopes as it reached a point 144,000 miles from earth.

Luna 17, launched Tuesday, is expected to attempt to duplicate the feat performed two months ago by Luna 16—a soft landing on the moon and a return to earth with samples of lunar soil.

Gas Tanks Explode

Rochester Bombs Believed Work Of Neo-Nazis

By DON WATERS

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — In the first hours of Columbus Day, Oct. 12, five closely-timed dynamite bombs exploded at a federal building and a county building, a pair of Negro churches and a union official's home.

Rochester was a prosperous and, until the bombs, peaceful city of 290,000. Why the violence?

Fifteen days later, terrorists struck again. Dynamite bombs exploded at two synagogues.

Another synagogue, another bombing three days after election day, Nov. 3. This time a fuse-type device exploded shortly after 1 a.m., blowing two holes in the rear of Temple Beth Am in suburban Henrietta.

The private home that was the bombers' target is occupied by Richard T. Clark, business agent for four Rochester locals of the Operating Engineers Union, and his family.

Explosions were planted in shrubbery on the front lawn and the front porch of the home was heavily damaged. Windows in the dwelling also were shattered.

Some people see the bombings, especially of the churches and synagogues, as the work of neo-Nazi rightists. Others, mindful of leftist extremists implicated in bombings of government buildings elsewhere in the United States, feel a radical element may be trying to bring revolution to Rochester.

City and police officials say they are not sure which end of the political spectrum can be blamed for the attacks.

Most residents view Rochester as a stable, orderly community that has one of the lowest unemployment rates and best-paid work forces in the country.

In recent months, however, several thousand workers at two General Motors Corp. plants have been made idle by the nationwide United Auto Workers strike against the carmaker and a clothing plant laid off 400 workers.

In addition, there has been over recent years an influx of minority groups, especially Negroes and Puerto Ricans, into the city, with an attendant exodus of whites into the suburbs.

There now are an estimate 50,000 blacks, and more tha 15,000 Spanish-speaking r es dents in the city, most conce trated in the deteriorating Nor Side. Rochester's present pop lation of 290,000 is a decli from 332,000 in 1950.

Bernard R. Gifford, 27-yea old president of F.I.G.H.T., black community-action grou is among those who theori that the bombings were t work of right-wing terrorists.

Tree Differences Provide Puzzle

By HILDA BEASTALL

Differences in appearance of trees with identical names are a great puzzle to new gardeners, but usually a logical explanation can be found if we hunt around a bit. We will take just two examples out of the dozens, hoping that solutions to other puzzling differences will be cleared up in the discussion.

Hilda

First, the differences in birch trees which we may be growing in clumps of three for airy shade in our gardens or a single specimen anywhere on a large lot.

Birches may have distinctions in their bark color; or there is a purple-leafed birch and there is Young's Weeping-birch. All of these are grown as grafted specimens, but in addition thousands of seedling birches are sold for grouping and for creating light woodland areas in city gardnes.

The grafted ones will all be exactly true to their name every time, but variatins will occur among seedlings growing on their own roots.

These differences may be in leaf shape, some being quite serrated and having three or more main points; others may be oval with toothed edges. Branching habit will vary too, as will twig habit, some being more drooping than others.

These variales are all pleasant enough in birches, for it is mainly for their white flaking trunks and airiness of branch structure that we grow them and this they will have

Since it is not too readily propagated from cuttings, it is from seed that most of our stock is grown. We notice some trees have quite a smooth grey bark, others are rough and almost corky; some branch freely from the base making a wide columnar tree, others are distinctly slender.

Perhaps the most noticeable difference occurs in the amount of fall color for which this Sweet-gum is so prized. The lobed and toothed maple-like leaves can be fantastically brilliant with every fall shade from green through the reds to purple-plum, or they can be mediocre.

These differences are the reason for garderners to choose their tree while it is still in the nursery.

While soils, seasons and garden cultivation all have their effects on the end product, they do not change certain basic characteristisces which are found in certain seedlings.

Some may be found retaining their leaves longer than others, and even hardiness to summer drought and winter frost may be a variable quality found in one seedling or another.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By FRED L. KARPIN

During the National Championships held in Boston this past summer, a story that was continually recirculating concerned Lew Mathe, of Los Angeles. Lew is acknowledged by his peers as being one of the world's greatest players. This is the tale.

Back in 1964, the American Contract Bridge League had been sued in an antitrust action. When the case came up in Federal Court, Mathe was one of the witnesses subpenaed to give testimony regarding Master Points.

One of the questions relating to his qualifications as an expert was: "Do you consider yourself to be one of the world's best players?" His anwer was: "Yes, sir!" The next question was: "Would you say that you were possibly the world's greatest player?" "Yes sir, I would," replied Mathe.

After the session had ended, his wife, Eugenie, said to her husband: "Lew, I'm surprised at you! How could you sit there on the stand and publicly declare that you are the greatest player in the world. After all, there are a few others who also qualify."

"What else could I say?" answered Lew. "I had to tell the truth I was under oath. And it's a good thing they didn't ask me if I were the unluckiest player in the world. If they had, I would have told them I was."

As proof of his contention that he is the unluckiest player in the world, Lew could have submitted today's hand as evidence. At the conclusion of the bidding, Lew, who was occupying the East seat (in a duplicate game), turned to his North-South opponents and asked: "Don't you guys know that I opened the bidding?"

Neither side vulnerable. East deals.

Opening lead: Three of ◇.

When North bid five hearts, he was announcing that (1) he had the ace of hearts, and (2), he "loved" spades, South's last-bid suit. When South showed first-round control of diamonds by bidding the suit, North promptly bid the grand slam which was unbeatable!

The opening diamond lead by West was ruffed by South, after which the ace, queen, and jack of trumps were cashed. A club finesse was then taken. Dummy was re-entered via the heart ace, and another club finesse was taken. With the club ace now felling East's king, declarer claimed his grand slam.

It should be added that at no other table was the grand slam bid and an unlucky Mathe received a "bottom" on the board.

A TALE OF 13 RACEHORSES

HOLLOGNES-AUX-PIERRES, Belgium (UPI) — M. Bastin has called in police to save the tail of the last of his 13 race horses still in possession of it.

Tails of the 12 other horses and that of a pony were clipped in successive raids by unknown persons.

Heart Units Defective

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — The American Heart Association was told today that a study of electronic devices used in the cardiac care units of 12 leading hospitals in the United States revealed "significant deficiencies" in all 12.

"The problems varied from time-wasting nuisances to life-threatening hazards," the study said. "Some types of defects could also result in incorrect diagnosis and treatment."

The report from the Wayne State University School of Medicine in Detroit did not name the hospitals or give equipment brand names. It was presented for the annual meeting of the heart association.

"Both equipment manufacturers and hospitals seem to be at fault," the report said, "although both were anxious to correct the situation once it was discovered."

Coward III

LONDON (AP) — Sir Noel Coward, 70-year-old dean of England's theatre, was admitted to hospital Wednesday with pleurisy.

Coward, who underwent treatment for a virus infection in July, was in a wheelchair when he flew into Britain from his Swiss home last week.

He said then that he was not ill—"just rather tired."

SOLUTION FRIDAY

Last Laugh

MILL VALLEY, Calif. (AP) — Everyone laughed when grandmother Jeanne Creemer applied to become a volunteer fire-fighter in this San Francisco suburb, says Tamalpais Valley Fire Chief Richard Oswald.

"The joking subsided when she started handling an 80-pound pressure hose like it was nothing," adds Oswald, who recommended accepting her as a volunteer. The department's board of directors agreed.

Mrs. Creemer, who has two married daughters and two young grandchildren, refused to reveal her age, but insists, "Anything that comes up, I'll tackle."

She says her physical dimensions of five-foot-seven and 132 pounds are comparable to those of several male volunteer firemen in the department.

LOST - FOUND

DANVILLE, Ill. (UPI) — Somebody left a pig's head with an apple stuffed in the mouth on the doorstep of the police station recently.

Police, perflexed, put it in the station's refrigerator. Later, a caller telephoned and reported a pig's head had been stolen from the back seat of his car while he was shopping.

The shopper got his pig's head back.

The Lord is my shepherd; I shall not want.
He maketh me to lie down in green pastures; He leadeth me beside the still waters.
He restoreth my soul: He leadeth me in the paths of righteousness for His name's sake.
Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil; for thou art with me; thy rod and thy staff they comfort me.
Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies; thou anointest my head with oil; my cup runneth over.
Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life; and I will dwell in the house of the Lord for ever.

9 IN MEMORIAM

GILLAN—In loving memory of our dear son Douglas, age 15 years, who fell asleep in Jesus just 6 years ago today, Nov. 11, 1964.
Above the waves of earthly strife,
Above the ills and cares of life
From all temptations tears and care
You're safely landed there!
Away from sorrow, doubt and pain,
Away from worldly loss and gain.
Where all is peaceful, bright and fair
Our darling son we'll meet you there!

Christ has made death a starlit strip between the companionships of yesterday and the reunions of tomorrow.
Lovingly remembered by mom, dad and Paul.

Tonight's Top Television Shows

FAMILY AFFAIR. 7 p.m., Channel 8; 7:30 p.m., Channel 7. And Baby Makes Eight. Cissy's houseguest is pregnant . . . which causes a bit of confusion, because baby chooses the weekend to arrive ahead of schedule, much to the chagrin of French and the consternation of Uncle Bill.

ODD COUPLE. 7:30 p.m., Channel 2. Felix has created a monster in Oscar. He talks him into posing for a men's cologne advertisement and Oscar, carried away with the glamor of it all, sets the scene for a sinus attack Felix will long remember.

GE MONOGRAM SERIES. 7:30 p.m., Channel 5. "Kifaru — the Black Rhinoceros." It seems the nature-study documentary has just about reached the saturation point on television. It's sad because these productions have been one of the bright lights of the medium. We have all seen, many times, the ecological problems in wild life, which is again isolated to a separate animal, the rhinoceros. The scenes of tracking, doping with a dart gun, tagging and releasing are all to familiar. The saving grace of this show is in the life style of a Canadian couple and their two small children in the unfamiliar African countryside. They are biologist John Goddard and family who have spent the last five years working and living there. According to Mrs. Goddard, the children are safer than on a city street and happier except for such inconveniences as no noise toys, which attract lions, leopards and the like.

MATT LINCOLN. 7:30 p.m., Channel 4. Psychiatrist Matt Lincoln becomes a gynecologist, temporarily tonight, and it's all because of the demon rum. David Wayne co-stars and no one makes a more believable alcoholic than he. As a recent widower, he has taken to the bottle and can't let it go. Unfortunately, he is a doctor in a small town whose patients depend on him.

CIRCUS SPECIAL. 8 p.m., Channels 2 and 6. Sammy Davis Jr. stars in this, his first television special. It's an hour of circus-style comedy and music with guests (as clowns, of course) Jerry Lewis, Juliet Prowse, Charlie Callas, Don Rickles and the Smothers Brothers. The Ringling Brothers Barnum and Bailey Circus contributes three acts as well.

THE DEAN MARTIN SHOW 8:30 p.m., Channel 8; 10 p.m., Channel 5. The proof that Dino can cope with any kind of guest star from Orson Welles to a performing walrus is seen again as Zero Mostel comes aboard. The classic comedian's feature is a production of "If I Were a Rich Man" from his Broadway triumph, "Fiddler on the Roof." But when he joins Martin in a musical Shakespearean spoof, the playoffs between the two are worth the watching. Added guests Tony Bennett and Gloria Loring are also in that skit, as well as singing "Honey Wind Blows" by Miss Loring, and a rousing, swinging rendition of "Sing You Sinners" by Bennett and the Golddiggers.

IRONSIDE 8:30 p.m. Channel 5. "Too Many Victims." Forrest Tucker again demonstrates his believability in a straight dramatic role. He is both father and police lieutenant, a situation which has him in deep personal conflict when his young daughter becomes a dope victim. He knows the pusher but can't arrest him for lack of evidence. So, he makes his own and arrests the man on rigged circumstances. Of course, Chief Ironside quickly spots the unsubtle attempt, and is forced to arrest him.

THE THURSDAY NIGHT MOVIE 9 p.m., Channel 7. "This Property Is Condemned" (1966). Natalie Wood and Robert Redford star in this heavy romantic drama that's a mite too weighty for real entertainment values. It has the depressing earthy qualities of a Tennessee Williams drama which it was based on without the dramatic qualities for which that author is noted. Miss Wood is the typical small town girl looking for a way to escape, and Redford is her means, a restless railroad man who falls for her. Their problem is mama, a boarding house mistress who determines to split the couple and does. She can't keep her daughter however, and eventually the two meet in New Orleans where they learn how mama has bamboozled them, and quite a bit more. Charles Bronson and Kate Reid are featured.

THEATRE CANADA. 9 p.m., Channel 2. God's Sparrows. This is a World War One drama, set in Passchendale, France. Waiting to move into battle, five Canadian soldiers exchange hopes and memories. The script is from one chapter of Philip Child's novel, God's Sparrows.

YOUR HEALTH: Dr. Walter Alvarez

Auto accidents kill some 55,000 Americans each year. It is less well known that some persons are much more likely to have a series of car accidents than others. Why is this? In what ways are the accident prone persons different?

In the journal, Medical Insight, recently, Dr. Stuart L. Brown, an expert on mental health, discussed what has been learned about the accident prone persons during a study made in Houston. There they studied the histories of 25 drivers who were killed in highway crashes that were their fault.

All phases of the subject, like the working condition of the car, were investigated, but most attention was given to the psychiatric condition of the driver who made the fatal mistake. A psychiatrist and an attorney interviewed relatives, employers, and acquaintances, until the person's nature was well known.

First, the investigators found that personality disorders are present in 10 per cent of the U.S. general population. In Dr. Brown's investigation, 80 per cent showed serious and obvious impairment in overall personality functioning. Only eight per cent of the good drivers showed such changes. Only 20 per cent of the drivers who died had normal personality patterns.

Of those persons who had fatalities, 60 per cent were alcoholic, and 24 per cent were antisocial (sociopaths). Eight per cent had an obsessive - compulsive personality (unable to control urges to perform certain activities) and another eight per cent had hysterical personalities, who, with excitement, develop weird symptoms such as paralyses. Four per cent each were paranoid (having an unrealistic fear that people are trying to do them harm), passive-dependent (lacking their own motivation to do things; needing to be directed by others), passive-aggressive (seemingly quiet people unable to express their strong anger and violent feelings normally) and schizoid (having some characteristics of schizophrenics; "touch-me-not" persons who are shy and socially withdrawn).

Of the good drivers, only eight per cent were alcoholic and four per cent were sociopaths.

The sociopaths (the 24 per cent) were disdainful of driving rules, authority, and the rights of others. One of the men was born into a disorganized, unstable family. At age eight he was put in a county home and kept there until he was 14. His mother by then had a sixth husband. The bad driver was a pathological liar, and he had had trouble with the law, with women, and had often been in prison. He never had a license, but he had 20 illegal acts in automobiles chalked up against him. He had drifted from one job to another, and had often had trouble with employers. On the day of his death, tired of waiting for a train to pass, he backed up a distance, and then shot ahead, ramming the seventieth car of a 110 car train.

★ ★ ★

Others of the bad drivers had low frustration tolerances and poor judgment; many who had gotten into trouble shortly before had had some marital conflict to which they reacted badly. Eighteen per cent of the drivers had too much alcohol in them at the time of the accident. Shortly before the accident, 40 per cent had been depressed. Seventy-two per cent wre intoxicatd: 32 per cent were uncontrollably angry. I was particularly interested in that fact, because one day on a curving mountain road, I nearly got killed because my friend, the driver of the car in which my family and I were riding, became enraged and completely lost his temper when a man in a car nearly crowded him off the road. Then my friend started driving erratically and dangerously fast.

JAPANESE MEN TOP RUSSIANS

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Japanese men performed a daring, and at times almost unbelievable, series of exercises to overtake the leading Russians and capture the men's team title in the world invitational gymnatics tournament Wednesday.

Japan trailed the Soviet Union after completion of the first three preliminary events Tuesday but beat the Russian men in all three events Wednesday to win 170.40 points to 169.70.

The Russian women retained the team title they won last month in Ljubljana, Yugoslavia, extending their first-day margin to capture the over-all medals easily.

Denny Called Back to Court

DETROIT (AP) — Denny McLain, former Detroit Tiger pitching ace who filed for bankruptcy last June, must appear in court Nov. 20 to answer charges he misrepresented his financial affairs.

An airplane dealer, National Aero Sales Corp. of Las Vegas, Nev., has filed an objection to the discharge of McLain's debts through bankruptcy.

In its objection, National Aero accuses McLain, who was traded to Washington Senators last month, of either giving them an untrue financial statement in January when he was negotiating for $40,000 to buy an airplane, or concealing assets in the bankruptcy petition.

McLain listed assets of $413.66 and debts of $400,042.74 when he filed for bankruptcy.

A FAMILY AFFAIR . . .

EVREUX, France (AP) — There are the jokes about having enuogh kids for a football team, but for the Planquois family of the little village of Perrier-sur-An-Delle in western France it's a fact.

Eleven Planquois brothers will turn out next Sunday to meet the local soccer team in match.

Their team ranges in age from 40 to 14 — and the sons of two of the brothers are the brothers' first formal reserves.

Ellis Shows Power

MIAMI BEACH (AP) — Former champion Jimmy Ellis bombed Peruvian heavyweight Roberto Davilla with several strong right hooks to score a seventh-round technical knockout in a scheduled 10-rounder Tuesday night.

EXPOS' CARL MORTON BEST ROOKIE PITCHER

ST. LOUIS (AP) — The Sporting News has named Carl Morton of Montreal Expos as National League "Rookie-Pitcher-of-the-Year."

The weekly publication said a poll of players resulted in the selection of Bernie Carbo, Cincinnati Reds outfielder, as National League "Rookie-of-the-Year."

For the American League, Bert Blyleven of Minnesota Twins was named rookie pitcher and Roy Foster, Cleveland Indians outfielder, was named rookie player.

School Swim Teams Set for Annual Meet

Young splashers will invade the Crystal Garden Friday and Saturday as the Victoria Amateur Swimming Club stages the 45th annual age-group championships for Greater Victoria schools.

Fifteen teams will be competing in junior high school events, which start at 5:30 p.m. Fri

Namath Cut To Wee Size

NEW YORK (AP) — Now, girls, your wish can come true—you can take Joe Namath home and cuddle him.

You can stroke his long, coal-black hair. You can run a finger down his Roman nose. You can even button up his leather jacket and take off his leather boots.

How?

Just pick him up at a department store or order him through a mail order catalogue.

He costs only $4.99 in a white No. 12 New York Jets uniform complete with helmet, underwear, jersey, pants, shoes, socks, a pennant and a football.

He comes complete with fully jointed arms, and legs, a turn-about body and 12 changes of clothing available at $3 a set.

"I think he's gorgeous," said brunette actress Marcia Forbes after being exposed to a battery of miniature Joes in all their assorted finery.

"The kids, the teen-agers, are clamoring for the dolls as much as the older women," said a buyer for a Manhattan store. "Even the grandmothers are asking for them."

Sinatra's Right Is a Dead Right

Persistent pain following a June operation on his right hand has forced the singer-actor to withdraw from a starring role in a movie, Warner Brothers Studio announced Wednesday.

With a measure of irony, the film is titled Dead Right. In it Sinatra would have played "a tough cop on the trail of a mad sniper terrorizing a city," requiring great physical activity involving the hand, the studio said.

Sinatra, 54, underwent surgery last June for a condition known as Dupytren's contracture, a shortening or distortion of muscular tissue in the palm and fingers.

The disease has been known since biblical times but is named for a Swiss professor of surgery at the University of Paris who described it in 1932. Its cause is unknown.

We'd like to prove we're better

Try our hot water heater for 3 months. Free.

Free. How come?

Free because we'd like to prove that a domestic oil fired hot water heater from Chevron is faster. Up to seven times faster than electric ones. And up to three times faster than gas water heaters. Free also, because we'd like to prove that an oil fired hot water heater from us is cheaper to operate. Up to 40% cheaper than electricity. And up to 20% cheaper than gas.

What kind of hot water heater do you get for nothing?

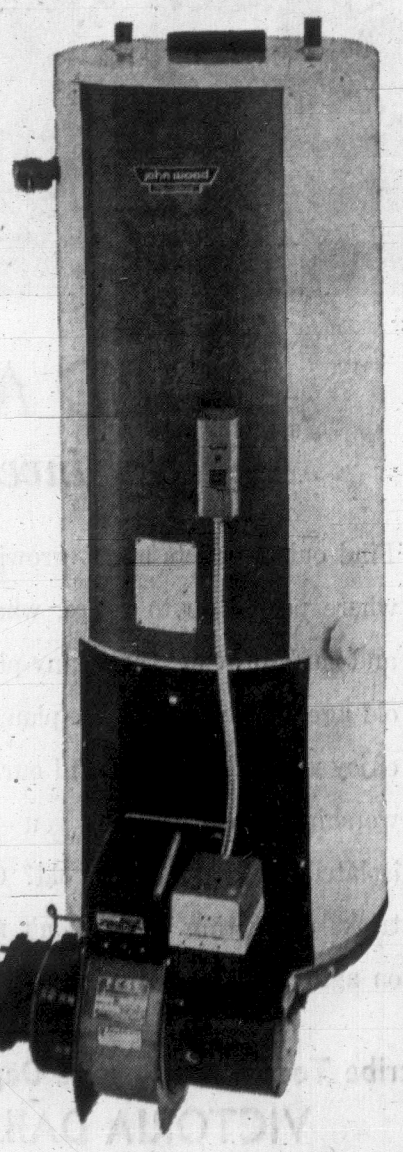
You get the best. Our hot water heater carries a ten year tank warranty. It's compact, rust-proof, fully insulated and double glass-lined. It delivers lots and lots of hot water. (90 gallons every hour.) And here's the best part: use of this oil fired hot water heater is yours for three months. Free. Including installation costs up to $80.

What's the catch?

There are two. An understandable one is that you already have to have an oil furnace. Another is that you contract to buy top quality Chevron Heating Fuels.

What do I do to keep it?

You can either lease or buy. It's only $4.13 a month to lease and if you want to buy, you can spread the payments over a ten year period.



I accept your offer in the spirit in which it's given.

We're delighted and welcome the opportunity to prove we're better. All you have to do now is call one of the Chevron Housewarmers listed below. He will give you the full details and will arrange a convenient time to install your water heater for the free three month period. (This offer expires December 31, 1970.)

Future of Super Jets Linked to Noise Level

By FRANK GRAY

MONTREAL (CP) — The future of supersonic aircraft could become bleak unless engine sound levels are made quieter than those of current sub-sonic aircraft, a Canadian department of transport official said today.

T. M. McGrath, chief of airport services and properties, said the greatest impediment to airport development is noise.

"Unless the problem is solved, the future of commercial aviation may well be challenged as witness the strong anti-SST opinion developing in the U.S. and Europe," he told the convention of the Airport Operators Council International.

"Unless the SST can be quietened, and I mean made a great deal quieter than present generation aircraft, we may well witness the killing of this technological advance by ordinary people standing guard to their environment."

He said noise was a primary factor in the transport department's decision to locate the new Montreal airport at Ste. Scholastique, 32 miles northwest of the city.

The airport itself will occupy 18,000 acres but "we have filed expropriations of 85,000 acres of land . . . to make sure the new airport wil have no noise problems with nearby communities.

POSES QUESTIONS

Mr. McGrath posed some questions to the more than 400 delegates gathered at the council's final day of talks.

"Can't something be done about airline scheduling?".

"Must three airlines leave at exactly the same time for the same destination and arrive there at the same time, expecially when not one of the aircraft has a full load of passengers?"

He also questioned whether, in the face of growing air traffic volumes, the airlines can continue to give passengers personal care or attention.

"Should we not therefore be looking at stanlards of services and facilities?"

Dick Shaw, assistant director general of the International Air Transport Association, said that the airlines themselves have much work to do in simplifying the handling of passengers and cargo.

"For years, we have tended to pamper the passengers in ways incompatible with a mass transportation system. I am sure we must learn to let the passenger do more for himself."

He said that airports must also do their part by simplifying ticket and baggage handling and the processing of passengers.

NEW LOWER PHOSPHATE "all" GETS THE BIG OK!

ENZYME ACTIVE all Concentrated for Automatics

OK

says Mrs. F. Dunfield of Vancouver, B.C.

We gave Mrs. Dunfield an advanced pack of new lower phosphate "all", reformulated with substitute materials. Here's what she had to say about it:

"I first started using "all" when we lived in the interior of B.C. The water was hard there and "all" gave me very satisfactory results. Also the concentrated action of "all" made it easier on my automatic washer. I have used "all" regularly since. The new low-phosphate "all" seems to wash just as well and is O.K. by me."

This is just the beginning. Lever research will continue to try to find ways to use substitute materials to lower phosphate levels while maintaining "all's" high quality performance.

'It's a Hoax,' Says Mrs. Bolam

'I Am Not Amelia' Widow Tells Press

NEW YORK (UPI) — Mrs. Irene Bolam denied Tuesday that she is Amelia Earhart, the world-famed aviatrix who disappeared in the Pacific in 1937.

The white-haired widow called a press conference the day following publication of a book, Amelia Earhart Lives by Joe Klaas, which said she was the best candidate to be Miss Earhart if the flyer had survived.

"I am not a mystery woman," said Mrs. Bolam who lives in Leisure Village, a New Jersey retirement community. "I am not Amelia Earhart."

Mrs. Bolam, a formr flyer and friend of Miss Earhart's, described the book published by McGraw-Hill as "A poorly documented hoax." She said she would submit to fingerprint test anytime to prove she was not the woman who disappeared on a round-the-world flight.

The book told quite a story. It alleged that Miss Earhart was captured by the Japanese after she was shot down on Hull Island while on a spy mission. It said she was imprisoned in the imperial palace compound in Tokyo and was released at the end of the war in return for Allied retention of Emperor Hirohito on the Japanese throne.

"It's a miserable thing to capitalize on Amelia," said Mrs. Bolam. She added that her attorneys were reading the book and "examining the many false innuendos and statements to determine what course should be pursued." She denied any interest in the book financially or otherwise.

Mrs. Bolam said she was born Irene O'Crowley in Newark, N.J., lived in Caldwell, N.J., and went to a Catholic boarding school there. She said she later worked in a Long Island bank and married several times, most recently to Guy Bolam, who dietl six months ago. At the time of his death they lived in Jamesburg, N.J.

She said that the researcher for the book, retired air force Maj. Joseph Gervais, became "obsessed with the idea that I might be Amelia" after he met her at arf old timer flyers' reunion in 1965.

Klaas asserted in his book that even the name Bolam was made up from the coded name of the Phoenix Islands where Miss Earhart is believed to have crashed. He said Mrs. Bolam did not get her flying licence until the day the aviatrix took off on her trip, hinting that it was to provide a cover for Miss Earhart if her spy trip failed.

CAUT Threatens Censure of SFU

OTTAWA (CP) — A motion of censure against the board of governors and president of Simon Fraser University has been recommended by the executive committee of the Canadian Association of University Teachers.

Alwyn Bertland, CAUT executive secretary, said the motion was approved in September but was not made public until Tuesday "in order to give President K. T. Strand every possible chance to remedy the situation at Simon Fraser.

"He has not done so."

CAUT has urged Strand and the board to have six suspended faculty members reinstated. An investigation committee said Strand "may not recommend dismissal to the board of governors," Tuesday's statement said.

Berland said the motion of censure will be recommended to the CAUT council in Montreal at the end of the month unless the situation is changed.

A censure motion by the CAUT includes a request that association members refuse to take posts at the censured university.

A man who used false identification to obtain a rented car Nov. 8 and pleaded guilty to a charge of forgery Monday was sentenced to four months in jail Tuesday in provincial court.

Charles King, 27, of no fixed address, forged the name of another man and used a driver's licence and social insurance card that were not his, Judge William Ostler was told.

Prosecutor Cory Stolte told Ostler that King had a lengthy record including convictions for theft, uttering, absconding bail, and obstructing a police officer.

LIPPY PAIR SMACKS WAY TO VICTORY

Cottagers Face Uphill Fight With Indians

By R. J. ANDERSON

SOUTHAMPTON, Ont. (CP) — From the Saugeen River north to Sauble Beach along the shore of Lake Huron runs a strip of land 10 miles in length and little more than 600 feet wide.

It has sweeping sandy beaches and rocky promontories. For the sportsman, there are bass and pickerel and boating. For the children, there are no unexpected bottom holes in breast-high water. For the tourist, historic sites abound on nearby Bruce Peninsula.

It has an appraised market value of $10 million. No white man may buy a foot of it.

It is part of the Saugeen Indian reserve, 50-odd square miles of seemingly worthless sandy soil, scrubby pine and cedar stretching about 5½ miles eastward from the lake, given to the band in 1856 by Queen Victoria, theirs to enjoy in peace and tranquillity forever.

There is something less than peace and tranquillity today.

The Saugeens are on the warpath. They stir to the times and seek some of the good things in life. They have a leader, as tough as the safety helmet he wears on his construction job.

PROTEST INCREASES

Chief James Mason, re-elected band leader last spring for a second two-year term, slapped a hard, work-worn fist on a desk and said with quiet emphasis:

"We won't negotiate. We're not Red Power or any other kind of power. We simply want what we know the land is worth."

His target is made up of 2,800 cottagers who, having figuratively drawn their wagons into a defensive circle, plan to take the offensive against the encroaching Redskins. They're going to court.

At issue between the 720-member band, part of the great Chippewa tribe that once extended through Ontario to the prairies and into the midwestern United States, is an increase this year in lease rentals on cottage lots in the beach-front area of the reserve. The area runs from a point just north of this resort town 21 miles west of Owen Sound to the centre of Sauble Beach.

The increases were sudden, unexpected and sharp—as much as 600 per cent. The original rent figures were low.

The cottagers come from Galt, Kitchener, London and other western Ontario cities with some from Toronto, 145 miles to the southeast, and from the United States.

There are about 2,000 reserves across the country and the Indian affairs department has said it plans to turn their administration over to the Indians themselves in less than five years. The Indians seek ways of putting their land to work for them.

In the beginning, shortly after the Second World War with the boom in tourism just getting under way and city-dwellers starting a rush to summer retreats, band members who owned lots, usually 80 by 200 feet, leased them for 10-year periods at $30 a year. Renewal increases were slight —$10 to $20—and, until 1970, the highest rent paid by a cottager was $75.

Each male member of the band was given a lot when he reached the age of 21 and he leased it individually. The band council, in co-operation with the Indian affairs department, administers most lot leases and the affairs of the reserve as a whole. Income from band-administered lots is deposited in an Ottawa bank with the interest split among reserve members. Each got $20 in 1969.

CHIEF TAKES OVER

Then Chief Mason took office. The council engaged a professional appraisal firm which set a value of $4,000 on a beach-front lot, $2,000 for a second-row lot and lower figures for less-desirable property. Chief Mason said: "We'll charge eight per cent per annum on appraised value." Cottagers now must pay as high as $320 a year as leases expire.

The cottagers say they don't object to what they consider a "reasonable" increase—their suggested top figure of about $200 for better lots has been rejected by the band—but term the announced rates too high. They also protest that the announcement came without warning.

Most leases contain a clause that in the event of a dispute on rentals between lessee and lessor, a decision can be sought in Exchequer Court. No dispute yet has gone to that court but four cottagers' associations grouped to take one case to law this fall. The decision would be binding on all leases on the reserve and, presumably, on other reserves where band land is rented for recreational purposes.

Pinto

Three reasons why . . .
Pinto is no ordinary small car.
Reason No. 1—Its engines are made in Germany and England by Ford of Europe. Over 4,000,000 of these engines have been produced. A modified version powers the famous Lola and Lotus racing car.

These engines give you outstanding reliability and performance.

Reason No. 2—The steering is great. It's called rack and pinion. No other North American car has it—and for imports—just Jaguar, Ferrari and Porche.

Rack and pinion steering gives you excellent handling, quick turning. But that's not all. Reason No. 3—Pinto also has the widest track in the small car field: this means its wheels are wider apart for much better stability when passing, turning or in strong wind.

Rich Family To Drop Hold On Chile Paper

By LEWIS H. DUIGUID

LIMA, Peru (WP) — In an attempt to accommodate the government of socialist president Salvador Allende, Chile's powerful Edwards publishing family will withdraw almost entirely from the board of the Mercurio newspaper chain.

President of the board, Agustin Edwards, will resign to live permanently abroad. The one Edwards to remain on the board will be Edwards' sister Sonia, 39, who supported Allende in the recent campaign, even as Mercurio tried desperately to defeat him.

The platform of Allende's Popular United Front calls for an end to news monopoly, a direct reference to the pervasive Mercurio papers. Allende often indicated in his campaign that he would see Mercurio taken from Edwards.

FREEDOM AFFIRMED

But in the bargaining between Allende and the defeated Christian Democratic Party, whose votes in congress he needed for election, a constitutional amendment resulted that reaffirms press freedom.

This did not assure the survival of Mercurio, but seemed to increase its chances. Since election, Allende has not referred to any takeover.

At the same time, the paper has modified its style, offering space on the editorial page to leftist writers and dropping the conservative polemical articles that once were sprinkled among the news stories.

The newspaper's board will represent management rather than ownership. Eighty per cent of the shares left by Edwards' father will be retained by Agustin Edwards and his mother Maria Isabel. She, too, will live abroad and will be dropped from the board. Augstin's brother Roberto, representing 10 per cent ownership, will leave the board.

PSYCHOLOGIST

Sonia, with her 10 per cent, will remain. She is a psychologist who is separated from her French husband. In recent years she also separated politically from the family, which supported conservative former president Jorge Alessandri.

But according to a company spokesman, with Allende's victory, she asked for a division of the deceased father's fortune, and this precipitated the realignment.

Although the Edwards family is very wealthy, all of its known assets remain in Chile. They are thus effectively useless to Agustin Edwards abroad. He is expected to take a job with one of the several foreign firms that were his partners in joint ventures in Chile. One possibility is Pepsi-Cola. The Edwards owned the Santiago bottling plant.

Scientists Hope To Crack Crust

ADDIS ABABA, Ethiopia (Reuter) — A British led geological team here wants to study the possibility of making a new attempt to pierce the earth's crust, this time at a point in Ethoiopia where the world's three great rifts meet.

Site of the proposed study is in the Afar depression of the Danakil desert in northeastern Ethiopia, about 200 feet below the level of the Red Sea, where geologists maintain that the earth's crust is thin and new.

IMMENSE COSTS

This is the junction of three natural flaws or cracks in the earth—the Red Sea, the Gulf of Aden and the East African Rift—which could mean a particularly weak spot in the earth's skin.

Two previous attemps have been made to pierce through the earth's crust to the mantle below—by the Americans in the Pacific Ocean and by the Soviet Union in the Kola Peninsula in the Aretic Circle. Both ran into immense costs and technical difficulties.

Prof. Russell Black, head of the geology department of the Haile Selassie University here, said the Afar depression is probably the most favorable place in the world to try to drill a bore through the crust to the earth's mantle.

The earth's crust varies between four and 40 miles in thickness and is believed to be at its thinnest beneath the oceans.

Below it lies the earth's mantle which is about 1,900 miles thick and which envelopes the core. So far, no drilling has ever penerated to the mantle.

Most Can Hold Out Month Without a Job

By THE CANADIAN INSTITUTE OF PUBLIC OPINION
(World Copyright Reserved)

If you lost your job tomorrow, how long could you get by without earnings — a week, a month, a year?

A special study, made with a scientific cross-section or employed men and women across the nation, shows that 16% estimate they could manage for only a week; another 20% say up to a month, totalling about a third (36%), while 20% believe it would be for over a year. The remainder name other periods of time within a year. Less than one-in-ten doesn't know.

An interesting sidelight is the fact that almost 20 years ago, Canadians responded to this question in a very close pattern with the response today. The question, put to employed citizens in 1953, and again today:

If you lost your job tomorrow, how long could you get by without earnings?"

	1953	TODAY
Up to 1 week	15%	16%
Up to 1 month	29	20
1 month to 3	17	14
3 months to 6	11	10
6 month to 1 year	8	11
Over a year	16	20
Don't know	4	9
	100%	100%

The above time estimates are much the same for employed men, as for women, with the exception, that considerably more women (28%) say they could live without earnings for over a year, than men (18%).

Dramatic evidence of the value that university education gives is shown in the fact that among these men and women, 40% report they could live over a year without earning, as compared to only 13% among those with public school training. Those with high school or technical school backgrounds reveal a level of 19% who could do so.

No Bars, Locks At This Centre

There are no bars on the windows, no straitjackets, no locks on the doors and no starched white uniforms.

Operating for a little more than four years, the institute is in sharp contrast to the gloomy, restrictive mental hospitals of the past where patients were locked up and largely forgotten.

Dr. Gerald Shugar, 34-year-old chief of service on one of the four adult floors, is proud of the institute's record of returning most patients to the community after a stay of just four weeks at the institute.

"Such a short stay is phenomenal," he said.

People from all walks of life are admitted. They may be schizophrenics, manic depressives, potential suicides or people with just slight character disorders.

Doctors at the hospital say they stress a sort of team approach. Members include a psychiatrist, psychologist, nurse, social worker, occupational therapist—and the patient.

Dr. R. E. Turner, associate medical director, said the Clarke treatment makes use of the "buddy" system.

Each patient is paired with another. This helps avert a crisis, and if one does occur, the "buddy" is around to summon help.

Dr. Turner said that Clarke combines drugs, shock and individual or group psychotherapy in its treatment. But the friendly, sympathetic attitude of the staff is the basic formula of the institute.

Dr. Turner said the absence of locks and bars helps relieve patient tension.

"Put a suicidal person in a padded cell and he's sure to try and kill himself.

"We know who will produce problems and we know how to anticipate them to prevent an emergency arising."

Dr. Shugar said drugs, generally used since 1952 to help treat mental patients, have had a "fantastic impact on treatment." They made psychotherapy possible because they made the patient sit still and relax.

Dr. Shugar and others like to avoid the word "cure" when discussing patients.

GOALS ARE DEFINED

"In my book, 'cure' should be dropped from the language. What we do is return people to function in the community from which they came."

He said doctors do not discuss "cures." They are concerned with how soon the patient can be returned to society, how well he adapts and with the quality of his life.

"People often leave here not only with their acute illness gone, but also richer in human resources. They can communicate better, they're more emphatic, their goals in life are better defined."

The hospital makes access easy to all patients. It operates under the Ontario Hospital Services Commission and people insured under the provincial health insurance plan are covered fully for treatment.

Manslaughter Charge Laid

REVELSTOKE (CP)—A manslaughter charge has been laid in this eastern British Columbia community against Michael Leroy Benzien, 25, of Carlisle, Ont.

He is charged in the death of 15-months-old Clarence Bolton whose body is said by police to have been put into a cardboard suitcase and thrown into the Illecillewaet River in August.

The baby's 19-year-old mother Kathleen Audrey Bolton of Hamilton, Ont., was charged earlier with neglecting the proper burial of a human body and was remanded Monday to Nov. 17.

Visitors Swarm Chinese

A crowd estimated at 3,000 swarmed aboard the Chinese grain freighter Hongqi Wednesday.

The open house given by the crew climaxed a series of events marking the arrival in Victoria of the first Chinese freighter since Canada established diplomatic relations with China last month.

The freighter, with 9,700 tons of grain, is scheduled to leave for Vancouver Friday where she will take on more wheat before returning to China. The vessel arrived at Ogden Point last Sunday.

★

A steady stream of people visited the ship Wednesday afternoon. They were shown around and received buttons emblazoned with Mao's head.

Mayor Courtney Haddock, who was present, said he would ask the B.C. Government to request the government of China to establish its B.C. consulate in Victoria.

LIKE THE ARMS of an octopus, the bow lines of Chinese freighter Hongqi entwine bollard at Ogden Point Dock. Large crowd took advantage of an "open house" Wednesday to visit the ship. The freighter, first to dock in Victoria since Canada and China established diplomatic relations, is being loaded with Prairie wheat.

Screwdriver or Knife Sought by Police In Cabbie's Murder

By STEVE HUME

Gerry Mulholland was a dedicated athlete and he never missed a soccer practice.

It was that dedication to fitness and precision that enabled him to remain, at the age of 37 — venerable years for an athlete — a star goalkeeper with Gorge Molsons.

He led his team to an undefeated record this year in the Victoria and District Soccer League's third division. And at an age when most men are packing it in because of creaky legs, opposing teams had scored only four goals on Mulholland.

Tuesday night, for some unknown reason, Mulholland skipped his scheduled 7:30 practice and took the taxi he drove part time to make a pickup at a downtown hotel.

Mulholland was pronounced dead on arrival at St. Joseph's Hospital shortly after police arrived at the scene at 8 p.m.

Victoria City Police said he had apparently died of a small stab wound in the back of the head. An autopsy was ordered and results were to be released later today.

Meanwhile police were searching the area for a murder weapon and a police dog from Nanaimo was being used in the investigation.

Last Seen Alive at Churchill

They said he was last seen alive while waiting for a fare at the front entrance of the Churchill Hotel on Government Street at about 7 p.m.

They asked that anyone who saw a person or persons:

- Get into the light-colored, late-model Owl Taxi at the Churchill Hotel;
- Riding in the cab towards or in the vicinity of Beacon Hill Park;
- Near the car on Battery Street; report the information to Victoria City Police.

Mulholland, who lived at 917 Bewdley in the Work Point area of Esquimalt, was a Canadian Armed Forces seaman stationed at CFB Esquimalt.

He drove taxi for Doug Marson, of 308 Catherine, owner of Owl Taxi Ltd., on a part-time basis when he came off duty with the navy.

Marson said Mulholland would call him each afternoon from the CFB Esquimalt barracks when he finished work to ask if there were any driving jobs available in the evening.

Mulholland was the head of a family of seven children.

"He was a real clean-living guy — didn't smoke. He'd have a couple of beer now and again, but he'd never drink too much," said Lloyd Strickland, manager of Mulholland's soccer team.

Mulholland's last game, played Sunday at Carnarvon Park, was a personal triumph — a 6-0 shutout against Stein Construction that gave his team possession of first place.

"He really was the backbone of the team. He'd talk it up from back in the nets and he spent a lot of time working with the younger players on the way up."

"We've already won one cup this season."

Mulholland was selected as a rep player with the Victoria armed forces team that represented British Columbia at a national soccer tournament for the Canadian Forces championship at Kingston, Ont.

Doctor Killed In Nigeria

A former Victoria doctor was among four people who died Oct. 24 when their Volkswagen bus went off a bridge and into a river 50 miles northeast of Lagos, Nigeria.

The Associated Press reported the bodies of Dr. Kenneth Dick, 40, and three companions were recovered from beneath the Oni River Bridge Tuesday, 17 days after the accident.

The group was driving from Lagos to the town of Iyale, 250 miles to the northeast, where Dick was working in a hospital supported by the Plymouth Brethren, a fundamentalist missionary group.

Other members of the party included Joan Rycroft, about 24, a medical secretary from Toronto, who had been working at the hospital for several months, Ronald Gross, 27, of Greenville, S.C., who arrived in Nigeria Oct. 19, and a Nigerian man identified only as Balogun, a friend of Dick.

MISSIONARY AT 19

Dick, who was married with seven children, had lived in Nigeria with his family since 1961. His wife Norma, who grew up in Ladysmith, is a nursing graduate of the Royal Jubilee Hospital.

Dick was born in Alberta, moved to Crofton when he was 16, attended school at Ladysmith, and Victoria Normal School for teacher training. At 19, however, he decided to become a missionary, and studied medicine at the University of B.C.

He interned at the Jubilee, in 1958 and practised in Victoria from 1959 to 1961.

Horton later returned to Victoria because of ill health. Dick has lived in Nigeria ever since except for a nine-month period which he spent practising specialty surgery at Hamilton, Ont.

He intended to stay indefinitely in Nigeria.

Rotary Turns Meals-on-Wheels

Douglas Rotary Club has come to the rescue of the Greater Victoria meals-on-wheels program, Saanich Ald. William Noel said today.

A cheque was received this week for $958 "enabling the program to operate in the black for 1970," he said.

LAY IN BUSHES NEARLY FOUR HOURS

Freak Accident Victim 'Poor'

A 17-year-old youth who was believed seriously injured in a freak car accident and lay in the bushes for almost four hours Monday night before being discovered is in poor condition at St. Joseph's Hospital.

Wayne Joseph Renshaw, of Squamish, was believed struck by a car that went out of control in the 500 block of Goldstream in Langford, and was thrown under a nearby hedge.

When Colwood RCMP and the Langford ambulance arrived they immediately took the car's driver Mrs. Gertraud Roller and her two children Henry, 10, and Mario, 2, to St. Joseph's.

Renshaw, lying unconscious under the bush which was described as eight feet wide and 10 feet high, was overlooked. He was only two or three feet from the accident scene.

Renshaw was found by Mrs. Erna Kind, of 570 Goldstream.

The car which went out of control struck a power pole in front of her house at 6:30 p.m.

Mrs. Kind and her husband Rudolf were sitting in their living room later listening to taped religious speeches with two visitors when they were distracted by moans about 9 p.m.

She said her husband "thought it was a foghorn because it seemed so regular."

An hour later, showing the guests out the front door, Mrs. Kind said they heard the moaning again and thought it was a drunk in the bush.

When the two visitors shone their car lights on the bushes Renshaw became visible and the four rescued him and called an ambulance.

Colwood RCMP, who attended at the original traffic accident, said this morning they had no new leads in their investigation of the incident in which Renshaw was injured.

Esquimalt Centre Handed Setback

The provincial government has refused to give Esquimalt more than 10 years to repay a $700,000 loan on its proposed recreation centre.

The department of municipal affairs approved in principle Esquimalt's request to go to the people in December with a loan authorization bylaw for the centre but stipulated that it would have to be repaid within a 10-year period.

Mayor Arthur Young said today council was hoping for a repayment period of about 20 years and the government decision means the project will be postponed six or 12 months.

Young said with a 20-year repayment period it would have been a tight schedule and anything less would mean other projects would suffer.

He said, however, he wasn't completely disheartened by the decision because of the "stable and good financial situation in Esquimalt."

He felt the decision was "a polite way" of saying now was not the time to ask for those particular loan terms.

"This is the way I am reading it," he said.

Sewage Reduced

The sewage treatment plant at the Wilkinson Road jail, which drained into Colquitz Creek, has been taken out of service, it was learned today.

The jail now is connected with a sanitary sewer line extending to the vocational school and running to municipal sewers flowing to Macaulay Point, Esquimalt, marine outfall.

The jail treatment plant was a responsibility of the provincial government which paid for the connection to the vocational school line.

A Saanich engineering official said discharge from the plant to the creek was not large but there will be a beneficial effect by decreasing nutrients.

It is expected that two other treatment plans, at Northridge and Chesterlea subdivisions, will be taken out of service next year when municipal sewers are extended, further decreasing sewage discharge into Colquitz.

WHITE WHALE NAMED CHIMO

Mrs. John Harrison of Cobble Hill won 250,000 pennies Wednesday when her entry, Chimo, was drawn as the name of the white killer whale at Oak Bay Marina's Sealand.

Sealand president Bob Wright said 279 contestants had submitted the same name.

POLICE FOLLOW LEADS ON ARMED HOLDUP

Saanich police still have plenty of leads to follow in their investigation of the paunchy bandit who fled with $5,000 from a Saanich Peninsula Credit Union office at 4512 West Saanich a week ago.

He escaped from the scene in a 1967 Barracuda but a composite drawing of the fugitive has given police some new leads.

The man is believed to be armed and dangerous.

U and Vic Get Together

Thirteen people have been recruited to a committee which will study the relationship between the University of Victoria and Greater Victoria.

The committee is to hold hearings in January and February and issue a report around the beginning of March.

Its task will be to answer three general questions: What should Uvic be trying to do for society in general? What can the Greater Victoria community do for Uvic? What should the university and the community be doing together?

The study is called Project University, and it's an idea of Alma Mater Society president Robert McDougall.

And from the University: Trevor Matthews, economics lecturer and assistant to the president, sociologist Dr. Rennie Warburton, board of governors vice-chairman Lloyd McKenzie, Lynn MacKenzie, Gary Zak and John Owen (all students).

HALLOWEEN 'FUN' DOUSED IN COURT

Six Halloween pranksters from Saanich today had their enthusiasm dampened in Victoria Provincial Court when they pleaded guilty to public mischief by turning on 14 fire hydrants Oct. 31.

Ronald W. Ell, 20, of 4885 Cherry Tree Bend, Patrick C. McConnell, 18, of 4510 Markham, James W. Martin, 17, of 4901 Cherry Tree Bend, Eric R. Quissy, 20, of 742 Mann, James F. Rankin, 19, of 458 Viaduct, and Neil G. J. Thompson, 17, of 4987 Old West Road, were each sentenced to one day in jail and fined $50.

Judge William Ostler said they were free to go but the one day would appear on their criminal record because of the nature of the offence.

Ostler said the accused had committed "idiotic and dangerous acts."

A Saanich police officer testified that the six had travelled by car using three large wrenches to turn the water on.

Arthur Mayse . . .

THERE WAS A TIME when Greater Victoria School Board took a dour view of trespassers on its turf. The parent with plaintive bleat, the advocate of permissiveness and the seeker after reform could damn well keep their noses out of the educative process.

This approach had its faults. It was both arrogant and narrow. It made no truce with change. But with the final report of an exercise billed as Project Learning to hand, I am wondering whether those boardsmen of old didn't have more basic savvy than the present crop.

What this board did, a year or so ago, was invite a six-committee segment of the public to try its hand at planning the education of the young. According to a board spokesman, the result points the way to a new kind of school for the Seventies.

I hope not. Were I a teacher by profession, I'd hope with even more fervor that the board will be mighty selective in dealing with the recommendations turned in.

Some of these are sensible enough. The drop-out who finds himself thwarted by lack of education should certainly be given a second chance, though not necessarily in the school from which he withdrew.

I don't quarrel unduly with the principal of self-government and internal policing for teachers — a move that should include the right to sock away their pension fund where it will draw a reasonable rate of interest.

The suggestion that school sports should have maximum participation rather than the production of crack athletes as their aim is a good one. Adopted, it could mean fewer kids on the sidelines and more getting in there as participants.

I'm not so sure, though, about much that this stirring of many spoons in education's soup-kettle has produced. Some of the recommendations are unrealistic. Others would reduce the teacher to the role of ineffectual whipping-boy in a reconstructed Tower of Babel.

I have sufficient faith in the young to realize that the world isn't necessarily going to fall apart when the guiding hands that steer its present courses are withdrawn. It may even be a much better dwelling-place.

But I don't really believe that students should be free to choose their teachers, or that school attendance should be optional above elementary level.

These may be delightful concepts, and at age 14, I would have welcomed them.

As it was, an unfeeling school system bent on lacerating my ego and squelching my creative powers gave me no such option. If it had, I'd never have chosen tough Teacher X, a hard rock who ground at me until a feeble little glimmer of mathematical knowledge penetrated my skull.

I didn't like that teacher much, but thanks to him, I'm not altogether clueless when forced to work out some rudimentary problem that involves figures.

Even in the computerized 70's on which we are now launched, a primitive sense of mathematics is worth having. It helps when some cheating metal monster adds extra dollars to a bill.

Consider too the frightful position of the teacher required to win a yearly popularity contest before he could teach. The child would be his master. His position would be untenable. If he weren't so trapped by circumstance that escape was impossible, better for him to seek a job in which he could at least keep his self-respect.

I believe that education should be open to change in a changing world. I do not believe in the pap course, the down-grading of teacher authority, or freedom of student choice to the point where all that is difficult and distasteful may be sidestepped.

It's nice if the school experience can be pleasant, but what matters much more is that it be applied effectively. If it isn't — and I fail to see how it could be under many of the conditions this report puts forward — the child goes ill prepared into a life that offers precious few concessions.

Mine is a horribly old-fashioned viewpoint. It consorts poorly with the idealized picture of the Gung Ho school where discipline is replaced by "a climate of warmth, co-operation and mutual responsibility" and in which everybody does as he wants.

There are classrooms in which warmth, co-operation and shared responsibility prevail today. But that climate was not achieved through the total permissiveness that reduces education to a farce.

Plowe Wields Torrid Stick In Cat Surge

By ERNIE FEDROUK

TED PLOWE
. . . holds hot hand

With Plowe scoring three goals, the Cougars reeled off their eighth straight home-ice victory Tuesday night at Memorial Arena by defeating Chilliwack Bruins 6-3 before 1,554 fans.

The 20-year-old winger, making up in spades for a slow start, now has scored 10 goals in Victoria's past five games to raise his season's total to 14.

Plowe's scoring streak actually extends to seven straight games if you want to toss in a pair of exhibiton games at Port Alberni and Chemainus.

STRETCH LEAD

Cougars' latest victory moved them three points ahead of Vancouver Centennials in the race for the Coastal Divison lead. The Cats wind up an eight-game home stand Saturday by facing Kamloops Rockets.

Plowe provided most of the lustre to Tuesday's game. The Cougars, who bombed the Bruins 13-0 in their first meeting of the season, turned in a mediocre performance.

That, combined with obvious improvement by Chilliwack, enabled the Bruins to walk out of the Arena with more respectability than the last time.

REGULARS ABSENT

The Cougars went without regulars Randy Bock, Greg Robinson and Jim Lautenslager. In their places, coach Ron Maxwell filled with a line from the junior "B" Cubs.

The junior "B" line of Mark Patterson, Dennis McLean and Ron Poole didn't look out of place, but, by the same token, failed to contribute anything to Cougars' victory.

Victoria's other two lines did all the work. Maxwell was particularly pleased with the strong performance of the Miles-Bruce Cowick-Thomas unit.

Cougar netminder Ed Forsland played despite feeling effects of a cold. He didn't play his best but, against Chilliwack, it didn't matter.

The Bruins, bolstered by the addition of newcomers Norm Poole and Rob Hesketh, looked vastly improved over their first visit to Victoria. They played their positions, cashed in on their limited scoring chances, and seemed flustered only when Cougars fore-checked strongly.

Penticton Pulls Away In Interior

By The Canadian Press

Single-goal margins in both instances gave Penticton Broncos B.C Junior Hockey League victories in games played Tuesday and Remembrance Day.

Penticton, in a game played at Oliver, stormed from behind in the third period Tuesday night for a 6-5 win over Kelowna Buckaroos, who had carried a two-goal lead through most of the game.

And Wednesday night at Kamloops, the Broncos edged the Rockets 2-1 on goals by Fred Parent and Dale Turner — the latter a scoring fluke which occurred when Kamloops goalie Sam Clegg deflected a shot into his own net in trying to keep it out.

Penticton scorers at Oliver were Bob Nicholson with two, Donaldson, Dan Ashman, Rick Taggart and Fred Parent. For Kelowna, it was Gerry Feist, with two, Craig Einfeld, Dan McCarthy and Greg Fox.

Invaders Build Up Eight-Point Lead

Oak Bay Invaders grabbed an eight-point lead in the two-game, total-point Invitational Bowl by downing host Vancouver Delta 21-13 Wednesday in the opening game of the B.C. bantam football final.

Doug Branter opened scoring for Invaders with first-quarter touchdown that was converttd by Christie Sinclare.

Sinclare went on to convert his own second-quarter TD on a quarterback sneak and then add another major in the third quarter which was converted by Marty Olynyk.

Gary Gill led Delta with a touchdown and convert while Beidel added another TD.

NED HARKNESS

★ ★ ★

Rookie Wing Coach on Way Out?

. . . ABEL SUPPORTS HARKNESS

DETROIT (AP) — It took an awful lot of soul searching before Ned Harkness decided to quit coaching college hockey after 27 years to become coach of Detroit Red Wings.

But already, with the National Hockey League season just five weeks old, the 48-year-old "rookie" has been tabbed by one local newspaper as being on the way out.

Despite the sudden criticism, Sid Abel, the team's general manager, told one reporter Wednesday: "Ned is the coach and will be the coach. Our problem has been that the team hasn't really jelled yet, but it has been showing signs that it can win."

Detroit, going into tonight's game in St. Louis, has a 4-8-2 record for fifth-place in the seven-team NHL East Division.

Harkness has been under fire by a local sportwriter since Sunday's 3-3 tie with Pittsburgh. Bill Brennan, hockey writer for the Detroit News, had several stories of criticism, including one in which he said: "If the Detroit Red Wings are to salvage anything of this National Hockey League season then a coaching change must be made."

Sunday night, before the criticism broke in the paper, Harkness sat calmly behind his office desk and spoke of his new job with the Wings.

"I like it very much," he said. "Mr. Bruce Norris I believe is the finest owner in the NHL. If I didn't believe that I wouldn't be here."

Brennan's criticism indicated that Norris could easily fire Harkness since he fired coach Bill Gadsby last season, without warning, moments before a game.

Harkness said it was very difficult for him to leave Ithaca, N.Y., where he lived while coaching Cornell University for six years. Before that he coached the Rensellaer Polytechnic Institute hockey team for 21 seasons and his over-all record coaching college hockey is an amazing 339-123-9.

What differences are there coaching in the NHL after college?

"The biggest difference is the length of the schedule," said Harkness, who also coached lacrosse teams at RPI and Cornell.

"The NHL schedule is three times as long. You don't get extended practice here because you're playing all the time. In college we could work for three or four days on our problems."

Seals Start to Stir; Canucks Drop Leafs

By The Canadian Press

Franke Selke Jr., general manager of California Golden Seals, foresaw a golden future for his team one night early this season after the Seals had blanked Buffalo Sabres 6-0.

The club was Oakland Seals at the time and the event took place during the National Hockey League's pre-season exhibition schedule.

But the immediate future was dismal for the financially-plagued West-Coast club and a rather bleak picture was painted amid rumors of a possible move to more lucrative centres.

A change in name didn't help. Even brilliant new home uniforms had little effect on the Seals plunge to the NHL's West Division cellar with only two ties to show in their first nine games.

Suddenly, the tides have changed and the new-look Seals are currently the hottest NHL property, winning their next four starts—a club record

STILL IN CELLAR

While their resurgence has yet to get them out of last place, the Seals are within two points of sixth-place Pittsburgh Penguins and within four of Los Angeles Kings and Minnesota North Stars, tied in fourth.

The North Stars tripped Los Angeles 3-1, Pittsburgh battled New York Rangers to a 3-3 tie, Chicago Black Hawks drubbed Philadelphia Flyers 7-1 and Vancouver Canucks dropped Toronto Maple Leafs 4-2 in other scheduled games.

The only game tonight has Detroit Red Wings visiting St. Louis Blues.

At Oakland, the Canadiens, outshot 16 to 5 in the first period, applied pressure of their own late in the game in an effort to salvage some respect.

FIRST POWER-PLAY GOAL

Minnesota capitalized on a power-play for the first time this year and the occasion seemed to spur them to victory on the strength of first-period goals by Jean-Paul Parise and Jude Drouin at Bloomington, Minn.

The North Stars, who had failed on 41 previous tries this year to take advantage of the manpower edge, finally had their efforts rewarded with Drouin pulling the trigger 31 seconds after the Kings' Ross Lonsberry went off for hooking.

The Penguins were hard-pressed for their tie with third-period goals by Jean Pronovost and Wally Boyer enabling them to overcome a 3-1 Ranger lead in New York. Goals by Dave Balon and Ted Irvine 62 seconds apart in the second period had given the New Yorkers their two-goal cushion.

The Hull brothers, Bobby and Dennis, scored two each as the Black Hawks blistered the Flyers to pad their West Division lead to four points over Philadelphia and St. Louis.

It was the same old story in Toronto where the Leafs dropped their third game of the season to the new franchise from Vanvoucer. Third period goals by Rosaire Paiement, Barry Wilkins and Ray Cullen's second of the game snapped a 1-1 tie.

The Canucks had scored 5-3 and 3-2 wins over Toronto at Vancouver and, with a 4-1 exhibition victory earlier, appear to have the Leafs' number at this stage of the schedule.

JOHN FERGUSON

Ferguson Rejoining Canadiens?

MONTREAL (CP) — John Ferguson said Wednesday night he will meet today with Sam Pollock, general manager of Montreal Canadiens, with an "open mind" toward his possible return to hockey.

"I have an open mind and if the conditions are right, I wouldn't be opposed to playing hockey again," said Ferguson, who retired from active National Hockey League competition last month to enter the clothing business.

Asked if the chances he would make a comeback were any better than the 50-50 proposition he termed it two days ago, Ferguson said:

"No, but I'll listen to Sam and see what he has to say. Conditions . . . well, let's just leave it at that."

If the conditions are favorable, Ferguson said he would head into an intense conditioning course immediately and rejoin the Canadiens "in perhaps three weeks."

Ferguson met with his partners, Nelson Stoll and George Gottlieb for 90 minutes Wednesday night on his return from Laurel, Md., where he attended the Washington D.C. International horse race.

"We went over the pros and cons," said Ferguson. "The only thing that's changed from a month ago is that I have an open mind. It was closed then. I was definitely retiring."

PLANS TO DEMAND salary of $100,000 for 1971 National League baseball season announced by pitcher Ferguson Jenkins (above) have drawn reply from Chicago Cubs. General-manager John Holland said today that "individual records are very fine to have, but winning a pennant is more important." Jenkins has won 20 or more games for the Cubs in four straight seasons.

SHROUD OF MYSTERY

SUBPOENA WAVE HITS NFL CLUBS

By Associated Press

A shroud of mystery hangs today over a wave of federal grand jury subpoenas which have been served on more than half of the National Football League's 26 teams.

NFL officials in New York say they have not been informed of any pending federal legal action. But at least 16 NFL clubs were served with summonses by a federal grand jury in Cleveland to appear with their records, beginning Nov. 17. And at least nine other clubs said they had not been subpoenaed as of today.

Carl Steinhouse, head of the justice department's anti-trust division in Cleveland, refused to comment on the matter and referred all inquiries to justice department headquarters in Washington.

A spokesman for the department in Washington said: "We know of no case in the works. However, it could be an individual grand jury action."

There were reports that the anti-trust violations by the NFL and that the investigation might have been touched off by complaints by Walter Beach, a former defensive back with Cleveland Browns.

Summoned to appear before the Grand Jury were Denver Broncos, New Orleans Saints, San Francisco '49ers, Detroit Lions, Dallas Cowboys, Cleveland Browns, Minnesota Vikings, Chicago Bears, Baltimore Colts, Pittsburgh Steelers, Cincinnati Bengals, Buffalo Bills, St. Louis Cardnials, Atlanta Falcons and Los Angeles Rams.

At least nine clubs — New York Giants and New York Jets, Philadelphia Eagles, Oakland Raiders, San Diego Chargers, Miami Dolphins, Kansas City Chiefs, Green Bay Packers and Houston Oilers — said no subpoenas had been delivered to them.

Some clubs had specific individuals subpoenaed and others did not.

Jim Finks, general manager of the Vikings, said a U.S. marshal delivered a subpoena instructing the Minnesota club to be represented before the federal grand jury Dec. 7. Finks said he had been ordered to bring "various documents along the lines of contracts, waivers and options."

Titans Trip Hornets To Take First Place

Victoria Titans defeated visiting Mount View Hornets 8-5 Tuesday to vault into a tie for first place in the Inter-high School Rugby League with Claremont.

Reynolds downed visiting Esquimalt 9-3 the same day and on Monday, Claremont romped to a 24-3 triumph over host Oak Bay.

Titans took a 5-0 lead at the half but Rob Mosses scored a try converted by Norm Baker early in the second frame to deadlock the match. Titans scored the winning try three minutes later.

Randy Benn paced Claremont with two trys while single trys were scored by Duane Rycroft, Chuck Shergold, Ron McDonald and Ken Fox. Richard Bing added three converts for Claremont while Colin Stokkeland scored try for Oak Bay.

The Vics best Claremont 15-1, 15-12, then downed University of Victoria 15-5, 15-9.

Belmont and Victoria YWCA each won three matches, Belmont defeated Royal Jubilee Hospital 15-5, 15-6 and split with the Y, 3-15, 15-9. YWCA scored a 15-11, 15-4 sweep over Mt. Douglas in action at Vic High.

Stamps Must Pester Ron To Win Final

CALGARY (CP) — To defeat Saskatchewan Roughriders in the Western Football Conference playoffs, Calgary Stampeders "have to contain their rushing attack" and pester quarterback Ron Lancaster.

That is the opinion of middle linebacker Wayne Harris, a 10-year Calgary veteran and a Canadian Football League all-star since 1964.

His theory will be put to the test Saturday afternoon when the teams clash in Regina in the first game of the best-of-three western final. The game, at 2 p.m. CST (noon PST) will be televised over the CBC national network. The second game is scheduled for Calgary next Wednesday.

The Stampeders advanced to the final with a 16-9 win last week over second-place Edmonton Eskimos.

MUST AVOID ERRORS

"We can't make any mistakes against that club and expect to win," said Harris, named Canada's outstanding lineman in 1965 and 1966.

"We'll have to stop their running game as much as possible and try not to let Lancaster get too much time to throw the ball."

Lancaster, who this year became a four-time winner of the WFC's most valuable player award, "can pick a zone apart and is excellent at reading a blitz," says Harris.

The Roughriders, seeking their eighth consecutive win, led the CFL in rushing with 2,672 yards while playing several games without all-star fullback George Reed. Calgary was third with 2,238 yards, 25 behind British Columbia Lions.

Saskatchewan took first place in the West for the third straight year with 14 wins and two defeats. The Roughriders defeated the Stampeders 21-17 and 21-14 in Calgary, but lost 30-0 at home in the first game of the season between the clubs.

New Wrinkles Promised Als By Cat Coach

HAMILTON (CP) — Coach Joe Restic said Wednesday Hamilton Tiger-Cats scurry-type offence will have a few new wrinkles added when the Ticats meet Montreal Alouettes Sunday in the first game of the Eastern Football Conference final.

He said the club's offensive alignment will include "things they won't recognize" and that the over-all attack unit has "really been moving" behind crisp blocking.

Restic feels the Als biggest asset will be the running of Moses Denson, who he considers "one of the best in the Canadian Football League."

However, the Ticats should solve the Montreal passing game that worked so well in the semi-final against Toronto last weekend, he said.

Cal 29 Crashes Racing Scene

For the first time in the Victoria area a Cal 29 took to the racing circuit Sunday when yachts of the Royal Victoria Yacht Club paced it out in a 10-mile race in waters off Sidney.

The 29-foot sloop designed by well-known American marine architect Bill Lapworth, Clare Copeland's Sea Fax, earned herself a creditable second, losing out to Peter Coombs' Doxy II.

Sea Fax, still without her own spinaker, used the one belonging to Jeremy Hewett's 32-foot sloop Picnic.

Finishing after Sea Fax were Walt Stenner's Encore, Gordie Inglis' Saltshaker, Fred Gardiner's Shih Yen, George Dufour's Galenaia II, Cliff Woodcock's Cambria, Stan Jones' Tandem II, Louis Lindholm's Oona, Frank Bush's Concubine, "Sandy" Sanderson's Filey Brig, Roy Denny's T'Solo, Judy Peetz's Bleuet and Bert Buchanan's Lairig Ghru.

Don Lawson's Cubara and John Graeme's Juno led the fleet all the way around the course but were disqualified for failing to round the mark on the second time around.

Fifteen Davidson dinghies were in competition when Royal Vic. "frostbiters" competed at Cadboro Bay Saturday. "Rocky" Rochfort was the winner. In second and third positions were Ted Bowers and George Dufour.

Marion Brown and Jim Williams tied for first spot in the 17-boat El Toro fleet. Timothy Roots finished up in third place.

Henry Pejril won the Sabot competition, Doug Taylor Lee came first in Fireballs and Bill Van Cuylenborg placed first in the planing dinghy section.

Flukey sou'westerlies that died to almost nothing at times prevented five boats from finishing within the time limit when 20 yachts of the Canoe Bay Sailing Club raced a five-mile course off Sidney on Saturday.

The race was won by Merv Britten's Bird of Dawning with Will Jensen's Yogi ending up in second spot.

Decision Delights Mayors

By DON VIPOND

Mayors in communities along the Dayliner run were unanimously delighted today with the federal order assuring the daily passenger train would keep rolling—and service would have to be improved.

Meanwhile in Montreal, CP Rail learned first from the Times that its application to discontinue the Dayliner run or have it subsidized had been emphatically rejected by the Canadian Transport Commission.

T. P. James, chief of passenger services and the railway's lone witness at a public hearing on the application in Victoria in August, said he could not immediately say what changes might be made in the service.

CAR REPLACED

A 72-passenger car replaced a month ago the 48-passenger car which had been in use on the 140-mile run between Victoria and Courtenay, said James. And the schedule (9 a.m. departure from Victoria) had been pushed back half an hour to enable passengers to make connections with other transport services along the line.

"Whether or not we'll be doing anything else we'll have to consider," he said.

Municipal leaders were prominent at the August hearing in opposing the CP Rail application and they were elated today:

"This is a red letter day for Vancouver Island," said Duncan Mayor Jim Quaiffe, who heard the news with "overwhelming joy."

Opponents at the hearing

BETTER THINGS may be in store for E and N rail terminal on Store Street north of Johnson. The white terminal (centre) was criticized at a public hearing in August as "shabby." Among other things, today's ruling by the Canadian Transport Commission in Ottawa means the station will be open six days a week — the same number of days the dayliner operates. A cleanup was also ordered.

Precedent Set By Judgment

By JOHN MIKA
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—In a precedent-setting and biting judgment which will affect all future passenger railway hearings, the Canadian Transport Commission today told Canadian Pacific Railways it not only must continue train passenger service on Vancouver Island but also must improve it drastically and without a subsidy.

The stunning 23-page judgment has immediate ramifications for similar hearings concluded only this week in Edmonton and Lethbridge at which the CPR sought to discontinue passenger feeder trains linking Edmonton, Calgary, Lethbridge and Medicine Hat; and Canadian National Railways to cut its Edmonton-Calgary run.

"The Victoria judgment will set a new pattern for all future discontinuance hearings on railway passenger lines in Canada and will even be considered when the Prairie freight branch lines question is unfrozen in 1975," a CTC spokesman said.

"What it does for the first time is tell the railways: 'If you really haven't tried to make a profitable service, then we're not even going to listen to you until you do'."

Access to Subsidies Blocked

The CTC was at pains to underline another shattering aspect of the case — by refusing to declare CPR's Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway service on Vancouver Island "uneconomic," the judgment also denies the company access to federal subsidies up to 80 per cent of operating losses when a railway is ordered to continue an unprofitable service.

"Up until now, everyone's assumed that the CTC would either grant discontinuance or order continuance of a service but with the federal subsidy," the CTC spokesman said.

"Now there is a third course open in which neither of these things are done because merely proving a line is unprofitable is not enough. It has to be proven the line is basically uneconomic as the Railway Act states before the application for discontinuance or subsidy can be determined."

Cleanup of Operation Ordered

Today's judgment was delivered by a two-man CTC tribunal, headed by former Winnipeg lawyer D. H. Jones who is chairman of the commission's railway committee, which heard the case in Victoria last August.

It dismissed the company's application to drop the 140-mile self-propelled diesel car daily round trip between Victoria and Courtenay.

It also specifically ordered the CPR to immediately clean up rotting and dirty passenger accommodations along the route and stop putting overflow passengers into unsafe baggage compartments on the rail car.

The judgment also ordered the CPR to undertake feasibility studies aimed as "increasing revenue to the maximum possible level" by improving its operation, rescheduling the service so it connects with ferries to the mainland and undertaking a promotion campaign to attract "the greatest possible amount of tourist business."

Bus-Ferry Policy Draws Fire

It said none of the obvious traffic-generating efforts had been made, as a direct result of company policy favoring bus-ferry services between the island and the mainland.

The CTC ordered the railway to report back as soon as the mandatory safety improvements were made and said the CPR could not reapply for discontinuance or subsidy until it has waited "a reasonable period of time and has complied with the above requirements."

The specific orders requiring immediate action by the CPR are:

"1. Restore passenger stations, shelters and platforms to a clean and safe condition so they are suitable and adequate for the accommodation of passengers;

"2. Keep stations and shelters open for suitable periods of time on all days on which E and N passenger trains operate;

"3. Maintain stations, shelters and platforms in a clean and sanitary condition, and remove all weeds and undergrowth from station platforms;

"4. Provide sufficient accommodation on E and N (passenger) trains for the

Jobless Rate 9.5% in City

By DOUG MacRAE

The employment picture in B.C. this month has failed to reflect the first encouraging signs in months recorded in other parts of the country.

The seasonally-adjusted jobless rate fell for the first time this year across Canada, to 6.6 per cent in October from 6.9 per cent in September, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported from Ottawa today.

The unemployment rate in B.C., however, remained unchanged at 8.8 per cent. Worst hit areas in the province are Victoria and Vancouver, where 9.5 per cent of the labor force is out of work.

Across the country, the number of jobless rose last month to 419,000 from 398,000 in September, a smaller increase than usual but up substantially from the unemployment count of 314,000 in October, 1969.

Statistics also show an increase in the number of Canadians with jobs to 7,993,000 in the middle of October, from 7,986,000 a month earlier.

Because the increase in the number employed reversed the usual trend for October, the seasonally-adjusted jobless rate fell for the first time this year.

But that percentage, watched by government authorities as the main guide to employment patterns, was up from only 5.1 per cent in the same month one year ago.

The adjusted jobless rate is calculated as the percentage of the total labor force unemployed, with the normal seasonal ups and downs discounted to show the underlying trend.

This rate has moved up steadily from 4.5 per cent last January. Most economists would regard a rate of 3 per cent as the target.

In other parts of the country, the adjusted jobless rate rose on the Prairies and went down in Eastern Canada. The rate dropped to 7.6 per cent in the Atlantic region, shifted slightly to 8.8 from 8.9 in Quebec, and fell to 4.6 from 5.1 in Ontario.

British Columbia's increase in the number of workers without jobs jumped dramatically from 58,000 in September to 69,000 last month.

By comparison, there were only 40,000 unemployed in October, 1969.

The labor force in the Victoria trading area, which extends to the Gulf Islands, the Malahat and Jordan River, is about 72,000. Of that number, 6,800 were out of

OIL FIRMS NATIONALIZED

The nationalization was ordered by two decrees from President Houari Boumedienne, an official announcement said.

Thousands Trample De Gaulle Altars

By TERENCE WILLIAMS

PARIS (Reuter) — Thousands of persons trampled on side altars and clambered on to confessionals, shouting at dignitaries to sit down so they could see world leaders attending the memorial mass for Gen. de Gaulle today in Notre Dame Cathedral.

Parisians and tourists jammed into the side aisles, with the distinguished mourners from around the world taking the most prominent places in front.

Cries of "Who's that" and "Sit down" rang out as the guard of honor of republican guardsmen, black plumes hanging down their backs from their helmets, presented arms.

Young people, many carrying cameras, made up much of the crowd inside and outside the church. They laughed and joked in the jostling throng, scandalizing older people.

Only when the service began did any sense of participation in a religious occasion fall on the packaged congregation.

The ceremony, although impressive by the sheer size of the crowd and the gathering of world leaders, was rarely moving.

The glaring arc lights of television, banished the mystery and aura that surrounds the 12-century walls of Notre Dame, paling the glorious stained glass windows.

Police checks were severe. Every member of the public entering the cathedral was searched for hidden weapons by plainclothes policemen, who also mingled with the crowd inside.

Before the last strains of the Magnificat had ended, people were stampeding for the exits to see the world leaders leave.

Outside the cathedral some 70,000 persons lined the sidewalks six deep for a distance of at least two miles from the cathedral. Some onlookers clambered on to ledges 10 feet above ground on buildings along the route for the motorcade of world leaders.

Others stood precariously balanced on the parapets of the bridges of the River Seine, braving the jostling which could have sent them into the river.

Acts Suggest PM 'Miffed'

OTTAWA (CP) — The prime minister's office refused today to explain why Pierre Trudeau did not attend the Paris funeral service of Gen. Charles de Gaulle.

Officials also would not comment on why the Canadian flag was not lowered to half-staff following the announcement of Gen. de Gaulle's death Monday night.

"The decision has been made," said a spokesman in Trudeau's office, "and the prime minister had not given any reasons."

Meanwhile, Trudeau and Senate leader Paul Martin led some 300 members of the diplomatic and French-speaking community in a memorial service in Ottawa today.

Archbishop J. Aurele Plourde of Ottawa celebreated the service at the basilica, assisted by seven priests.

He noted the desire of the former French president that there be no funeral orations and substituted a meditation on the Christian significance of death.

With the death of Gen. de Gaulle, he said, the world had lost "a distinguished man."

The spokesman in Trudeau's office would neither confirm nor deny a report in The Guardian in London that the Canadian prime minister did not attend the Paris funeral because he has not forgiven Gen. de Gaulle's "vive le Quebec libre" shout during the French leader's visit to Montreal in 1967.

"You can think whatever you want," he said.

PROBER TOOK AN E&N RIDE

Stations: 'Unspeakable Filth'

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The Canadian Transport Commission tribunal found it hard to believe its ears last August when witnesses testified about the poor service on the E and N Railway.

So it sent John Green, long-time railway expert and senior official on the CTC staff, to take a ride on the Budd car on Aug. 7, last day of the hearing.

★ ★ ★

"He told of station platforms with rotted timber cribs, missing or rotted planking in dangerous condition or overgrown with brush, weeds and brambles.

"He reported station buildings and shelters, mostly in a state of disrepair, doors off, windows broken or boarded over, some shelters non-existent.

"Two stations were in a state of unspeakable filth.

"All stations are closed and locked on Saturdays and holidays. Trains do not run on Sundays.

"As it happened, there were 48 passengers on board leaving Victoria the day Mr. Green made his inspection.

"At Langford, a man with two children got on and as the passenger compartment as full, they were placed in the baggage compartment on the old station bench.

(Earlier, the judgment noted that the 48-passenger car had an unsecured waiting room-type bench on its baggage section to handle overflow passengers — contrary to safety requirements).

"At Shawnigan, five more passengers got on and were also put into the baggage compartment.

★ ★ ★

"Passengers forced to stand in the baggage compartment have to hang on to racks on the walls, difficult enough for a person with two good arms.

"When Mr. Green observed what was happening, he instructed the conductor to place those standing (baggage compartment) in the passenger compartment, which was done."

work last month — about 9.5 per cent.

Regional Manpower spokesman John Atcheson says the department is hopeful that a rush in retailing will improve the employment picture before the end of the Christmas reason.

But he points out that another 100-125 logging layoffs already have been announced for the Jordan River area.

In Vancouver, Manpower's Murray Perry says there is "nothing astoundingly new" about job problems in the southern regions of the province.

"The number of jobs here is increasing as fast as anywhere in the country, but the work force is increasing twice as fast as anywhere else," Perry said.

"Everybody wants to live in the south, so our biggest problem is one of migration. There's nothing that says a Yugoslav immigrant or a dissatisfied Montrealer can't move to the part of the country he wants to live in.

"I'm afraid the unhappy fact is that British Columbia is always going to have higher unemployment figures."

The situation is not so bad in northern B.C. "If I were looking for work, I'd look north," Perry said. "Things are slim here, a little better up there."

Vancouver alone has 55 per cent of the province's labor force, and "much more than our share" of unemployment, he said.

The province's labor force dropped slightly to 873,000 from 875,000 in October, but was still well above the 849,000 in October, 1969. The number of workers employed fell to 804,000 in October from 817,000 in September, compared with 809,000 a year ago.

Canada's total labor force was recorded in October as 8,412,000, up from 8,384,000 in September.

The DBS report says a larger-than-usual increase in jobs in community, business, finance and personal services outweighed the usual seasonal declines in farming jobs and heavier-than-normal drops in construction and forestry employment.

These last two categories have hit British Columbia particularly hard.

NON-CONFIDENCE

New Democratic Party MPs planned to present a motion of non-confidence in the government in the Commons today because of the high rate of unemployment.

Under House rules which permit opposition members to choose the topic of debate on specified days, the NDP has decided to zero in on the jobless issue, blaming government policies.

Government authorities, meanwhile, took some comfort from the decline in the adjusted rate, but expressed uncertainty about patterns this winter.

Some believe it is possible that unemployment won't climb much higher; others says the situation has not clarified enought to confirm that the jobless rate has passed its peak.

Finance Minister Edgar Benson is optimistic that the Canadian economy is moving toward a gradual expansion of activity. Production has been slackening this year under the pressure of anti-inflationary restraints on government spending and a squeeze on credit by the Bank of Canada.

"I think the economy now is moving to a stage whereby we will see a gradual buildup, and over a period of time an expansion in our gross national product, which has been relatively flat," Benson said.

He cited the reduction in tht Bank of Canada's interest rate to 6 per cent from 6½ per cent, effective today, as a further signal that restraints are being eased.

He has "no intention" in the near future of asking commercial banks to reduce their lending rates further. The banks cut some rates at the beginning of this month after Benson had said publicly that they should.

Small Union Votes Merger

About 500 provincial government culinary workers — cooks, kitchen helpers and dietary aides — have voted to join the B.C Government Employees' Union.

Until last February the culinary workers belonged to the 1,500-member Federation of Professional and Technical Employees, which also included psychiatric aides, clerks, firefighters at six B.C. mental hospitals.

When the federation disbanded the clerks, aides and fire-fighters joined the BCGEU and the kitchen staff formed the Culinary Workers' Union.

Ralph Williamson, president of the short-lived union, said reorganization of the BCGEU into occupational councils will ensure the culinary workers retain their identity within the larger union which has about 15,000 members.

The judgment found that a statistical list of $396,600 losses claimed by the CPR from 1966 through 1968 was $60,134 too high because it had nothing to do with operating the diesel car.

Jones' judgment said he would not consider evidence of those who opposed the railway's application "because in my opinion CP Rail has failed to satisfy the committee the passenger train service in question is uneconomic and is likely to continue to be uneconomic."

He said mere proof that no profits were made from the service is not the same as proving it was basically uneconomic because of factors beyond the company control as the legislation requires.

NO PROMOTION

Proof that a rail operation is uneconomic is a "prerequisite" before evidence for and against discontinuing or subsidizing the operation can be considered, the chairman wrote.

Reviewing the CPR's sole witness, T. G. James, passenger service system chief, at the hearing, chairman Jones said that the E and N was not allowed to carry mail or express on the Budd car to produce revenue; was scheduled so that it seriously missed connections with ferry services at Victoria, Sidney and Nanaimo and airline service at Victoria International Airport; and was not promoted in the CPR's extensive advertising for other services it operated on the island.

"Mr. James was finally able to produce some figures purporting to show that only a handful of people use the train in this manner," the judgment said.

"In the circumstances, this is not surprising and I was not at all impressed by that evidence."

SCENIC ROUTE

Chairman Jones recalled that several witnesses described the E and N route as passing through "some of the most beautiful scenery in Canada" yet the CPR spent only $150 on E and N promotion.

This amount went entirely for a cryptic timetable folder while the E and N was totally omitted in elaborate glossy tourist pamphlets promoting the bus and car route over the Malahat.

The E and N also was not mentioned in CPR pamphlets on its Nanaimo and Seattle ferry services although competing buses were mentioned.

"In my view there is in reality no advertising at all (of the E and N) in the normally accepted sense and meaning of that word," Jones said.

He also tongue-lashed the CPR for unsafe practises aboard the E and N Budd car.

UNSAFE PRACTICE

"According to evidence given at the hearing . . . whenever the train has more passengers on board than it is capable of accommodating . . . the additional passengers are placed in the baggage compartment by the conductor and invited to take seats on an old unsecured station waiting room bench, apparently placed there for the purpose.

"Whatever may be said about this pactice in terms of the obligation of CP Rail to its passengers under Section 315 of the Railway Act, it is to be condemned out of hand as being thoroughly unsafe.

"It places passengers in a position of totally unnecessary risk of personal injury in the event of either an emergency application of brakes or an accident.

"I cannot help wondering how many passengers who have travelled on these trains on crowded days, and have been forced to endure a journey in the baggage compartment, wouuld ever again wish to make their trip by train."

Jones went on to say that scheduling, advertising, equipment assignment, accommodation and other factors undoubtedly would reflect the amount of profitability to be expected in a service.

"Undeniably the external forces of competition are present, but in that all-important area that is under the control of CP Rail, the effort that is being made to render the E and N service profitable is almost non-existent."

"It remains to be demonstrated to my satisfaction that the standard of service cannot be raised with at least an improvement in revenue as one result."

"The evidence . . . has convinced me that E and N passenger trains between Victoria and Courtenay are being run without any real regard for the comfort and convenience of passengers and with insufficient attention to the commercial principles that the CPR applies to its other business with such success.

ECONOMIC ISSUE

"Until we have evidence before us that the service is being properly run so far as it is within the power of CP Rail to do so, it is impossible for us to make a determination whether the service is uneconomic and is likely to continue to be uneconomic."

It quoted the recent company statement of passenger policy by senior executive officer S. M. Gossage which said CP Rail maintains passenger services efficiently "both to satisfy the essential needs of the travelling public and to minimize the loss to be borne by the federal government" to the full extent required by the CTC.

"In my opinion, Jones observed, "those responsible for the operation of the E and N passenger train service have not been living up to that undertaking."

. . . MAYORS

had tried to indicate the vital need of the railway service "and it sure does my heart good to know the Canadian Transport Commission decided in favor of the people."

Nanaimo Mayor and MLA Frank Ney said it was good news for Islanders and citizens, politicians and the news meria could share the credit.

It took a community effort to assemble the evidence showing the Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway "was not making a genuine effort to make the (Dayliner) service a profitable one," he said.

With proper promotion the Dayliner could mean to Vancouver Island what electric railways mean to Switzerland, Ney suggested.

Victoria Mayor Courtney Haddock said he was "very pleased but not surprised" at the CTC decision against the E and N.

The railway has not had sufficient support from the (CPR) board of directors it is responsible to. The parent company has let the Dayliner operation drift lown to "almost the Toonverville trolley."

Haddock suggested the service needs an injection of time, effort and money. The train should run more rapidly and something needs to be done about the constant whistles at every crossing which produce "noise pollution."

City Alderman Peter Pollen, an outspoken critic of the application at the public hearing, said today the CTC ruling means the people have won a battle but not the war.

The contract between the federal government and the rail builders in 1887 guaranteed the rail service in perpetuity on the Island.

Pollen said the essential issue is to ensure that the transport corridor up the Island represented by the railway is kept sacrosanct to meet future needs.

40,000 Attend De Gaulle Rites

By STEPHENS BROENING

COLOMBEY-LES-DEUX-EGLISES (AP) — Charles de Gaulle was laid to rest today in a country churchyard while about 40,000 persons crowded this village.

An armored vehicle, draped in the blue, white and red tricolor of France, left the home where de Gaulle died Monday, bearing the simple wooden coffin.

Crowds lined the streets leading to the white-washed Roman Catholic church. Some made the V-sign, symbol of Allied victory in the Second World War.

The choir, also composed of the young of the village, sang a requiem. The first pews were occupied by the mayor and the village council. Many mourners held lighted candles.

The coffin lay on a wooden base and six candles flickered around it. There were no flowers in the church. The only decoration was two sprays of autumn leaves at the altar.

MALRAUX ATTENDS

De Gaulle's son, Philippe, a navy captain, his profile remarkably like that of his father, sat near Andre Malraux, wartime and post-war intimate of de Gaulle.

Second Epistle of St. Paul to Timothy was read by Rev. Francois de Gaulle, the general's nephew.

The mass was celebrated by Father de Gaulle, Rev. Claude Jaguey, the village curate, and the local bishop, Msgr. Alfred Atton.

The congregation sang: "I put my faith in the Saviour. I am sure of His word. My soul hears the Saviour. I am sure of His word."

The bishop read from the Bible of the resurrection of Lazarus, then asked for silence and mediation.

Outside the crowd listened to the service over loudspeakers.

The village priest, his voice showing emotion, asked for prayers for de Gaulle who "on earth had been given such heavy responsibilities."

Mme. de Gaulle was beside her son, her face covered by a black veil. They were in the pew that the family, including the general, used at Sunday services.

The church bells tolled as prayers were said.

The priest asked the congregation to remain in the church during the burial in the tiny cemetery behind it. Mme. de Gaulle and the family had asked to be alone while the general was interred.

Mme. de Gaulle then returned to solitude in the house she and the general had lived in since the 1930s.

Fourth Cut In Bank Rate

OTTAWA (CP) — The Bank of Canada announced Tuesday night a reduction of its lending rate to six per cent from 6½, the fourth such reduction in the Canadian bank rate in five months.

The new interest rate, reflecting recent declines in commercial short-term lending rates, will be effective when Canadian banks re-open Thursday following the Remembrance Day bank holiday today.

At the same time, bank governor Louis Rasminsky announced a marginal tightening up of the central bank's lending facility for investment dealers whereby they may obtain cash in a pinch when commercial money markets are squeezed.

Visitors Swarm Chinese

A crowd estimated at 3,000 swarmed aboard the Chinese grain freighter Hongqi Wednesday.

The open house given by the crew climaxed a series of events marking the arrival in Victoria of the first Chinese freighter since Canada established diplomatic relations with China last month.

The freighter, with 9,700 tons of grain, is scheduled to leave for Vancouver Friday where she will take on more wheat before returning to China. The vessel arrived at Ogden Point last Sunday.

★

A steady stream of people visited the ship Wednesday afternoon. They were shown around and received buttons emblazoned with Mao's head.

Mayor Courtney Haddock, who was present, said he would ask the B.C. Government to request the government of China to establish its B.C. consulate in Victoria.

LIKE THE ARMS of an octupus, the bow lines of Chinese freighter Hongqi entwine bollard at Ogden Point. Hundreds of people took advantage of an "open house" Wednesday to visit the ship. The freighter, first to dock in Victoria since Canada and China established diplomatic relations, is being loaded with Prairie wheat.

Screwdriver or Knife Sought by Police In Cabbie's Murder

By STEVE HUME

Gerry Mulholland was a dedicated athlete and he never missed a soccer practice.

It was that dedication to fitness and precision that enabled him to remain, at the age of 37 — venerable years for an athlete — a star goalkeeper with Gorge Molsons.

He led his team to an undefeated record this year in the Victoria and District Soccer League's third division. And at an age when most men are packing it in because of creaky legs, opposing teams had scored only four goals on Mulholland.

Tuesday night, for some unknown reason, Mulholland skipped his scheduled 7:30 practice and took the taxi he drove part time to make a pickup at a downtown hotel.

Victoria City Police said he had apparently died of a small stab wound in the back of the head. An autopsy was ordered and results were to be released later today.

Meanwhile police were searching the area for a murder weapon and a police dog from Nanaimo was being used in the investigation.

Last Seen Alive at Churchill

They said he was last seen alive while waiting for a fare at the front entrance of the Churchill Hotel on Government Street at about 7 p.m.

They asked that anyone who saw a person or persons:

- Get into the light-colored, late-model Owl Taxi at the Churchill Hotel;
- Riding in the cab towards or in the vicinity of Beacon Hiol Park;
- Near the car on Battery Street; report the information to Victoria City Police.

Mulholland, who lived at 917 Bewdley in the Work Point area of Esquimalt, was a Canadian Armed Forces seaman stationed at CFB Esquimalt.

He drove taxi for Doug Marson, of 308 Catherine, owner of Owl Taxi Ltd., on a part-time basis when he came off duty with the navy.

Marson said Mulholland would call him each afternoon from the CFB Esquimalt barracks when he finished work to ask if there were any driving jobs available in the evening.

Mulholland was the head of a family of seven children.

"He was a real clean-living guy — didn't smoke. He'd have a couple of beer now and again, but he'd never drink too much," said Lloyd Strickland, manager of Mulholland's soccer team.

Mulholland's last game, played Sunday at Carnarvon Park, was a personal triumph — a 6-0 shutout against Stein Construction that gave his team possession of first place.

"He really was the backbone of the team. He'd talk it up from back in the nets and he spent a lot of time working with the younger players on the way up."

"We've already won one cup this season."

Mulholland was selected as a rep player with the Victoria armed forces team that represented British Columbia at a national soccer tournament for the Canadian Forces championship at Kingston, Ont.

Doctor Killed In Nigeria

A former Victoria doctor was among four people who died Oct. 24 when their Volkswagen bus went off a bridge and into a river 50 miles northeast of Lagos, Nigeria.

The Associated Press reported the bodies of Dr. Kenneth Dick, 40, and three companions were recovered from beneath the Oni River Bridge Tuesday, 17 days after the accident.

The group was driving from Lagos to the town of Iyale, 250 miles to the northeast, where Dick was working in a hospital supported by the Plymouth Brethren, a fundamentalist missionary group.

Other members of the party included Joan Rycroft, about 24, a medical secretary from Toronto, who had been working at the hospital for several months, Ronald Gross, 27, of Greenville, S.C., who arrived in Nigeria Oct. 19, and a Nigerian man identified only as Balogun, a friend of Dick.

MISSIONARY AT 19

Dick, who was married with seven children, had lived in Nigeria with his family since 1961. His wife Norma, who grew up in Ladysmith, is a nursing graduate of the Royal Jubilee Hospital.

Dick was born in Alberta, moved to Crofton when he was 16, attended school at Ladysmith, and Victoria Normal School for teacher training. At 19, however, he decided to become a missionary, and studied medicine at the University of B.C.

He interned at the Jubilee, in 1958 and practised in Victoria from 1959 to 1961.

Horton later returned to Victoria because of ill health. Dick has lived in Nigeria ever since except for a nine-month period which he spent practising specialty surgery at Hamilton, Ont.

He intended to stay indefinitely in Nigeria.

Rotary Turns Meals-on-Wheels

Douglas Rotary Club has come to the rescue of the Greater Victoria meals-on-wheels program, Saanich Ald. William Noel said today.

A cheque was received this week for $958 "enabling the program to operate in the black for 1970," he said.

LAY IN BUSHES NEARLY FOUR HOURS

Freak Accident Victim 'Poor'

A 17-year-old youth who was seriously injured in a freak car accident and lay in the bushes for almost four hours Monday night before being discovered is in poor condition at St. Joseph's Hospital.

Wayne Joseph Renshaw, of Squamish, was struck by a car that went out of control in the 500 block of Goldstream in Langford, and was thrown under a nearby hedge.

When Colwood RCMP and the Langford ambulance arrived they immediately took the car's driver Mrs. Gertraud Roller and her two children Henry, 10, and Mario, 2, to St. Joseph's.

Renshaw, lying unconscious under the bush which was described as eight feet wide and 10 feet high, was overlooked. He was only two or three feet from the accident scene.

Renshaw was found by Mrs. Erna Kind, of 570 Goldstream.

The car which went out of control stuck a power pole in front of her house at 6:30 p.m.

Mrs. Kind and her husband Rudolf were sitting in their living room later listening to taped religious speeches with two visitors when they were distracted by moans about 9 p.m.

She said her husband "thought it was a foghorn because it seemed so regular."

An hour later, showing the guests out the front door, Mrs. Kind said they heard the moaning again and thought it was a drunk in the bush.

When the two visitors shone their car lights on the bushes Renshaw became visible and the four rescued him and called an ambulance.

Colwood RCMP, who attended at the original traffic accident, said this morning they had no new leads in their investigation of the incident in which Renshaw was injured.

Esquimalt Centre Handed Setback

The provincial government has refused to give Esquimalt more than 10 years to repay a $700,000 loan on its proposed recreation centre.

The department of municipal affairs approved in principle Esquimalt's request to go to the people in December with a loan authorization bylaw for the centre but stipulated that it would have to be repaid within a 10-year period.

Mayor Arthur Young said today council was hoping for a repayment period of about 20 years and the government decision means the project will be postponed six or 12 months.

Young said with a 20-year repayment period it would have been a tight schedule and anything less would mean other projects would suffer.

He said, however, he wasn't completely disheartened by the decision because of the "stable and good financial situation in Esquimalt."

He felt the decision was "a polite way" of saying now was not the time to ask for those particular loan terms.

"This is the way I am reading it," he said.

Sewage Reduced

The sewage treatment plant at the Wilkinson Road jail, which drained into Colquitz Creek, has been taken out of service, it was learned today.

The jail now is connected with a sanitary sewer line extending to the vocational school and running to municipal sewers flowing to Macaulay Point, Esquimalt, marine outfall.

The jail treatment plant was a responsibility of the provincial government which paid for the connection to the vocational school line.

A Saanich engineering official said discharge from the plant to the creek was not large but there will be a beneficial effect by decreasing nutrients.

It is expected that two other treatment plans, at Northridge and Chesterlea subdivisions, will be taken out of service next year, when municipal sewers are extended, further decreasing sewage discharge into Colquitz.

WHITE WHALE NAMED CHIMO

Mrs. John Harrison of Cobble Hill won 250,000 pennies Wednesday when her entry, Chimo, was drawn as the name of the white killer whale at Oak Bay Marina's Sealand.

Sealand president Bob Wright said 279 contestants had submitted the same name.

POLICE FOLLOW LEADS ON ARMED HOLDUP

Saanich police still have plenty of leads to follow in their investigation of the paunchy bandit who fled with $5,000 from a Saanich Peninsula Credit Union office at 4512 West Saanich a week ago.

He escaped from the scene in a 1967 Barracuda but a composite drawing of the fugitive has given police some new leads.

U and Vic Get Together

Thirteen people have been recruited to a committee which will study the relationship between the University of Victoria and Greater Victoria.

The committee is to hold hearings in January and February and issue a report around the beginning of March.

Its task will be to answer three general questions: What should Uvic be trying to do for society in general? What can the Greater Victoria community do for Uvic? What should the university and the community be doing together?

The study is called Project University, and it's an idea of Alma Mater Society president Robert McDougall.

And from the University: Trevor Matthews, economics lecturer and assistant to the president, sociologist Dr. Rennie Warburton, board of governors vice-chairman Lloyd McKenzie, Lynn MacKenzie, Gary Zak and John Owen (all students).

HALLOWEEN 'FUN' DOUSED IN COURT

Six Halloween pranksters from Saanich today had their enthusiasm dampened in Victoria Provincial Court when they pleaded guilty to public mischief by turning on 14 fire hydrants Oct. 31.

Ronald W. Ell, 20, of 4885 Cherry Tree Bend, Patrick C. McConnell, 18, of 4510 Markham, James W. Martin, 17, of 4901 Cherry Tree Bend, Eric R. Quissy, 20, of 742 Mann, James F. Rankin, 19, of 458 Viaduct, and Neil G. J. Thompson, 17, of 4987 Old West Road, were each sentenced to one day in jail and fined $50.

Judge William Ostler said they were free to go but the one day would appear on their criminal record because of the nature of the offence.

Ostler said the accused had committed "idiotic and dangerous acts."

A Saanich police officer testified that the six had travelled by car using three large wrenches to turn the water on.

Arthur Mayse...

THERE WAS A TIME when Greater Victoria School Board took a dim view of trespassers on its turf. The parent with plaintive bleat, the advocate of permissiveness and the seeker after reform could damn well keep their noses out of the educative process.

This approach had its faults. It was both arrogant and narrow. It made no truce with change. But with the final report of an exercise billed as Project Learning to-hand, I am wondering whether those boardsmen of old didn't have more basic savvy than the present crop.

What this board did, a year or so ago, was invite a six-committee segment of the public to try its hand at planning the education of the young. According to a board spokesman, the result points the way to a new kind of school for the Seventies.

I hope not. Were I a teacher by profession, I'd hope with even more fervor that the board will be mighty selective in dealing with the recommendations turned in.

Some of these are sensible enough. The drop-out who finds himself thwarted by lack of education should certainly be given a second chance, though not necessarily in the school from which he withdrew.

I don't quarrel unduly with the principal of self-government and internal policing for teachers — a move that should include the right to sock away their pension fund where it will draw a reasonable rate of interest.

The suggestion that school sports should have maximum participation rather than the production of crack athletes as their aim is a good one. Adopted, it could mean fewer kids on the sidelines and more getting in there as participants.

I'm not so sure, though, about much that this stirring of many spoons in education's soup-kettle has produced. Some of the recommendations are unrealistic. Others would reduce the teacher to the role of ineffectual whipping-boy in a reconstructed Tower of Babel.

I have sufficient faith in the young to realize that the world isn't necessarily going to fall apart when the guiding hands that steer its present courses are withdrawn. It may even be a much better dwelling-place.

But I don't really believe that students should be free to choose their teachers, or that school attendance should be optional above elementary level.

These may be delightful concepts, and at age 14, I would have welcomed them.

As it was, an unfeeling school system bent on lacerating my ego and squelching my creative powers gave me no such option. If it had, I'd never have chosen tough Teacher X, a hard rock who ground at me until a feeble little glimmer of mathematical knowledge penetrated my skull.

I didn't like that teacher much, but thanks to him, I'm not altogether clueless when forced to work out some rudimentary problem that involves figures.

Even in the computerized 70's on which we are now launched, a primitive sense of mathematics is worth having. It helps when some cheating metal monster adds extra dollars to a bill.

Consider too the frightful position of the teacher required to win a yearly popularity contest before he could teach. The child would be his master. His position would be untenable. If he weren't so trapped by circumstance that escape was impossible, better for him to seek a job in which he could at least keep his self-respect.

I believe that education should be open to change in a changing world. I do not believe in the pap course, the down-grading of teacher authority, or freedom of student choice to the point where all that is difficult and distasteful may be sidestepped.

It's nice if the school experience can be pleasant, but what matters much more is that it be applied effectively. If it isn't — and I fail to see how it could be under many of the conditions this report puts forward — the child goes ill prepared into a life that offers precious few concessions.

Mine is a horribly old-fashioned viewpoint. It consorts poorly with the idealized picture of the Gung Ho school where discipline is replaced by "a climate of warmth, co-operation and mutual responsibility" and in which everybody does as he wants.

There are classrooms in which warmth, co-operation and shared responsibility prevail today. But that climate was not achieved through the total permissiveness that reduces education to a farce.

Massive 'Bail-Out' From Government

By JOHN LeBLANC

LONDON (CP) — "Rolls In Cloud Cuckoo Land."

This headline today epitomizes the plight of Rolls-Royce, the proudest name in British engineering technology, which has just had to get an enormous bail-out from the government for miscalculating hugely on an airplane-engine contract for the United States.

The fallen idol of British industry, as it now is being called, is getting a new £42 million ($105 million) advance from the government to bring the total of this help to £89 million on a so-far disastrous contract to supply engines for the American Lockheed Tristar jet, a 350-seat medium-haul aircraft.

Rolls-Royce's chairman and chief executive, Sir Denning Pearson, has as part of the deal been demoted and replaced at the top by retired Lord Cole, former chairman of Unilever.

Sir David Huddie, who master-minded the American contract, has been squeezed out of the firm but remains on the sidelines as a "consultant."

BANKS HELPED OUT

And Rolls shares, which hit 55 shillings when the Lockheed deal was announced in 1968, wound up at eight shillings Wednesday after news of the bail-out and of prospect of only nominal dividends for five years.

Among the sidelights was the spectacle of Sir Leslie O'Brien, governor of the Bank of England, going around (as one financial writer put it) bowler hat in hand to scare up £18 million from the banks as a prerequisite to the government advancing the other £42 million.

It all results from a contract for Rolls to supply engines for about 180 Lockheed aircraft. The engine is called the RB 211-22. Rolls agreed to supply them at a fixed price of £1 million for each set of three for an aircraft.

The originally estimated cost of launching the engine was £65 million. This now has more than doubled to £135 million.

The result of the miscalculation seems to be that Rolls will be selling the engine at a loss on at least the first 150 planes.

The company blames "unforeseeable" rises in the costs of labor and materials. One indication that the government is not quite convinced of this is the departure of Chairman Pearson, 62, from his $100,000-a-year top post.

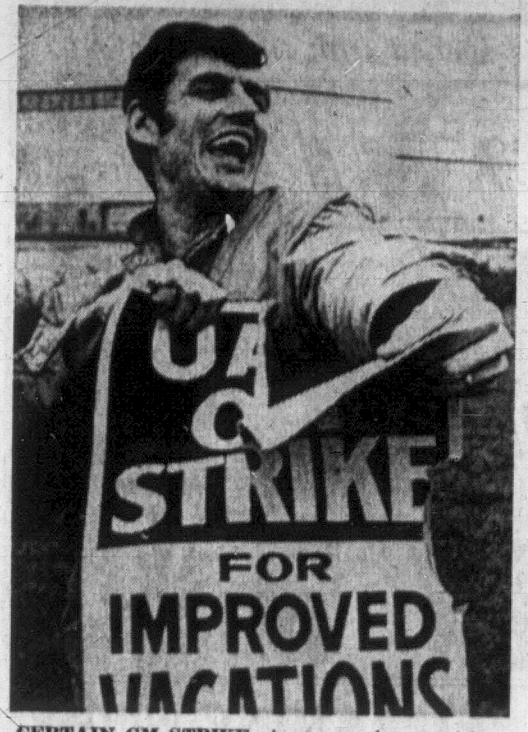
KNUCKLES RAPPED BY COMMISSION

CP ORDERED: RUN E & N



CERTAIN GM STRIKE is over, a happy picket tears up his placard at the Windsor plant today but at press time, representatives of the 394,000 striking members of the United Auto Workers were still considering whether to accept a three-year contract that won approval of the bargaining committee. Decision Delights Mayors

By DON VIPOND

Mayors in communities along the Dayliner run were unanimously delighted today with the federal order assuring the daily passenger train would keep rolling—and service would have to be improved.

Meanwhile in Montreal, CP Rail learned first from the Times that its application to discontinue the Dayliner run or have it subsidized had been emphatically rejected by the Canadian Transport Commission.

T. P. James, chief of passenger services and the railway's lone witness at a public hearing on the application in Victoria in August, said he could not immediately say what changes might be made in the service.

A 72-passenger car replaced a month ago the 48-passenger car which had been in use on the 140-mile run between Victoria and Courtenay, said James. And the schedule (9 a.m. departure from Victoria) had been pushed back half an hour to enable passengers to make connections with other transport services along the line.

"Whether or not we'll be doing anything else we'll have to consider," he said.

Municipal leaders were prominent at the August hearing in opposing the CP Rail application and they were elated today:

"This is a red letter day for Vancouver Island," said Duncan Mayor Jim Quaife, who heard the news with "overwhelming joy."

Opponents at the hearing

BETTER THINGS may be in store for E and N rail terminal on Store Street north of Johnson. The white terminal (centre) was criticized at a public hearing in August as "shabby." Among other things, today's ruling by the Canadian Transport Commission in Ottawa means the station will be open six days a week — the same number of days the dayliner operates. A cleanup was also ordered.

Precedent Set By Judgment

By JOHN MIKA
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The Canadian Transport Commission today told Canadian Pacific Railway it not only must continue train passenger service on Vancouver Island but also must improve it drastically and without a subsidy.

The stunning 23-page judgment has immediate ramifications for similar hearings concluded only this week in Edmonton and Lethbridge at which the CPR sought to discontinue passenger feeder trains linking Edmonton, Calgary, Lethbridge and Medicine Hat; and Canadian National Railways to cut its Edmonton-Calgary run.

"The Victoria judgment will set a new pattern for all future discontinuance hearings on railway passenger lines in Canada and will even be considered when the Prairie freight branch lines question is unfrozen in 1975," a CTC spokesman said.

"What it does for the first time is tell the railways: 'If you really haven't tried to make a profitable service, then we're not even going to listen to you until you do'."

Access to Subsidies Blocked

The CTC was at pains to underline another shattering aspect of the case — by refusing to declare CPR's Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway service on Vancouver Island "uneconomic," the judgment also denies the company access to federal subsidies up to 80 per cent of operating losses when a railway is ordered to continue an unprofitable service.

"Up until now, everyone's assumed that the CTC would either grant discontinuance or order continuance of a service but with the federal subsidy," the CTC spokesman said.

"Now there is a third course open in which neither of these things are done because merely proving a line is unprofitable is not enough. It has to be proven the line is basically uneconomic as the Railway Act states before the application for discontinuance or subsidy can be determined."

Cleanup of Operation Ordered

Today's judgment was delivered by a two-man CTC tribunal, headed by former Winnipeg lawyer D. H. Jones who is chairman of the commission's railway committee, which heard the case in Victoria last August.

It dismissed the company's application to drop the 140-mile self-propelled diesel car daily round trip between Victoria and Courtenay.

It also specifically ordered the CPR to immediately clean up rotting and dirty passenger accommodations along the route and stop putting overflow passengers into unsafe baggage compartments on the rail car.

The judgment also ordered the CPR to undertake feasibility studies aimed as "increasing revenue to the maximum possible level" by improving its operation, rescheduling the service so it connects with ferries to the mainland and undertaking a promotion campaign to attract "the greatest possible amount of tourist business."

Bus-Ferry Policy Draws Fire

It said none of the obvious traffic-generating efforts had been made, as a direct result of company policy favoring bus-ferry services between the island and the mainland.

The CTC ordered the railway to report back as soon as the mandatory safety improvements were made and said the CPR could not reapply for discontinuance or subsidy until it has waited "a reasonable period of time and has complied with the above requirements."

The specific orders requiring immediate action by the CPR are:

"1. Restore passenger stations, shelters and platforms to a clean and safe condition so they are suitable and adequate for the accommodation of passengers;

"2. Keep stations and shelters open for suitable periods of time on all days on which E and N passenger trains operate;

"3. Maintain stations, shelters and platforms in a clean and sanitary condition, and remove all weeds and undergrowth from station platforms;

"4. Provide sufficient accommodation on E and N (passenger) trains for the

Jobless Rate 9.5% in City

By DOUG MacRAE

The employment picture in B.C. this month has failed to reflect the first encouraging signs in months recorded in other parts of the country.

The seasonally-adjusted jobless rate fell for the first time this year across Canada, to 6.6 per cent in October from 6.9 per cent in September, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported from Ottawa today.

The unemployment rate in B.C., however, remained unchanged at 8.8 per cent. Worst hit areas in the province are Victoria and Vancouver, where 9.5 per cent of the labor force is out of work.

Across the country, the number of jobless rose last month to 419,000 from 398,000 in September, a smaller increase than usual but up substantially from the unemployment count of 314,000 in October, 1969.

Statistics also show an increase in the number of Canadians with jobs to 7,993,000 in the middle of October, from 7,986,000 a month earlier.

Because the increase in the number employed reversed the usual trend for October, the seasonally-adjusted jobless rate fell for the first time this year.

But that percentage, watched by government authorities as the main guide to employment patterns, was up from only 5.1 per cent in the same month one year ago.

The adjusted jobless rate is calculated as the percentage of the total labor force unemployed, with the normal seasonal ups and downs discounted to show the underlying trend.

This rate has moved up steadily from 4.5 per cent last January. Most economists would regard a rate of 3 per cent as the target.

In other parts of the country, the adjusted jobless rate rose on the Prairies and went down in Eastern Canada. The rate dropped to 7.6 per cent in the Atlantic region, shifted slightly to 8.8 from 8.9 in Quebec, and fell to 4.6 from 5.1 in Ontario.

British Columbia's increase in the number of workers without jobs jumped dramatically from 58,000 in September to 69,000 last month.

By comparison, there were only 40,000 unemployed in October, 1969.

The labor force in the Victoria trading area, which extends to the Gulf Islands, the Malahat and Jordan River, is about 72,000. Of that number, 6,800 were out of

Socred In-Fighting May Flare at Meet

By BRUCE YEMEN
Times Staff

VANCOUVER—A behind-the-scenes controversy over the mechanics of picking a new leader for the Social Credit Party may flare into the open at the party's annual convention opening here Friday.

George Driediger, president of the Social Credit League, said today he doesn't think the delegates will want to even consider the question.

Driediger said "the 100' per cent support" for Premier W. A. C. Bennett as party leader wouldn't necessarily be called into question by establishment of the means for picking his successor when that is necessary.

But, he added: "The constitution allows for a special general meeting to be called by the executive for any purpose." He said this would be an adequate way of setting up a special leadership convention when necessary.

TO EMBARRASS

There were reports today that some elements in the party may insist on raising the succession issue simply to embarrass the current executive led by Driediger, rather than indicate dissatisfaction with Bennett or doubts about his health.

A report on the issue was called for by the party's 1968 convention. It was held back at last year's convention after disagreement in the party over whether it should be raised.

Bob Jones of Cranbrook, chairman of the special committee on the succession procedures, was not available today to say whether he would attempt to introduce the report.

Driediger indicated that failure to circulate the report 60 days prior to the convention would prevent this year's meeting from deciding whether to accept it.

Heard Talk Of Kidnapping

MONTREAL (CP) — Slender Lise Balcer, 21, testified today that she lived for a time with kidnap suspect Paul Rose in the bungalow where kidnap victim Pierre Laporte eventually was held captive.

Miss Balcer, her long straight hair falling on the shoulders of the green army shirt she wore, was the first important witness when an inquest resumed into the death of Mr. Laporte, Quebec Labor minister who was kidnapped Oct. 10 and slain Oct. 17.

Paul Rose, 27, is wanted along with Marc Carbonneau, 37, for the kidnapping of Mr. Laporte and also of British envoy James Cross, snatched at gunpoint from his Montreal home Oct. 5. It is believed Mr. Cross may still be alive.

Also sought for conspiracy in the Laporte kidnapping are Francis Simard, 23, and Jacques Rose, 23, brother of Paul. Another suspect, Bernard Lortie, was arrested last week.

Miss Balcer, testifying in a crowded atmosphere stiff with military and police security, read one of two statements she made earlier to police. It was read after Judge Jacques Trahan granted a 40-minute adjournement.

She said Paul Rose, whom she met in March in Montreal, wanted to rent a house and needed a woman to take care of him. She agreed to go with him.

The six-room bungalow on Armstrong street in nearby St. Hubert—eventually the hideout of the Laporte kidnappers—was rented. Paul and Jacques Rose began repairing the interior, which needed painting.

Highest bid was $851,000. First phase of the work is confined to one wing of the hospital.

PROBER TOOK AN E&N RIDE

Stations: 'Unspeakable Filth'

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The Canadian Transport Commission tribunal found it hard to believe its ears last August when witnesses testified about the poor service on the E and N Railway.

So it sent John Green, long-time railway expert and senior official on the CTC staff, to take a ride on the Budd car on Aug. 7, last day of the hearing.

★ ★ ★

"He told of station platforms with rotted timber cribs, missing or rotted planking in dangerous condition or overgrown with brush, weeds and brambles.

"He reported station buildings and shelters, mostly in a state of disrepair, doors off, windows broken or boarded over, some shelters non-existent.

"Two stations were in a state of unspeakable filth.

"All stations are closed and locked on Saturdays and holidays. Trains do not run on Sundays.

"As it happened, there were 48 passengers on board leaving Victoria the day Mr. Green made his inspection.

"At Langford, a man with two children got on and as the passenger compartment as full, they were placed in the baggage compartment on the old station bench.

(Earlier, the judgment noted that the 48-passenger car had an unsecured waiting room-type bench on its baggage section to handle overflow passengers — contrary to safety requirements).

"At Shawnigan, five more passengers got on and were also put into the baggage compartment.

★ ★ ★

"Passengers forced to stand in the baggage compartment have to hang on to racks on the walls, difficult enough for a person with two good arms.

"When Mr. Green observed what was happening, he instructed the conductor to place those standing (baggage compartment) in the passenger compartment, which was done."

U.S. Leads Off Anti-Peking Fight

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — The United States urged the General Assembly today to reject a demand that it expel Nationalist China from the world forum and give the seat to Peking.

Phillips spoke as the annual China debate got under way with an 18-nation call to seat Communist China and oust the Formosa-based Nationalists.

work last month — about 9.5 per cent.

Regional Manpower spokesman John Atcheson says the department is hopeful that a rush in retailing will improve the employment picture before the end of the Christmas reason.

But he points out that another 100-125 logging layoffs already have been announced for the Jordan River area.

In Vancouver, Manpower's Murray Perry says there is "nothing astoundingly new" about job problems in the southern regions of the province.

"The number of jobs here is increasing as fast as anywhere in the country, but the work force is increasing twice as fast as anywhere else," Perry said.

"Everybody wants to live in the south, so our biggest problem is one of migration. There's nothing that says a Yugoslav immigrant or a dissatisfied Montrealer can't move to the part of the country he wants to live in.

"I'm afraid the unhappy fact is that British Columbia is always going to have higher unemployment figures."

The situation is not so bad in northern B.C. "If I were looking for work, I'd look north," Perry said. "Things are slim here, a little better up there."

Vancouver alone has 55 per cent of the province's labor force, and "much more than our share" of unemployment, he said.

The province's labor force dropped slightly to 873,000 from 875,000 in October, but was still well above the 849,000 in October, 1969. The number of workers employed fell to 804,000 in October from 817,000 in September, compared with 809,000 a year ago.

Canada's total labor force was recorded in October as 8,412,000, up from 8,384,000 in September.

The DBS report says a larger-than-usual increase in jobs in community, business, finance and personal services outweighed the usual seasonal declines in farming jobs and heavier-than-normal drops in construction and forestry employment.

These last two categories have hit British Columbia particularly hard.

NON-CONFIDENCE

New Democratic Party MPs planned to present a motion of non-confidence in the government in the Commons today because of the high rate of unemployment.

Under House rules which permit opposition members to choose the topic of debate on specified days, the NDP has decided to zero in on the jobless issue, blaming government policies.

Government authorities, meanwhile, took some comfort from the decline in the adjusted rate, but expressed uncertainty about patterns this winter.

Some believe it is possible that unemployment won't climb much higher; others says the situation has not clarified enought to confirm that the jobless rate has passed its peak.

Finance Minister Edgar Benson is optimistic that the Canadian economy is moving toward a gradual expansion of activity. Production has been slackening this year under the pressure of anti-inflationary restraints on government spending and a squeeze on credit by the Bank of Canada.

"I think the economy now is moving to a stage whereby we will see a gradual buildup, and over a period of time an expansion in our gross national product, which has been relatively flat," Benson said.

He cited the reduction in the Bank of Canada's interest rate to 6 per cent from 6½ per cent, effective today, as a further signal that restraints are being eased.

He has "no intention" in the near future of asking commercial banks to reduce their lending rates further. The banks cut some rates at the beginning of this month after Benson had said publicly that they should.

Small Union Votes Merger

About 500 provincial government culinary workers — cooks, kitchen helpers and dietary aides — have voted to join the B.C. Government Employees' Union.

Until last February the culinary workers belonged to the 1,500-member Federation of Professional and Technical Employees, which also included psychiatric aides, clerks, firefighters at six B.C. mental hospitals.

When the federation disbanded the clerks, aides and fire-fighters joined the BCGEU and the kitchen staff formed the Culinary Workers' Union.

Ralph Williamson, president of the short-lived union, said reorganization of the BCGEU into occupational councils will ensure the culinary workers retain their identity within the larger union which has about 15,000 members.

carriage of passengers in space designed for that purpose and ensure that at no time are passengers carried in a baggage compartment."

The judgment found that a statistical list of $396,600 losses claimed by the CPR from 1966 through 1968 was $60,134 too high because it had nothing to do with operating the diesel car.

Jones' judgment said he would not consider evidence of those who opposed the railway's application "because in my opinion CP Rail has failed to satisfy the committee the passenger train service in question is uneconomic and is likely to continue to be uneconomic."

He said mere proof that no profits were made from the service is not the same as proving it was basically uneconomic because of factors beyond the company control as the legislation requires.

NO PROMOTION

Proof that a rail operation is uneconomic is a "prerequisite" before evidence for and against discontinuing or subsidizing the operation can be considered, the chairman wrote.

Reviewing the CPR's sole witness, T. G. James, passenger service system chief, at the hearing, chairman Jones said that the E and N was not allowed to carry mail or express on the Budd car to produce revenue; was scheduled so that it seriously missed connections with ferry services at Victoria, Sidney and Nanaimo and airline service at Victoria International Airport; and was not promoted in the CPR's extensive advertising for other services it operated on the island.

"Mr. James was finally able to produce some figures purporting to show that only a handful of people use the train in this manner," the judgment said.

"In the circumstances, this is not surprising and I was not at all impressed by that evidence."

SCENIC ROUTE

Chairman Jones recalled that several witnesses described the E and N route as passing through "some of the most beautiful scenery in Canada" yet the CPR spent only $150 on E and N promotion.

This amount went entirely for a cryptic timetable folder while the E and N was totally omitted in elaborate glossy tourist pamphlets promoting the bus and car route over the Malahat.

The E and N also was not mentioned in CPR pamphlets on its Nanaimo and Seattle ferry services although competing buses were mentioned.

"In my view there is in reality no advertising at all (of the E and N) in the normally accepted sense and meaning of that word," Jones said.

He also tongue-lashed the CPR for unsafe practises aboard the E and N Budd car.

UNSAFE PRACTICE

"According to evidence given at the hearing . . . whenever the train has more passengers on board than it is capable of accommodating . . . the additional passengers are placed in the baggage compartment by the conductor and invited to take seats on an old unsecured station waiting room bench, apparently placed there for the purpose.

"Whatever may be said about this pactice in terms of the obligation of CP Rail to its passengers under Section 315 of the Railway Act, it is to be condemned out of hand as being thoroughly unsafe.

"It places passengers in a position of totally unnecessary risk of personal injury in the event of either an emergency application of brakes or an accident.

"I cannot help wondering how many passengers who have travelled on these trains on crowded days, and have been forced to endure a journey in the baggage compartment, wouuld ever again wish to make their trip by train."

Jones went on to say that scheduling, advertising, equipment assignment, accommodation and other factors undoubtedly would reflect the amount of profitability to be expected in a service.

"Undeniably the external forces of competition are present, but in that all-important area that is under the control of CP Rail, the effort that is being made to render the E and N service profitable is almost non-existent."

"It remains to be demonstrated to my satisfaction that the standard of service cannot be raised with at least an improvement in revenue as one result."

"The evidence . . . has convinced me that E and N passenger trains between Victoria and Courtenay are being run without any real regard for the comfort and convenience of passengers and with insufficient attention to the commercial principles that the CPR applies to its other business with such success.

ECONOMIC ISSUE

"Until we have evidence before us that the service is being properly run so far as it is within the power of CP Rail to do so, it is impossible for us to make a determination whether the service is uneconomic and is likely to continue to be uneconomic."

The Jones judgment gave a final ironic blast to the CPR.

It quoted the recent company statement of passenger policy by senior executive officer S. M. Gossage which said CP Rail maintains passenger services efficiently "both to satisfy the essential needs of the travelling public and to minimize the loss to be borne by the federal government" to the full extent required by the CTC.

"In my opinion, Jones observed, "those responsible for the operation of the E and N passenger train service have not been living up to that undertaking."

. . . MAYORS

had tried to indicate the vital need of the railway service "and it sure does my heart good to know the Canadian Transport Commission decided in favor of the people."

Nanaimo Mayor and MLA Frank Ney said it was good news for Islanders and citizens, politicians and the newsmeria could share the credit.

It took a community effort to assemble the evidence showing the Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway "was not making a genuine effort to make the (Dayliner) service a profitable one," he said.

With proper promotion the Dayliner could mean to Vancouver Island what electric railways mean to Switzerland, Ney suggested.

Victoria Mayor Courtney Haddock said he was "very pleased but not surprised" at the CTC decision against the E and N.

The railway has not had sufficient support from the (CPR) board of directors it is responsible to. The parent company has let the Dayliner operation drift lown to "almost the Toonerville trolley."

Haddock suggested the service needs an injection of time, effort and money. The train should run more rapidly and something needs to be done about the constant whistles at every crossing which produce "noise pollution."

City Alderman Peter Pollen, an outspoken critic of the application at the public hearing, said today the CTC ruling means the people have won a battle but not the war.

The contract between the federal government and the rail builders in 1887 guaranteed the rail service in perpetuity on the Island.

Pollen said the essential issue is to ensure that the transport corridor up the Island represented by the railway is kept sacrosanct to meet future needs.

40,000 Attend De Gaulle Rites

By STEPHENS BROENING

COLOMBEY-LES-DEUX-EGLISES (AP) — Charles de Gaulle was laid to rest today in a country churchyard while about 40,000 persons crowded this village.

An armored vehicle, draped in the blue, white and red tricolor of France, left the home where de Gaulle died Monday, bearing the simple wooden coffin.

Crowds lined the streets leading to the white-washed Roman Catholic church. Some made the V-sign, symbol of Allied victory in the Second World War.

The morning had been filled with sunshine, but the clouds began moving in as if to fit the mood.

While soldiers saluted the coffin, pallbearers—all young men of the village—carried it into the church.

The choir, also composed of the young of the village, sang a requiem. The first pews were occupied by the mayor and the village council. Many mourners held lighted candles.

The coffin lay on a wooden base and six candles flickered around it. There were no flowers in the church. The only decoration was two sprays of autumn leaves at the altar.

De Gaulle's son, Philippe, a navy captain, his profile remarkably like that of his father, sat near Andre Malraux, wartime and post-war intimate of de Gaulle.

Second Epistle of St. Paul to Timothy was read by Rev. Francois de Gaulle, the general's nephew.

The mass was celebrated by Father de Gaulle, Rev. Claude Jaguey, the village curate, and the local bishop, Msgr. Alfred Atton.

The congregation sang: "I put my faith in the Saviour. I am sure of His word. My soul hears the Saviour. I am sure of His word."

The bishop read from the Bible of the resurrection of Lazarus, then asked for silence and mediation.

Outside the crowd listened to the service over loudspeakers.

Driediger clashed with Dr. Charles Ennals of Duncan, a member of the committee last year, on the issue. Ennals lost his bid to unseat as president of the league.

Premier Bennett, who is believed to have returned to Vancouver from his European trip late Wednesday or early today, will address the convention Friday morning. Bennett could not be reached today to describe the results of his two-week European trip, which was carried out in secrecy.

About 500 persons are expected to attend the convention.

Recreation Minister Ken Kiernan addressing the party's women's auxiliary at the Bayshore Inn convention site today, said it would be "morally wrong" for British Columbia to deny less wealthy countries such as Japan and Communist China a share in the province's resources through trade and development projects.

Kiernan said that if B.C. were to "sit as a great dog in the manager" about its resources it would be "bad world citizenship" in addition to being "not in our own best interests."

Fourth Cut In Bank Rate

OTTAWA (CP) — The Bank of Canada announced Tuesday night a reduction of its lending rate to six per cent from 6½, the fourth such reduction in the Canadian bank rate in five months.

The new interest rate, reflecting recent declines in commercial short-term lending rates, will be effective when Canadian banks re-open Thursday following the Remembrance Day bank holiday today.

At the same time, bank governor Louis Rasminsky announced a marginal tightening up of the central bank's lending facility for investment dealers whereby they may obtain cash in a pinch when commercial money markets are squeezed.

. . . TALK

Recalling the earlier period, she said that the Rose brothers, Bernard Lortie and herself began "speaking vaguely" about a kidnapping.

"We were thinking about helping political prisoners," said the woman, referring to some persons held in Quebec prisons on charges connected with terrorist acts.

Miss Balcer said discussions lasted about a week at that time.

"I was getting tired of the talk," she said.

Asked who was most serious about the project, she replied:

'UNWANTED'—RATHIE

VANCOUVER — Former mayor of Vancouver Bill Rathie has withdrawn from the 1970 mayorality campaign.

Rathie said Wednesday in a statement: "I feel like the unwelcomed guest at the party . . . I'm not going to run.

Rathie said he will not support any other candidate in the campaign.
